FATHER OWNS AN AUSTIN

At least, he paid for a "Seven," but now he is lucky to get a seat in the back—the reason being—it is so easy to drive that the whole family learnt in a couple of days. Mother drives into town to do her shopping; Jack takes his fiancée for a spin now and then, while Joan drives to the tennis club four nights a week; so when father wants to go anywhere he usually walks. Now he is thinking about getting one exclusively for himself—and hiding it.

EDUCATION.

DUNCREGGAN.

The Residence and surrounding land of the late Mr. Marshall Tillie, H.M.L., have been acquired by the GOVERNORS OF THE LONDONDERRY HIGH SCHOOL to serve as a house for boarders and for playing fields for day girls.

The house is a large and dignified building, situated in twenty acres of ground, in a delightful suburb of the city. This offers a unique opportunity to parents who wish to educate their girls in beautiful healthy surroundings, whilst taking advantage of the opportunities for specially sound scholastic work, which has been an outstanding feature of the school for over fifty years.

Prospectus on application to the Secretary, Londonderry High School.

MISS McILROY, M.A.,

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

WORTHLESS CHEQUES.

FURTHER CHARGES TO BE PREFERRED.

(BEFORE MR. COLLINS.)

Michael J. Dalton, of no business and no fixed place of abode, was again before the Court, charged with forgery and uttering worthless cheques.

Dr. Lorcan G. Sherlock, Sub-Sheriff, gave evidence that he knew the accused man. The four cheques produced were not signed by the witness.

Evidence was given by four witnesses, three of them publicans, that the accused man presented to them cheques for sums of £2 10s. and £3, which he said he had got from Dr. Sherlock. Believing that they were genuine, they cashed the cheques, all of which were returned by the bank.

Detective Sergeant O'Neill asked for a further remand to enable him to bring other charges against the accused man.

Mr. J. H. Dixon, who appeared for the prisoner, said that all the offences were admitted, and nothing would be gained by a remand.

The accused man was returned in custody for trial at the Central Criminal Court.

DANGEROUS 'BUS DRIVING.

Andrew Mulvaney, Prospect terrace, off Church road, was charged with having, on the 25th May last, driven an omnibus at Arran quay at a speed and in a manner dangerous to the public.

Evidence was given that the defendant drove a General 'Bus Company's omnibus along Arran quay at a speed of from thirty to forty miles an hour. He did not sound the horn or slacken speed when approaching Church street crossing, where the 'bus struck a pony and cart, knocking the pony down. It then collided with a horse and cart. No one was injured.

The defendant was fined £5, and his employers, the General Omnibus Company, were also fined £5. Mr. J. W. Davis prosecuted for the Guards.

MALICIOUS DAMAGE TO A 'BUS.

At Omagh Quarter Sessions Judge Linehan awarded £125 to James Winters, 'bus proprietor, Belfast, for malicious damage to a motor 'bus at Omagh by the insertion in the oil pump of a quantity of grinding paste or other chemical, thereby destroying the engine. Omagh Urban District was fixed as the area of charge.

A FINE REMITTED.

Strabane Urban District Council agreed unanimously to remit a fine of £15 imposed by them upon a contractor named Colhoun for failure to have a number of Council houses completed within the specified time.

WHILE RIVERS RUN

Mr. Maurice Walsh, a Kerry man and a citizen of Dublin, follows up his previous success with a new romance brimming with Life, and Love and Laughter, and Sport in the open spaces. Captivating alike in Style and Scenery, Story and Characters.

Sir J. M. Barrie's notable tribute to Mr. Walsh:—

Dear Mr. Walsh,—Please let a fellow author tell you that he has been having some very happy hours over "The Key Above the Door." Indeed, I could put it more strongly, for I lay a-bed a semi-invalid, rather thrilled that such a fine yarn should have come out of the heather. I felt like a discoverer, too, as I alighted on it by accident and without any anticipation of the treat that was in store. I am enamoured of your book, and stop to give you three cheers.—Yours sincerely (signed) J. M. BARRIE.

IONA AND SOME SATELLITES

By Thomas Hannan, F.S.A.Scot. 7/6 net.

Iona, that tiny lens through which Christianity irradiated Scotland, has more than fulfilled the prediction of St. Columba: "This place, small and mean as it appears, shall be honoured not only by the Kings of the Scots and their people, but by rulers of strange nations and those subject to them." The thousands who each summer pay pilgrimage to this 6th-century Shrine among the Western Isles will find an invaluable vade-mecum in Iona: And Some Satellites, by Mr. Thomas Hannan, whose pen and camera have combined to give a vivid impression of the archæological and scenic appeal, not only of Columba's home, but of Hinba, Inchkenneth, and other neighbouring islets where the pioneer Saints left footprints that are indelible.

"THE PAGANISM IN OUR CHRISTIANITY."

Reviewed by our Church of Ireland Correspondent.

JOHN BUNYAN, in the "Pilgrim's Progress," remarks àpropos of the cave where two giants, Pope and Pagan, dwelt in old time that "by this place Christian went without much danger, whereat I somewhat wondered; but I have learned since that Pagan has been dead many a day." We fear that Bunyan would receive a rude shock if he were to read this book, which argues that, as far as Christian dogmas and rites are concerned, pagan is still far from being dead.

There are two eras fraught with importance in the development of Christian doctrine. The close of the first century A.D. and the first half of the second, saw the New Testament coming into its present shape. When we realise that the earliest Gospel was not compiled until at least 70 years after the birth of Our Lord, and that the latest epistle dates from about 150 A.D., we must admit that there has been time for errors and misunderstandings to have entered. It must have been almost impossible, too, to avoid presenting Christian teaching in a guise completely alienated from the forms of pagan thought in which the inhabitants of countries bordering on Palestine, and, therefore, to some extent, the inhabitants of Palestine itself, were accustomed to clothe their religious thought.

The other important period in the development of Christian doctrine was the fourth century A.D.—a time of great cleansing—when Christianity broke down the pagan religions. The plan adopted apparently was to adapt so many doctrines and ceremonies to Christian belief and worship that these religions were, one might say, absorbed by the Christian Faith.

* * * * *

The labours of Sir J. G. Fraser in the realm of comparative religion have been turning our minds to the fact that what has for centuries passed as peculiar Christian belief has strange analogies and counterparts in the religious beliefs of other peoples. The influence of such religions as the worship of Adonis, of Osiris and Isis, and of Mithraism leavened very considerably the religious thought of the peoples of the Eastern Mediterranean during the first three centuries of the Christian era.

The author pleads for a serious attempt, which is already overdue, to "break through to Him through the ring of old gods who have surrounded Him." He also asks for a pause in prayer-book revision until some re-statement in Christian belief has been made to meet the needs of to-day's intellect. He feels that a new definition of His divinity is demanded less crude and less categorical than that of the Nicene or Athanasian Creeds, and asks Protestantism not to be content with the return to primitive Christianity, but to return to the true Catholic Jesus—the Jesus of history.

We think he hardly realises the difficulty of picturing a Divine Redeemer unidentified with the conceptions of pagan religious thought. The "Desire of all nations" must appeal to every phase of human thought, and must carry in Himself the ideals of the less civilised as of the higher races. We agree, however, that for higher minds the conception formed of Him should be as free from dross as may be, though the separating of the dross from the pure metal will be a matter of great difficulty, involving sometimes wide divergence of opinion.

The frankness of the book, coupled with the earnest desire of the writer to help those who are not satisfied that the picture as we have it is correct, or that the frame sets it off in the best possible way, will appeal to all who read it. There is no doubt that many people will be perturbed, but personally we have no fear of a book of this type weakening our faith. We are glad to see the fiercest searchlight of criticism being thrown on the Christian Creeds; for we are convinced that whatever will not stand the test of that searching beam cannot be of God—and we know that the beliefs that really matter will not be harmed by its rays.

"THE CHANGING ROAD."

"The Changing Road" is a detective story, no doubt, but it also is one with a strong romantic interest, and the author grips the attention of the reader from the beginning. A murder on the top of the Simplon Pass launches the tale. A derelict motor car, with a dead chauffeur, and with beauty in distress nearby, give a new interest in life to Ronald Davidson, late of the French Secret Service, and now developing into a misogynist because of a disfiguring wound received while serving with the American Expeditionary Force in France. He retrieves the Boronof emeralds from the said beauty, Sonia; but how he does it and why he does it is best told by the book. This story goes all through with rare life in it, and it has—as all tales like it should have, even if they deal with the aftermath of the Russian Revolution—a happy ending.

MR. FORREST REID.

Mr. Forrest Reid.

PERHAPS, if the Táilteann Awards Committee had given the prize for the best prose by an Irish writer in the last four years to Mr. Forrest Reid for his remarkable autobiography, "Apostate," it would find few to quarrel with its judgment. We reviewed this work at some length when it appeared in 1926, and drew attention to the fragile and scholarly beauty of this writer's picture of a boyhood lived in Belfast, with the Classics as an imaginative refuge from practicality. Now the book is published in a beautiful little pocket edition.

OLD IRISH POETRY.

DR. KUNO MEYER had the exceedingly rare merit, in translation, of combining profound scholarship with literary art. He attempted, with complete success, to make intelligible to the modern mind "a literature so little known that its very existence has been doubted or denied by some, while others, who had the misfortune to make its acquaintance in ill-chosen or inadequate renderings, have refused to recognise any merit in it." The majority of the poems in this volume can be read with pleasure even by a person who knows nothing of the Irish language or of Irish literature. They have freshness and simplicity, and they fulfil Wordsworth's definition of poetry, as expressing "the spontaneous overflow of powerful feelings."

We have glimpses of the "Isles of the Happy" and of Bran's "Silver-cloud Plain"—

> Pedestals of white bronze underneath
> Glittering through ages of beauty, and there are many enchanting pictures of scenery, and descriptions of beast and bird. Gooray, a seventh century King of Connaught, endeavours to persuade his brother, Marvan, to leave his "shieling in the wood" and to return to the court. Marvan sings so well of his "lintel of honeysuckle," of the "familiar cuckoos" above his house, of "fair white birds," "dun heathpoults out of the russet heather," of "brilliant summer-time," spreading its "coloured mantle" and

> Swarms of bees and chafers, the little musicians of the world,
> A gentle chorus:
> Wild geese and ducks, shortly before summer's end,
> The music of the dark torrent, that the monarch says he would give his kingship and his father's heritage to remain in the hermit's company.

In a song of winter, although "cosy our pot on its hook,' the poet is worried because

and "the blackbird cannot get a bee to her liking," and even because

> Neither rest nor sleep in their lair.

Most of these poems belong to the monastic period, when "the Celtic spirit dominated a large part of the Western world," and when Irishmen, "carrying Christianity and a new humanism over Great Britain and the Continent, became the teachers of whole nations, the counsellors of kings and emperors." "The fact that so many of these poems are ascribed to well-known saints," Dr. Meyer says, "emphasises the friendly attitude of the native clergy towards vernacular poetry." The scholar-saint Moling sang—

> When I am among my elders
> I am proof that sport is forbidden:
> When I am among the mad young folk
> They think I am their junior.

Early Irish literature is abundantly rich in humour. One wonders, however, whether King Cormac, reputed author of the "Instructions to a Prince," was in jest or earnest when he explained to Carbery what he thought of women. This passage—of which Dr. Meyer made a racy version—must be one of the unkindest criticisms of "the sex" in any literature:

> They are crabbed as constant companions > steadfast in hate,
> forgetful of love, . . .
> stubborn in a quarrel, . . .
> sorrowful in an ale-house, > rejecting wisdom,
> deaf to instruction,
> blind to good advice.
> fatuous in society,
> exceeding all bounds in keeping others waiting,
> dumb on useful matters,
> eloquent on trifles . . . .

AN IRISH GARDENER IN MALAYA.

ENTHUSIASTIC gardeners who have watched their gardens blighted by drought, and now gaze through rain on plants that a wintry storm is lashing to the earth, will read "A Garden Book for Malaya," which is written by an Irishwoman, with envy. Hundreds of copies doubtless will be sent or taken out to Malaya; but the stay-at-home reader will find pleasure in the photographs of tropical avenues, creeper-covered porches, and gorgeous flowering trees. What marvellous opportunities the gardener of Malaya enjoys!

The book is thoroughly scientific. It covers the whole ground of gardening, with data concerning every variety that can be grown successfully, and hints on methods of cultivation and records of experience. Mrs. Gough—who, by the way, now resides at Raford, County Galway—evidently possesses, besides botanical learning, that genius for garden design, which is among the rarest and most precious of artistic gifts. Her taste is of the finest. "In designing a garden there are several points to be remembered. Simplicity, unity, and good proportions all tend to restfulness. Want of simplicity is caused by the indiscriminate dotting of little beds and meaningless serpentine paths and unsuitable garden ornament. . . . True individuality is spontaneous and will make its mark unconsciously."

Mrs. Gough does not approve of the effort to imitate Chinese gardening. She admires the Chinese art; but "if practised in a European owned garden I think it should be kept apart from the rest of the garden." Hence, "when a collection of ornamental and flowering plants is grown in the Chinese manner, on raised pedestals and in ornamental Chinese jars, they should be collected in one large group, and . . . not arranged here and there." In the main, while working under tropical conditions, Mrs. Gough aims at reproducing the atmosphere of home; and with the use of red brick walls and the cultivation of fine lawns and shady trees, this can be done, she says, with admirable success. The chief strangeness to a European in the climate of Malaya is the absence of seasonal changes.

"Drake's Mantle" tells of a Bolshevik invasion of England, which is fought by an unofficial organisation that proves to be better equipped and more efficient than the regular army and navy. For extravagance, the tale hardly could be excelled; but it is pure delight from end to end. The admiral, whose warnings have been neglected, and who saves his country in its own despite, is a bluff and charming figure. A robust patriotism inspires the whole story, and makes the final sacrifice really moving.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

HOME notions of what life may be like in the Antipodes—in the Bush of Australia, for example, or even in the more settled New Zealand—considered as a whole, can be curiously at variance with the facts.

This possible wrong point of view can be easily understood. Actually, it is nobody's fault. Even the guide books, whether tourist or travel proper, or even emigrant literature, cannot be blamed for the misconceptions which may arise. Are not works of the latter class primarily concerned with the surface of things, and those things which matter apparently concrete facts and statistical information and the like, for instance—rather than with the every-day private lives of the people inhabiting the countries which are being described? Where is one to turn, therefore, when in search of such vital information? It is not a question which is easy to answer, but the germ of the idea of a reply is forthcoming in the "Outward Bound" Library which Messrs. Dent and Sons launched the other day.

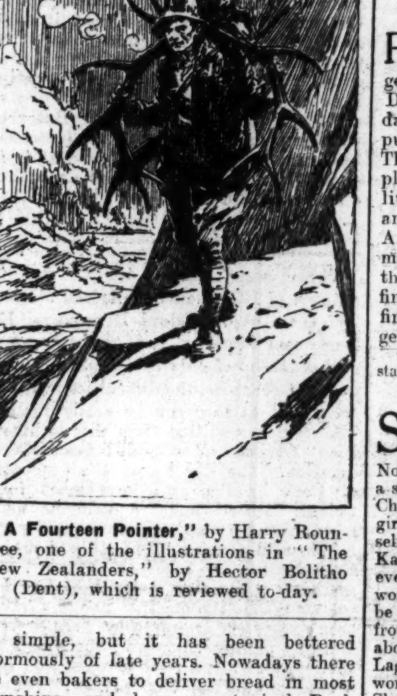
The two first volumes, "The Australian Bush," by Mary E. Fullerton, and "The New Zealanders," by Hector Bolitho, are cast in a sense on lines which would be a reply to a query like: "What exactly is life like in the Antipodes from the point of view of a settler or possible resident?" Because of that they can be extraordinarily useful, and it can be said also that they are remarkably readable. Probably this is due to the fact that the authors are clearly in love with their respective subjects, as, of course, a good Australian or New Zealander should be when either writes of his native land.

Of the two books, the more intimate note in struck in Mrs. Fullerton's work. She is a child of the Bush, and she glories in it, loves it. Indeed, she paints possibly almost too rosy a picture of the back-blocks of Australia, which appeal to her heart, perhaps, more than to her head. This enthusiasm for hers, added to her affection for her task, makes her book a most fascinating one, and certainly it will take away the terror of the wildness from the town-dweller. Assuredly, life in the Bush is and must be simple, but it has been bettered enormously of late years. Nowadays there are even bakers to deliver bread in most townships, and here are typical Bush prices for necessaries: Bacon (lb.), 1s. 3½d.; beef, 8d.; mutton, 9d.; pork, 1s. 1½d.; bread (2lb.), 5¾d.; butter (lb.), 2s. 0½d.; cheese, 1s. 4¾d.; coffee, 2s.; tea, 2s. 3d.; sugar, 4½d.; rice, 3¼d.; eggs (doz.), 2s. 7½d.; flour (25lb.), 5s. 1¾d.; milk (quart), 8¼d.; potatoes (14lb.), 2s. 5¼d.



"A Fourteen Pointer," by Harry Rountree, one of the illustrations in "The New Zealanders," by Hector Bolitho (Dent), which is reviewed to-day.

Mr. Bolitho does not get down so nearly to hard facts in his book upon New Zealand. The masculine mind is not so concerned with such intimate details as prices as is the feminine; but he, a son of the land and of farming stock, almost convinces one that his country is the Land of Promise. The mission he sees for New Zealand is to be a vast farm peopled by industrious people leading happy, industrious lives. It possesses the climate and the soil, and it is a white man's country, with the Maoris as good as white men.

This review is necessarily brief. So far no mention has been made in it to the descriptions of the resources of either Australia or New Zealand in the way of sport and pleasure, as well as work; but this is done charmingly and fully by both authors. The publishers have done their share well, the books being handy in size and beautifully produced and illustrated with line drawings. In fact, this "Outward Bound" Library, which is to embrace the intimate features of the countries which compose the British Empire, will be a valuable contribution to contemporary life when it is completed, and will be as readable as a novel.

THE ECONOMY OF REPARATIONS.

HERE is a book written to show that Germany can meet her obligations, and that none of the difficulties threatening punctual delivery of reparations payments is of Germany's making. In the first chapter, entitled "The Foothills of Olympus," Mr. Long points out that "new economical theories and new organisations never heard of in connection with debts have been devised, and the result has been to complicate a problem that at the best was hard." In a chapter called "Utis, the Transfers Goose," and in other parts of the book, the author exposes the futility of the complicated Transfers machinery, and argues that Germany has paid, and probably will continue to pay, reparations without sacrificing any part of her savings.

Although every page of the book is shorn of superfluities and is written with obvious mastery of complicated problems of economics, Mr. Long so clarifies the essential issues that his book is not only interesting to the layman, but becomes, with every page, more and more romantic and vivid.

There is much more in this style, and the author is nowhere more entertaining than in Chapter III., of Part II., "The Torments of Marsyas." It is here that Mr. Long gives us a charming personal sketch of Herr Schacht, the President of the Reichsbank, and that he deals with the subject of German foreign borrowing and the municipalities. Mr. Long sums up by stating "it is untrue, except when the matter is looked at from a particular and illusory viewpoint, that Germany has borrowed one mark for reparations since 1924, and it is true that borrowing has increased production and has made it easier to pay reparations."

LATEST FICTION.

"AN APRIL AFTER."

Ursula Bloom.

THE mental, moral and material development of Anthony Harding is delineated with power and understanding in Ursula Bloom's new novel. The only child of a peevish little lodging-house-keeper, who has been deserted in early life by Anthony's gentleman father, the boy chafes against the prospect of a clerkship in an iron foundry, and seizes the chance given him through a gift for drawing of seeking his fortune in London town. Taken into the charmed circle of the "Chelsea Buns" by one of them, splendidly loyal Virtue, who has lodged with his mother, and paved the way for his escape—Anthony essays to find himself. His commercially paying art makes possible the disastrous marriage with Iñez, a Spanish dancer, lovely, insatiable, irresistible, but her vanity is content with nothing less than genius for him, and in his endeavour to reach a higher plane poor Tony loses his bread and butter. Iñez leaves him for a Jew who can give her luxury—but he refuses to accept defeat, and pursues his challenge of destiny. Anthony's beliefs are justified; he paints a miraculous picture, a very humbled Iñez returns to him—but the dice are loaded against him after all.

LORD PETER WIMSEY AGAIN.

PUBLISHED to-day, "The Unpleasantness at the Bellona Club," narrates the fourth adventure in detection of Lord Peter Wimsay. Everybody has heard the Punch story of the London clubman who said, "Waiter, remove Lord So-and-so; he has been dead for two days." This novel seems to be based on this story. A general is found dead in his chair at the Bellona Club (a fictitious club of which the original many readers will guess), and a fortune of a million pounds is found to depend on the discovery of the precise time of the old man's death. Lord Peter, drawling his witty way through studios and graveyards, rouses quite a swarm of ugly issues, but he tracks mystery to its source. The tale has the agreeable, satiric humour of the writer's earlier books; and, like them, postulates an extraordinary state of society.

BLAKE TURNED NOVELIST.

PUBLISHED yesterday, "Judgment Day" is a remarkable book. It suggests Blake turned novelist. Judgment Day comes, with the roof of Heaven darkening from sapphire to purple, from purple to indigo, and from indigo to black. Then the Voice penetrates into secret places. Eighteen persons, citizens of a little town, are arraigned, one after another—persons whose names begin with A. Squire, parson, doctor, drunkard, maid and matron, converse in turn with that dreadful, invisible accuser, some to find unexpected justification, and some to find shame. It is done with wit and ingenuity—often wicked ingenuity.

"Judgment Day." By Norman Davey. Constable. 7/6 net.

SELMA Lagerlöf, one of the most distinguished of modern Scandinavian novelists, is among the winners of the Nobel prize for literature. Her latest work is a story of life in Sweden a hundred years ago. Charlotte Löwensköld, a good-hearted young girl, is engaged to a hot-tempered and very self-righteous young curate, Karl Arthur. Karl quarrels with her, as he does with almost everybody, and swears to marry the first woman he meets on the road—who happens to be a pedlar girl. The estrangement of Karl from Charlotte and from his mother is brought about mainly by malicious tongues. Selma Lagerlöf shows wonderful skill in making her world of wealthy bourgeoisie seem to be alive. She never is sentimental, and she has the true novelist's art of making the details of superficially unattractive lives appear to be of absorbing interest. The rich ironmaster, Thea Sundler, Karl Arthur, his mother and Charlotte are all very well-drawn characters. The end, although it is not true to the rules of sentimental fiction, is satisfying; and Selma Lagerlöf's restrained art is seen at its best in the last chapter.

A GAME RANGER ON SAFARI.

TO sportsman and naturalist alike, as well as to the average reader, Mr. Blayney Percival's latest volume on game-hunting in British East Africa or, more properly, Kenya, should make a very strong appeal. The book is a sequence to his previous work, "A Game Ranger's Notebook," in which he dealt with the larger and more dangerous game of Kenya, such as lion, rhinoceros, buffalo, etc., but it loses nothing of its interest by the fact that it treats almost exclusively of what may be termed lesser game. Indeed, to sportsmen in these countries who seldom meet anything bigger than a hare, the vastness and the variety of species of African game is almost bewildering.

To give here anything like a full list of the animals, reptiles and birds included in Mr. Percival's survey would be impossible. Although the author gives an account of the habits of each variety, together with a description of the size and points of each particular type, the work is far from being a purely technical one. He is full of reminiscences of his own experience, both as a hunter and collector, as well as a preserver of game, and has many attractively told and interesting anecdotes to relate. He recalls one pathetic incident in his chapter on "Baboons and Chimpanzees," strikingly indicative of the strong maternal instinct of such animals.

He once watched a mother baboon dragging her dead baby to the riverside and trying to persuade it to drink. "She could not, or did not, realise that the little one was dead." This trait is in direct contrast to the male of the species, who are extremely bad fathers, punishing and driving away their offspring should they come near them. Papa Baboon, however, should an enemy threaten his family, will fly to their protection, fighting bravely even unto death in their defence.

The author also relates for amusement the fact that many monkeys, if they get the chance, become addicted to strong liquors and often become confirmed drunkards, stealing whiskey at every possible chance. He has many tales of mystery and horror to tell of the "Dark Continent," foremost among which is that of the seldom seen, but apparently real, monster of "Lake Victoria," one last relic of prehistoric times.

These anecdotes and tales are but the lighter side of a volume which should be of wonderful help and interest to the lucky few who can afford to make Kenya their happy hunting ground.

The book is copiously illustrated with exceptionally good photographs, and there is also a map of the game reserves of the East Africa Protectorate. Mr. Percival shows himself as a wonderfully keen observer of animal life and habits, to which is added the benefit of his long experience with the Kenya Game Department, the weight of which gives to everything he says the tone of authority transmitted in terms of vividly interesting reading.

AN IMPORTANT NEW BOOK

by ARTHUR WEIGALL
Author of "Wanderings in Roman Britain," etc.

"Mr. Weigall sets to work to reconstruct the original Christianity of Christ. . . . His book is valuable as presenting in attractive form a mass of information about comparative religion which is interesting in itself, and is not easily accessible outside much more ponderous treatises . . . COLOUR FACSIMILES.

WE have received from Messrs. Frost and Reed, fine art publishers, London, proof impressions, signed by the artist, of two facsimiles in colour after the original pictures by Richard Jack, R.A., which were exhibited in the Royal Academy, 1927, entitled "The Blue Drawing Room, Buckingham Palace," and "The Chinese Chippendale Room, Buckingham Palace." These two works are produced with the consent and kind approval of Her Majesty the Queen, who has expressed her complete satisfaction with these facsimilies. They are beautiful pictures, and are sold at a moderate price.

HENRIETTA STREET AND ELSEWHERE.

FORGOTTEN GLORIES.

(By "L. H. B.")

HENRIETTA street, Dublin, in 1814, though shorn of some of its residential grandeur by the transfer to Westminster of the Irish Parliament, still maintained the severe dignity which aristocratic association bestows, and still boasted a fair proportion of titles among the occupants of its stately mansions.

The Dublin Directory of round about Union days was an emphatic putter of people in their places, and its pages permitted no mingling of mere merchants and traders with those who wrote "Esquire" after their names. These distinctions were lessening in sympathy with changing ideas, but in 1814 we find no plain "Mister So and So" in Henrietta street. Stately mansions they were, these great houses, and even in our own day, when "Ichabod" is written over so many of the doorways, enough remains to bear testimony to the greatness of the men and women who lived appropriately in houses worthy of that golden period of Irish social life.

That period was not wholly over in 1814. Fashion still recognised and patronised the street, and many an evening found manly pulses bounding, and the cheeks of beauty flushing at the know-not-what, as the lights gleamed on the great staircase, and the laughing crowd swept up to dance night into morning in the rooms which the art of Adam had made glorious. The equipages of rank and wealth were still familiar sights by day and night in Henrietta street.

THE HUSHED STREET.

But there comes a day when this street, whose life is always tuned to concert pitch, is hushed, as if waiting for something untoward and unwished for, but inevitable and thought-compelling. Blinds are drawn, and, if there are watchers, they can only peep cautiously after the fashion of the Misses Pinkerton in Thackeray's novel. What is afoot? At the lower corner of the street there are groups of people, and a slight movement among them suggests that the something, whatever it is, is approaching. But how slowly it comes! Quite a time elapses, and still the street end is empty. The stir in the little throng at the corner increases, and beyond doubt the something is imminent. One or two who wait at the upper end of the street experience that strange half-fear of the unseen, but expected, which makes the watch for the unknown menace one of life's real thrills. A solemn procession it surely is that presently paces in slow dignity up the street, and there is no lack of outward signs of mourning, in customary suits of black and the dejected 'haviour of the visage. It has had a long journey, this slow, silent procession, from far off St. Germain, in France, and at length is nearing its last halting place, save one. Lady Mountjoy comes home. Time is no longer of any concern to her, and she cares not how slowly they move. Nor has she any pride in the gold-embroidered pall that drapes her coffin gorgeously, nor heeds she the six female mutes who keep vigil through the night, while she lies in state in the great room of what we know as Blessington House. Her flutter of life is over, and she who, while the lawful wife of another, fled away with a madcap lord of eighteen, has again slipped off, but this time with one from whom there will be no more parting, and whose embraces, if cold, are unrelaxing.

OTHER EYES.

What of the madcap lord himself? He dearly loves display, even if it be a funeral, and, having, as soon as occasion permitted, married the woman he enticed away, grudges not to spend two thousand five hundred pounds on her last journey. He does the thing well, and, when it is over, he plunges again into the gay world, where already he has discovered eyes—Irish eyes—that have a dangerous fascination. Those eyes have for twenty-four years been looking at life in many changing aspects, and if, on the whole, they have tried only to see the things that gladden, there have been times when care insisted on being looked at, and when the unwilling tear has gathered in spite of challenging high spirits.

Let us for a moment glance at Lord Mountjoy's new attraction. The daughter of a recklessly extravagant Tipperary squire, Marguerite Power had shone in the ballroom at an age when most girls are in their early school experiences. Young as she was, she was already noticed for grace, elegance and charm of manner. Beauty she had not yet, though it was to come by and by, but where she attracted she held. Admirers had been numerous, and the vivacious girl had grown accustomed to homage. The 47th Regiment was quartered in Tipperary, and its officers were frequent guests at her father's house. Two showed themselves serious in their attentions to the slip of a girl, who should have been learning other lessons than that of love-making. She favoured Captain Murray, but her impoverished father saw to it that Captain St. Leger Farmer should be the selected one. There were angry protests, weepings, and even threats, by the unwilling girl, but the father won. It could hardly have been otherwise. She was barely fifteen.

AN UNHAPPY MARRIAGE.

The marriage took place in 1804, and from the first was a miserable failure. Temporary estrangements commenced after a few months, and in three years husband and wife finally separated. Mrs. Farmer, still in her 'teens, and rapidly adding personal beauty to grace and charm of manner, was much too attractive a figure to escape attention. She and her sister, Mrs. Purvis, while Lady Mountjoy still lived, had been guests to witness the lavishly produced theatricals at Lord Mountjoy's seat in Co. Tyrone. In 1816, two years after his wife's death, he was created Earl of Blessington, and by that time his admiration for Mrs. Farmer had openly showed itself as a stronger sentiment. As might be expected, tongues wagged, especially those of the disappointed ones, who grudgingly abandoned hopes of the capture of an aristocratic widower, with a rent roll of over £20,000 a year.

Then in 1818 Captain Farmer obliged in quite the most approved style of a novelist's way out. A gay night is often followed by an unsteady head. The captain tumbled out of his window, and the conventions of decency were now the only obstacle to the union of the lovers. These conventions were made as brief as possible, and in a few months Mrs. Farmer became the Countess of Blessington.

What wonder if she lost her head a bit? She was young, she was beautiful, and was possessed of a natural charm that would have fascinated had her features been as plain as they were now the opposite. Nor was she without talent. In a circle that included names that still stand high in the records of an age that glowed with the fervour of the romantic movement, she was a hostess of distinction. What wonder, too, if she considered London a more appropriate place than Dublin to display her conquest? In the gorgeously appointed mansion in St. James's square she found a setting worthy of her beauty, her talents, and her desire to shine. Her private apartments were hung with Genoa velvet, fringed with gold, and the furniture was of silver. Her extravagance raced that of her husband, and neither dreamed of prudence. The entertainment was as lavish as the decoration, and hers was one of the leading salons of the great city. In her drawing-room were to be found those who had made their mark in foreign as well as home affairs. Music, the theatre, art, literature and science furnished the talkers at her dinner table, and, if the tone was slightly Bohemian, the enjoyment was, perhaps, all the greater. A frequent visitor was the exile who later, after many vicissitudes, climbed to the rather unstable eminence of the throne of France, and who then, like Pharaoh's chief butler, remembered not the friends of his adversity, but forgot them. There, too, the eye noted the marvellously handsome lad who was prematurely shaking off his youth to become the spoiled pet of those brilliant gatherings, and the even more ardent worshipper of his lovely hostess. It was in Lady Blessington's house that Alfred D'Orsay took his call, and came on a stage set for one of those comedies that life so often changes to tragedy before the curtain is finally rung down.

HARD TIMES.

For three years the game was played gloriously. She was the centre of a circle brilliant in attainments as well as in social standing. True, aristocratic dames kept aloof, and this hurt the woman's heart of the Countess. But the men gathered about her, and what men they were! She was a good listener, and the talk was worth hearing. It is recorded by those whose opinion is worth having that she, as a talker, was good to listen to, and all testify to her wonderful skill in making the shy and the silent come out of themselves, and reveal their unsuspected gifts of conversation. She was withal, big-hearted and kind, especially to her own family, whose many appeals to her purse were never made in vain.

Even an income of over twenty thousand a year could not stand the strain, and, while the pleasure-loving Earl and Countess were living in the high noon of social splendour, the small cloud of financial straitness began to show on the horizon, and rapidly to assume proportions that darkened the hitherto unshadowed way.

This may have been a principal reason for Lord Blessington's suggestion that they should make a lengthened tour on the Continent — a suggestion that found immediate favour with the Countess. This is not the place to describe the strange and varied experiences of that wandering. Byron, as we all know, comes into it, and the Countess grows almost hysterical about him, though she can indulge a sneer at what she considers his weaknesses. After a friendship, measured only in days, they part in tears, and exchange mementoes. He has some superstition about what he gives her, and writes to her for its return in exchange for something else. From Rome the Blessingtons went to Naples, where D'Orsay was wedded to the daughter of the Earl by his former wife. This outrageous marriage is one of the really ugly incidents in the story of these strange people. From Naples they went to Paris, where, with characteristic recklessness, a magnificent mansion was rented, and was decorated and equipped with dazzling splendour. Everything promised a gay time in the thoughtless, pleasure - seeking French capital, when death most incontinently knocked at the door of the glittering house, and would not leave without the Earl himself.

A FASCINATING PERIOD.

Out of the wreck of the estate the Countess was secured by settlement an income of £2,000 a year—an all too slender provision for a woman of her tastes and ideas. She returned to London, and it was just then that Lawrence's portrait, by which the world knows her, was exhibited at the Academy. For some twenty years London knew her again, and they were, in many ways, the most interesting of her career.

As someone said, everyone went to her, and the reader of Tom Moore's "Journals" will find very interesting little references to dinners and visits. One of these has a somewhat bitter touch. It is December, 1833:—

> "Went to Lady Blessington, having heard that she is at home most evenings. Found her gay rooms splendidly lighted, and herself in a similar state of illumination, sitting alone with her glory, reading. It was like the solitude of some princess confined in her fairy palace . . . Stayed about three-quarters of an hour conversing, or, rather, listening."

The lions of the literary world were her constant guests, and it will probably startle some to hear that Charles Dickens, whom so many of us regard as of our own day, was an appreciative frequenter of her entertainments. Greville gives a piquant account of an evening he spent there, and of meeting people whose talk was more noise than conversation. This period of the story is a truly fascinating one, but even briefly to tell it would occupy pages instead of columns.

The comedy ran till 1849, when, on a spring day, an unromantic sheriff's officer got inside the door, and could not be got out. His seizure was the signal to a multitude of other creditors, and the last act began. D'Orsay fled at once to Paris, and the Countess, bundling together a few necessaries, followed. Thackeray supplies us with a picture of the sequel at Gore House:—"I have just come away," he writes, "from a dismal sight: Gore House full of snobs looking at the furniture: brutes keeping on their hats in the kind old drawing-room. I longed to knock them off."

THACKERAY'S TENDERNESS.

The French valet, who remained behind, wrote to the Countess that the only person who seemed affected was Mr. Thackeray. The Lawrence portrait, which originally cost £80, was sold for £336. Lord Blessington's portrait brought £68. That was about March, 1849. By the end of May the Countess had recovered her spirits sufficiently to enjoy dining out in Paris. From one of these agreeable evenings she returned and went to bed. During the night the grim messenger, who twenty years before had called for her husband, came for the wife. On the 4th June she passed so peacefully that it was difficult for those watching to fix the moment.

What of the house in Henrietta street all these years? "The fine stone mansion, the windows and doors adorned with fluted columns, the ceilings, panels and architraves after the manner introduced by Adam," was left to its musings. No gay crowds thronged its noble stairs, or mustered under the richly decorated ceilings. Perhaps, in the hush of the night, echoes of long-lost laughter may have sounded in the empty corridors, and the old house may have felt a thrill pass along its walls in expectation of a patched and powdered pageant come back in brave, but ghostly, showing. It still stands, holding its own against time, but, as the record put it, "modernised, and utilised for chambers by gentlemen of the law."

ALBERT AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

WICKLOW FARMERS' VISIT.

A large party of County Wicklow farmers, mostly winter class students, visited the Albert Agricultural College, Glasnevin, yesterday. The visitors, nearly all young men, were received by the Director, Professor J. P. Drew, who showed them over the farm buildings, and then brought them to inspect the farm live-stock. During the tour of inspection many interesting discussions took place.

Mr. Sheehy afterwards took the party in charge, and explained the experimental work he was doing with pigs, particularly as regards the feeding of mineral matter. Mr. Caffrey then assumed charge, and discussed with the visitors the work he was doing with regard to cereals and grasses. Mr. O'Connell explained the scope of the sugar beet experiments, while Professor Murphy dealt in a practical way with his experimental work in the matter of potato diseases, and especially virus diseases. Mr. Sherrard gave particulars of the work being done in the horticultural department, especially as regards fruit and vegetables.

The party had lunch and tea at the college.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Sir David Yule.

The late Sir David Yule, who might be termed the Pierpont Morgan of the East, was a typical Scot, whose most remarkable feat was the way he avoided popular fame. Said to be one of the half-dozen wealthiest men in the United Kingdom, patrician and plutocratic multi-millionaires included, and probably worth ten or eleven millions sterling, this Indian merchant and financier lived, after he returned home from a life-time spent in the East, in the simplest style at St. Albans, his only hobbies fly-fishing and collecting Indian prints.

In America such comfortable obscurity in the case of a "dollar king" would be neither desired nor feasible. Even in conservative old England it is remarkable how a business compeer of, say, the late Lord Leverhulme or Lord Inchcape remained utterly unknown to the public outside his own immediate circle.

Sir David Yule's nephew, Mr. David Yule, is in business in Dublin. He was the victim of a serious motor accident recently on his way from the Portmarnock Golf Club to the Malahide Hotel, where he resides, and I am glad to hear that he is getting on well in the Mater Hospital, where he was taken after the smash.

Dublin Brides for Ulster.

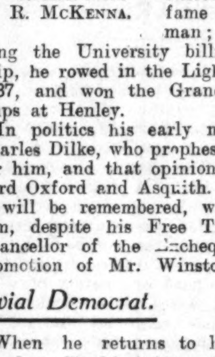
The marriage of Miss Irene Hyder, of Dublin, to Mr. Eric Eadie, Lisbellaw, Co. Fermanagh, on Wednesday will increase the Dublin circle in Enniskillen and district, where there already are a number of Southern brides. Mrs. Eadie's elder sister is the wife of Dr. W. A. Dickson, the School Medical Officer of Health in Fermanagh, and during the past few years the number of Dublin ladies who have gone North has been remarkable.

In Enniskillen the first Dublin bride to arrive was Miss Nellie Hume, daughter of the late Mr. Walter Hume, well-known in Dublin commercial circles. She married Mr. James Cooper, M.P. Then followed Miss Marie Dowse, the leader of the talented and popular Dowse string quartet of fifteen years ago, who married Mr. W. Egbert Trimble. And so it was with others. In Belfast, too, with the transfer of Government officials and lawyers after the Partition Act of 1920, regular Dublin colonies have grown up in that city and some of its suburbs.

"Mixed" Weddings.

It is the custom in the North of Ireland when the husband and wife belong to different denominations, that in case of a death in the family clergymen of both denominations officiate at the funeral. The tendency for clergymen of different denominations to officiate at weddings is increasing. Mr. Eadie, who is a Presbyterian, had his uncle, the Rev. Dr. Irwin, Principal of Wesley College, to assist at his wedding. Recently the Rev. R. Morrell, Presbyterian minister, of Bangor, assisted Canon Pratt at a wedding, and the Right Rev. Dr. Hazlett, ex-Moderator of the General Assembly, Ballymena, will assist the Bishop of Clogher at the forthcoming marriage of his son to Miss Mabel Rutherford in Enniskillen Cathedral Church.

A Versatile Banker.



RIGHT. HON. R. McKENNA.

The Right Hon. Reginald McKenna, who celebrates a sixty-fifth anniversary today, displayed, while still at Cambridge, such a taste for figures that it might have been easy to predict the great success he has achieved both as Chancellor of the Exchequer during a most difficult period of the war, and, since his retirement from active politics, as Chairman of the Midland Bank. In his university days, however, though he did well in the schools, his chief fame was as a sportsman; for besides winning the University billiard championship, he rowed in the Light Blue crew in 1887, and won the Grand and Steward Cups at Henley.

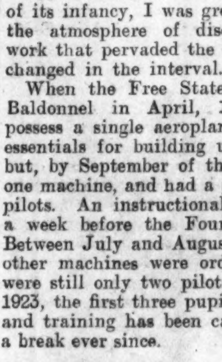
In politics his early mentor was Sir Charles Dilke, who prophesied a big career for him, and that opinion was shared by Lord Oxford and Asquith. Mr. Baldwin, it will be remembered, wished to secure him, despite his Free Trade views, as Chancellor of the Exchequer before the promotion of Mr. Winston Churchill.

Jovial Democrat.

When he returns to his Gold Coast kingdom, Sir Ofori Atta will leave behind him pleasant memories. Londoners have not been hosts to a more jovial good fellow than this democratic dusky monarch. His good humour is invincible; he has a schoolboy zest for fun, and his delight in London's sideshows has been unfeigned. All these qualities and his engaging habit of wearing his gold crown of State, as other mortals do a felt hat, on all and every occasion, make Sir Ofori a real Cockney favourite.

Never has London been more thoroughly "done" than by him. His tour-de-force was his shrewd talk to the City shareholders in the Akim Company. His big moment was when, smiting his chair with frank admiration, he heard himself on a gramaphone record. And what a true democrat. When his small page, nodding in the Distinguished Stranger's Gallery during a dull House of Commons debate, almost let the royal crown slip off his lap, Sir Ofori merely exchanged grins with him.

A Prolific Writer.



MR. M. WALSH.

Mr. Maurice Walsh, whose first book, "The Key Above the Door," was one of the best sellers of the Christmas season last year, will have his second novel, "While Rivers Run," published next month. This last story has been running as a serial in Chambers's Journal, and the Chambers's firm will publish the book. But Mr. Walsh has not waited, as many of our writers, for the publishing of one book before beginning another. I hear that he has just finished his third book, entitled: "The Small Dark Man," and, as in his other stories, the hero is an Irishman, placed in a Scottish setting.

Mr. Walsh has had remarkable success in Scotland, and is very popular with Chambers's readers. His long residence in the Highlands has taken full possession of him, and he brings to his work the full breath of the mountains and moorlands, and the tang of the salt sea spray. No wonder his books have been styled men's books, and make their appeal to the mountaineers, the trampers, and the virile lovers of nature, who revel in the open air life.

The Free State Air Force.

Now that the Free State Army Air Force is so much in the limelight I am reminded of a visit that I paid to Baldonnel Aerodrome in January, 1923—while the civil war was still dragging along. Even then, in the days of its infancy, I was greatly impressed by the atmosphere of discipline and hard work that pervaded the camp. It has not changed in the interval.

When the Free State Army took over Baldonnel in April, 1922, it did not possess a single aeroplane nor any of the essentials for building up an air service, but, by September of that year, it owned one machine, and had a grand total of two pilots. An instructional machine arrived a week before the Four Courts fighting. Between July and August of that year six other machines were ordered. But there were still only two pilots. In September, 1923, the first three pupils began to train, and training has been carried on without a break ever since.

Early Difficulties.

Those were rough times. In the autumn of 1923 the newly-fledged air force had bases at Waterford Racecourse, Kilkenny and Limerick, but, as the personnel still consisted of only two pilots and about twenty mechanics, the difficulties which the force had to face can be easily realised. The machines shifted from base to base as the "Irregulars" occupied the areas in question. The day before the evacuation of Cork by the anti-Government forces Colonel Russell made a valuable aerial reconnaissance over the Southern city.

When in October, 1923, it was decided to establish a base at Fermoy, two machines which flew down there found no shelter ready, the original hangars having been completely destroyed by "the enemy." Nothing daunted, however, the Free State soldiers and airmen set to work and built a shed around the two 'planes! Towards the end of the same year, realising the necessity of having their own troops for garrison purposes, in order to train them eventually for co-operation with aircraft and in handling machines, a special battalion was formed and put into training. Since then the force has never looked back, and now bids fair to play an important part in developing civil aviation in the Free State.

Fearless Motorist.

As I waited for a tram in College Green the other day a two-seater flashed past me and perched on the smooth surface of the closed dickey I saw a black spaniel. He was quite unconcerned, looking about him at the traffic with an air of detached interest, and apparently preserving his precarious balance without an effort.

Less daring was a collie I knew, who showed a marked distaste for travelling by motor. When I asked the reason of his prejudice I was told that once, when the car had been rather full, "Boyo" was taken in front. Endeavouring to stow himself away comfortably out of reach of human legs, poor "Boyo" sat heavily on the accelerator. The result so disconcerted him that he would never enter a motor again. A canine psycho-analyst might make a fortune out of patients like this.

Books by the Yard!

The majority of people who are buyers of books—and there are many of them, in spite of the prosperity of the lending libraries—periodically have to weed out their shelves to make room for new purchases. A dealer in second-hand "quality" books, books that are worth more than their mere weight in waste paper, tells me, however, that quite an appreciable part of his business lies in supplying books in bulk, entirely without regard for subject or literary merit.

Only last week, he tells me, a man placed an order for "enough books to fill sixty feet of shelving," which he wanted for a new house, and on which he was prepared to spend £150. Apart from a proviso that they should "look all right," the buyer left the choice of the books entirely to the dealer.

An Abbey Builder.

Writing a few days ago about Sir Charles Langham, Bart., of Tempo Manor, Co. Fermanagh, I was reminded that an ancestor of Sir Charles, one Bishop Langham, was one of the builders of portion of Westminster Abbey, and to-day a painting of the Bishop is at Tempo Manor along with all the family plate and other heirlooms of the Langham family. Sir Charles, like many other English gentlemen, sold his estate at Cottesbrook, Northampton, and Tempo Manor belongs to Lady Langham. Sir Charles's only son is now the last of the Langhams.

Wearing Plaits.

There is a sixteen-year-old Irish girl in London who can be distinguished at most of the social functions she attends with her mother by her "pigtails." She is Lady Patricia Moore, Madame de Landa's daughter, and she wears her hair in two long plaits, which fall over her shoulders in front and nearly reach her waist. She has the type of face and large blue eyes which go with this particular style of hair-dressing.

Although she is very young to be going out so much, Lady "Patsy" remains quite unspoiled after several months of the social round. She dances but little, and has been at very few débutantes' parties; but she has rarely missed a night at the opera, has visited a great many art shows, and attended nearly all the big concerts and recitals of the season.

Back Gardens.

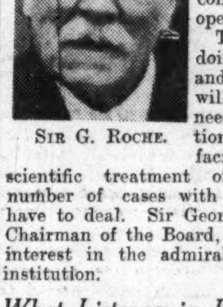
Passing in the train from Harcourt street, Dublin, the other day, it was pleasant to see that most of the back gardens, small though they are, attached to the rows of houses running out to Milltown were nearly all planted with vegetables and in good order. During the war many persons who never before had a spade in their hand found to their surprise that by dropping a few seeds into prepared ground quite an excellent addition to the dinner table would result, and so wholesome, too! Let the good habit be kept up, as cabbage is still dear.

Royal Pheasants Destroyed.

Tragedy has befallen the brood of pheasants which were hatched in the grounds of Buckingham Palace recently. The whole of the brood has been destroyed, it is believed, by a pair of carrion crows. The brood was hatched in one of the shrubberies not a great distance from the front of the Palace, and when the birds began to wander over the lawn the Queen loved to watch them. Gradually their numbers diminished, until all disappeared.

Pheasants have frequented the grounds of the Palace for several years now. In the first instance they flew over from the St. James's Park sanctuary, and, on the King's instructions, they were allowed to remain. The King and Queen often fed the birds, and there is much interest to see if another pair will make the grounds their nesting place.

Hospital Extension.



SIR G. ROCHE.

I am informed that the extension to the Royal Victoria Eye and Ear Hospital, Adelaide road, Dublin, is now virtually completed, and that it will be opened by the Governor-General on Wednesday, July 18th, at 4 o'clock. The annual general meeting of this hospital, which is usually held in April, was postponed this year, so as to coincide with the opening ceremony.

This hospital is doing splendid work, and the new wing will afford much-needed accommodation and increased facilities for the scientific treatment of the enormous number of cases with which the staff have to deal. Sir George Roche, who is Chairman of the Board, takes the deepest interest in the admirable work of this institution.

What Listeners-in Hear.

A country correspondent writes:—I was one of, perhaps, many hundreds who tried to listen-in to the banquet to the three airmen in Dublin on Tuesday night. I would suggest that in future a notice be left beside the microphone that listeners-in hear all the conversation. While vocal and instrumental items were rendered all that could be heard was a running conversation to a pianissimo musical accompaniment at times. Some of these at the head of the table carried on a brisk conversation, which was not in the least interesting, but very much disconcerting at times. Good manners demands silence during a musical item.

Irish Goods in Dublin.

Buying some summer haberdashery in Dublin yesterday, I was told that the garments could not be got in Irish manufacture. Inquiring more closely, and reminding my haberdasher that I had obtained Irish-made garments of the sort on former occasions, I was told that they were made still in Northern Ireland, but that the manufacturer no longer supplied the Irish Free State, as the import duties hit his trade more heavily than the trade of English manufacturers, who supply a cheaper quality in these goods. Here is an example of import duties striking existing Irish manufactures, and, presumably, lessening employment in Ireland.

QUIDNUNC.

DUKE OF GLOUCESTER AS HORSEMAN.

TO RIDE IN FLAT RACE.

The Duke of Gloucester will ride Mrs. Whitburn's Sun Yat-sen in the Bibury Welter Plate at Bibury Club Meeting on Wednesday next. The race is a handicap, and Sun Yat-sen is set to carry 12st. 7lb. —2lb. from the top weight. The horses are to be ridden by members of the Bibury Club who have never held a jockey's licence.

Sun Yat-sen won the corresponding race last year, when he was ridden by his trainer's youthful son, Mr. A. Cottrill, and carried 11st. 1lb.

He is the first member of the Royal Family to ride under Jockey Club Rules, but the Prince of Wales rode at a recognised race meeting under National Hunt Rules in 1923, when he finished third in a National Hunt flat race at Sandown Park on Lord Westmorland's Phaco.

Mr. W. Comwy Bell, who was consulted by the British Government as an agricultural expert, died yesterday in North Wales.

Do you see that yellow patch on the ripe Tomatoes? Then use Mackey's Special Fertilizer in the soil. It is the remedy. Cwt. 18s. 6d. Sir James W. Mackey, Ltd., Seedsmen, Dublin.—(Advt.)

NEW ISSUE.

CITY OF BRISBANE 5 PER CENT. STOCK.

The Commonwealth Bank of Australia will receive applications, on behalf of the Brisbane (Queensland) City Council, for an issue of £1,000,000 5 p.c. stock at the price of £95 10s. per cent. The money is required for the establishment and construction of the water supply and sewerage service, and the loan is secured upon all the Corporate rates and revenues of the city. Redemption will take place between 1950 and 1960 at par by an annual cumulative sinking fund of 1 p.c. Applications must be for not less than £100 stock or multiples of £100. The stock is a high-yielding, sound Colonial Corporation investment. Applicants should use the form attached to the abridged prospectus on page 10.

THE COUNTESS OF LIMERICK.

The Countess of Limerick, who is seriously ill at Holl Place, Bexley, Kent, was "very slightly" better last night.

While working at the Dublin and Blessington Steam Tram Terminus, Terenure, yesterday, Edward O'Neill, Iveagh Buildings, Dublin, was caught between the buffers of two carriages, and had his collar bone broken.

£50,000 FOR BELFAST CHARITIES.

BUILDER'S LEGACIES.

An order settling a scheme for the distribution of trust funds amounting to over £50,000 to some of Belfast's greatest charitable institutions was made by Mr. Justice Wilson in the Chancery Division, Belfast, yesterday on the application of Sir Joseph M'Connell, Bart., of Royal avenue, Belfast, and James Nevin Lamont, of Ballymena, plaintiffs in a summons in which the defendants were the Attorney-General and the Northern Minister of Finance.

The plaintiffs sued as the trustees of the will of the late James Rea, Ravenhill road, Belfast, builder (who died in 1893), under which the deceased's brother, now dead, was entitled to one-third of the income of the estate for life, while the remaining two-thirds were to accumulate for the benefit of the parties prescribed. They sought determination as to whether they were entitled to apply the moiety among the charities.

Of the total bequest, £25,000 will go to the Incorporated Belfast Maternity Hospital.

PRESENTATION TO ORGANIST.

The Rector of Ballymore, Tandragee, Co. Armagh, Parish Church, and choir have presented the retiring organist, Mrs. Fearon, with a piano stool, with drawer for music.

Mr. John Joyce, of Mullarilly, who made the presentation, said that Mrs. Fearon and her sister, between them, had been in charge of the music of Ballymore Parish Church for half a century.

MOST ROMANTIC COURT.

EMPIRE'S GREAT TRIBUNAL.

"THE DRAWING-ROOM OF BRITANNIA."

(By NEVILLE CORBETTE.)

BEHIND the simple fact that a law case is proceeding at the Privy Council which will last to the end of the present term, and in which no less than twenty-one learned counsel are engaged, there is one of the romances of the British Empire.

No other nation has such a Court of Appeal, steeped in wonderful traditions and with a jurisdiction which is almost world-wide. The rapid development of the Overseas Dominions may in the near future give greater variety to its business—till now India has provided a majority of cases—and it happens that once again it is an Indian cause which has brought five famous judges to sit in simple state and to remind us of this great tribunal. The claim concerns the right to extensive properties on which are valuable minerals, and to press his case, the Maharajah Bahadur Keshava Prasas Singh has come to England with a full retinue. Day by day the Court has presented the picturesque appearance of being "India in London."

NO GREATER POWER.

For the time being, Lord Shaw, Lord Carson, Lord Blanesborough, Sir J. Wallis and Sir L. Sanderson constitute the Court of Courts. There is no greater power for all the millions within the British Empire. Yet, in the matter of actual pageantry and ceremony, it is even simpler that the visitation of a British judge to a county town for the Assizes. The environment is quiet and severe, and, except for the gay colours which the native appellants and their friends invariably bring to the scene, the proceedings would suggest to the average Briton no more than an efficient committee meeting.

The Court of Privy Council has, in fact, been given various popular titles from time to time in its history, and these have indicated its austere simplicity. It has been called the "drawingroom of Britannia," and, again, the "dowdy matron of Downing street." Once, when Mohammedan and Hindu litigants brought a thorny problem before it, one Indian admirer of British justice called it in a message to Calcutta the "Judish-al-Komiti"—"the instrument of Allah in London."

It is not an ancient Court. It was only established ninety-four years ago to meet the needs of the growing Empire for a tribunal which should advise the Sovereign and mete out justice to rich and poor, irrespective of race and colour, throughout the British Dominions.

THREE JUDGES.

The Court must consist of not less than three judges, and, although it is not a fixed rule of its composition, it has become a rule by precedent that a Lord of Appeal shall be one of the members. The Court is virtually the voice of the King for millions of his subjects, and, in order to preserve this character, the manner of announcing decisions differs from that of all other tribunals. No verdict is given in Court at the end of the proceedings. The judges arrive at their considered view and present their report and advice to His Majesty, who gives effect to it through an Order in Council.

No Court has such delicate problems to solve. They are richly varied, and often have involved questions of tribal wars or dramatic family feuds. In the present instance the right to some fifteen thousand acres of rich territory is at stake, and it is the sort of question which has often arisen.

A few years ago a problem of the kind came to the Privy Council, after it had provoked no little bloodshed, because it had been so difficult to make the Indian natives believe that there could be such a wonderful Court of the Great White Queen which could understand their troubles. After the Privy Council had made its decision known through the Order of the Great White Queen, the happy Indians lit great bonfires in its honour.

FRIEND OF THE HUMBLEST.

It is the friend of the humblest subject, and this is proved by the record of a poor woman who had lost her husband while he was employed on an overseas railway. The local Court awarded her more than a thousand pounds compensation, but the railway company refused to pay. They briefed a dazzling array of counsel and got the award quashed. A kindly lawyer, touched by her sad plight, took up her case, with the result that this great Court of the Empire in Downing street heard the plea for a poor widow thousands of miles overseas. They gave her her compensation and her costs.

The very delicate question of native and religious etiquette involved in titles to access to a temple of Shiva, the jewelled goddess; a rivalry between a yellow god and a red god, and even the destiny of a throne, have been the strange subjects brought before this romantic Court.

If litigants have come to London doubtful of the ability of Britannia in Downing street to understand their curious grievances, they have invariably gone home well content. This romantic Court has been a great peace-maker among the children of the Empire.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENTS IN THE SENATE.

NEW METHOD OF ASSESSING INCOME TAX.

RELIEF FOR "FLAPPER" RACE MEETINGS.

Mr. T. WESTROPP BENNETT, Deputy Chairman, presided at the meeting of the Irish Free State Senate yesterday.

FORESTRY BILL.

The debate on the second reading of the Forestry Bill was resumed.

Mr. T. W. KENNY approved of the bill in a general way, because it would have the effect of preserving the trees in the country, but he urged that if a man who owned trees wished to cut them down, and was not allowed to do so, he ought to be given the right to seek compensation for the intervention on the part of the Government department.

Mr. HOGAN, Minister for Agriculture, in explaining the objects of the bill, said that it was admitted that there must be some limit to the felling of trees in this country. The quantity of timber in this country was one per cent., while it was twenty per cent. elsewhere. He knew of no other way of preventing the cutting down of trees than that of giving someone the necessary power, and there was no more suitable body for that purpose than the Department of Agriculture.

MINISTER'S SUGGESTION.

They might be more successful in the matter of preventing wanton cutting under this bill for the reason that they could not interpret the bill strictly, as it would mean flooding the country with inspectors, but from the felling notices for which provision was made in the bill they would receive information which they had never had before. He would like the House to give the bill a second reading, and, if necessary, they could postpone it until the autumn, by which time Senators would thoroughly understand the bill.

Sir WALTER NUGENT said that he hoped the bill would not be postponed, as, in his opinion, it was a very necessary measure. He hoped the bill would be put into operation speedily.

Mr. HAUGHTON said that the bill would not only be welcomed by those in the saw milling trade, but also by the country generally. He objected to the criticism directed towards the trade as if they were engaged in wanton cutting of trees. It was not wanton cutting, but cutting for a purpose. He thought that there should be remission of taxation for farmers who planted their lands with trees. He suggested that the question of orchards should be borne in mind.

Sir NUGENT EVERARD, having suggested certain variations in the detail of the bill,

The second reading was carried.

The further consideration of the bill was postponed to the autumn session.

The committee stages of the Slaughtered Animals (Compensation) Bill and Telegraph Bill were passed without discussion.

GAS REGULATION BILL.

On the report stage of the Gas Regulation Bill,

Mr. BROWN, K.C., moved, on behalf of Mr. Douglas, the deletion of sub-section 2 of Section 5, and the substitution for it of the following new sub-section:—"Every buyer of gas, after the expiration of nine years, shall have the right to demand of the (gas) undertaking that the meter, by means of which such gas is measured, shall be re-stamped according to law after the expiration of ten years from the last occasion on which it was duly stamped."

Mr. McGILLIGAN, Minsifer for Industry and Commerce, said that the bill had been fully discussed, and in a non-party spirit, by the Dail, all the members of which were of opinion that every meter, whether questioned or not, should be tested and stamped every ten years. The Dail was alive to the situation which the present amendment was designed to meet, but the deputies held that if such amendment were carried it would mean that, unless the consumer was sufficiently alive to his own interests, and willing to risk some expense, he might have a faulty meter for many years. On examination of the existing situation it would be found that the amendment which he intended to move—making examination compulsory every ten years—was merely making obligatory what was the general practice amongst all the best gas companies—in fact, all the best companies had their meters tested in a period somewhat less than ten years.

The amendment was rejected.

TESTING OF METERS.

Mr. McGILLIGAN then moved his amendment, which was in the following terms:—

"(1) A buyer of gas supplied by means of a meter installed on premises in an area in which the jurisdiction conferred by the Act of 1859 is for the time being not exercisable may, unless such meter has been stamped by a special inspector of meters under Section 6 (which relates to the stamping of meters in areas in which the Act of 1859 is not in force) of this Act, by notice in writing require the person by whom such gas is so supplied to remove such meter from such premises and procure the same to be tested by an inspector of meters appointed by a local authority under the Act of 1859, and, if found correct, to be stamped under that Act, as amended by this Act accordingly.

"(2) If on the testing of a meter pursuant to a requisition under this section such meter is found to be correct the expenses of the removal, testing and stamping of such meter pursuant to such requisition shall be borne by the buyer by whom such requisition was made, and in every other case such expenses shall be borne by the person on whom such requisition is made."

The amendment was agreed to, and the report stage of the bill was passed.

AN INCOME TAX INNOVATION.

ASSESSMENT ON PREVIOUS YEAR'S ACTUAL INCOME.

The Committee stage of the Finance Bill was taken, and

Mr. LINEHAN moved to insert a new clause as follows:—"The annual value of lands which were previously subject to a purchase annuity payable under the Land Purchase (Ireland) Acts or any of them, but which annuity has since been redeemed, shall for the purposes of Schedule B be taken to be the first or original annuity payable before redemption, if such original annuity is less than the Poor Law Valuation."

The object of the clause was, he said, to place tenants who had redeemed their annuities in the same position as they were in before the redemption, because the income from the farm had not changed after the redemption. In the present state of the law, when the purchase money had been redeemed the assessment for income tax was increased from the figure of the annuity to that of the Poor Law valuation, which, in most cases, was a considerable increase, and, that being so, it would deter the farmer from redeeming the purchase money. He thought that it would be for the benefit of the country if his recommendation were adopted.

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, said that in practice the recommendation would give a farmer who had redeemed his annuity an advantage over his neighbour, and he did not think that it would work out satisfactorily in assessing the tax.

Mr. LINEHAN withdrew his amendment.

Sir JOHN KEANE moved a recommendation that "Income tax for any year shall be assessed upon the actual income accruing in the previous year." He said that in Great Britain the three-years' average had been dropped, and the method he now recommended had been adopted. There was a demand from the taxpayer here that this should be done, as the present method was very inconvenient to the taxpayer. It was difficult for most taxpayers to state in advance what their income would be, and it was largely a matter of guesswork. In cases of double income tax, the whole matter had to be reopened at the end of the year. He urged that his amendment would save a good deal of work in the Revenue Department.

BUSINESSES DESTROYED.

Mr. DOWDALL said that if this were adopted allowance should be be made for businesses that had been destroyed in recent years and which had been resumed only a year or two ago.

The MINISTER for FINANCE said that the Government's view was that the change made in Great Britain was on the whole a desirable change, and their intention was to follow it. Whether they would do that simply, or try and accompany it with further changes, he was not yet in a position to say. If they had an opportunity of putting an experienced staff on to the work of revision of the whole code of income tax he believed they could simplify it considerably. He hoped to start the revision this year, but how soon they could make substantial changes he could not say at the moment.

He appreciated the point made by Mr. Dowdall, but the Senator would realise the difficulty of making the allowance he suggested. Such a change would be found to affect some businesses adversely. If they were going to make the change it would have to be made in a year when all the indications pointed to the likelihood of being able to make it smoothly.

Mr. DOWDALL said that he would refer the Minister to the specific case of the Gresham Hotel, which, he said, had resulted in heavy interest charges after its burning on the amount borrowed to re-establish it. Yet the Minister coolly proposed—when he had insisted on the three years' period when the business was down and out—that it should come into the general pool and have no exemption made for income tax in the future. That was not only injustice, but robbery.

The amendment was withdrawn.

Sir JOHN KEANE moved a new section: "In no case shall both super-tax and sur-tax be charged on the income of one and the same year." He said that he would like to have an explanation from the Minister as to how this thing was going to work.

The Minister said that sur-tax was chargeable in exactly the same way as super-tax.

Sir JOHN KEANE withdrew his amendment.

MEDICATED WINES.

MR. BLYTHE TALKS OF A POSSIBLE BAN.

Mr. MacKEAN moved together two amendments to Section 22, by which he sought to substitute the words "rectified and medicated wines" for the word "wine" as a subject of duty on importation, and that "five shillings" instead of "one shilling" be the rate of duty per gallon on articles containing sugar or other sweetening matter.

The mineral water industry, said Mr. MacKean, was in a very precarious position, and within twelve months five companies had amalgamated in order to cut overhead expenses, with the result that a number of employés with many years of faithful service had been dismissed. The imposition of the additional taxes proposed by him would be of the greatest assistance.

Mr. BLYTHE, replying, said that he was unable to connect the case of medicated wines with home industry. As for mineral waters, they enjoyed already a protection amounting to between 3d. and 4d. a gallon. He would not be inclined to increase that. A case might be made for prohibition of the sale or importation of medicated wines, since, in this connection, there were opportunities for fraud, wines being represented to possess properties which, in fact, they did not possess.

He did not know whether the medical profession would take that view, but it was a point whether the importation of these medicated wines might not be stopped either as a matter of public health or to save the public from paying excessive prices. That, however, would bring them up against the whole difficulty of patent medicines, and the question really did not arise on the Finance Bill; it should be considered in connection with public health.

Mr. MacKean withdrew his amendments.

ENTERTAINMENT TAX.

REMISSION ON "FLAPPER" RACE MEETINGS.

Mr. J. T. O'Farrell moved an amendment proposing the abolition of the entertainment tax on what are known as "flapper" race meetings. The tax on "flapper" meetings, he said, amounted only to about £100 every year, and really did not pay for the cost of its collection.

Mr. Blythe smilingly announced that he found himself in the position of asking the Senate to accept a proposal which, on his advice, the Dail had rejected. It was true that the amount obtained from this tax was trifling, and he would ask the Senate to accept Mr. O'Farrell's amendment. This would enable him to ask the Dail to reconsider its decision.

The amendment was unanimously accepted.

The Committee stage of the bill was agreed to without a division.

DENTISTS BILL PASSED.

On the Report Stage of the Dentists Bill, Mr. McGilligan, the Minister in charge of the measure, moved a new section providing that Section 28 (2) shall apply to any person who was a citizen of the Free State on the 1st January, 1928; was 21 years old on 31st December, 1921; earned his living by dentistry in the Free State for seven years preceding the passage of the Act (as a dental mechanic or otherwise); and had not been guilty of conduct which would have caused a registered dentist to be removed from the register. The new section also sets out the examinations to be passed and makes other regulations.

The section was agreed to, and a few consequential amendments were passed without discussion.

On the motion of Mr. O'Hanlon, seconded by Mr. J. T. O'Farrell, the Standing Orders were suspended to enable the fifth stage to be taken, and the bill was passed.

The House adjourned until 3 p.m. on Tuesday next.

INDEPENDENT UNIONISTS CRITICISED.

Mr. Rowley Elliott, M.P., and Mr. J. C. Crossle, County Grand Master of Tyrone Orangemen, had some caustic things to say about Independent Unionists at the opening of an Orange Hall at Glenagearagh, near Augher, on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Elliott said that if they were to judge by the records of Independents in the Northern House of Commons, where on almost every occasion they were in the Opposition lobby with the Socialists and Nationalists, they failed to see where their independence came in, as one had either to be on the side of the Government or against it. They could have in their Northern Parliament only those in sympathy with, and those opposed to, the Government. He had no love for Independents, as an Independent was a person in whom no one could have any dependence whatever.

Mr. Crossle said that the Independent Unionist was a person independent of Unionism, and who invariably voted with the other side. He appealed to the Orangemen not to pay any attention to those—some of whom, unfortunately, were in their ranks—who advocated Independent Unionism.

INCORPORATED ORTHOPÆDIC HOSPITAL OF IRELAND.

IN THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

Ireland and the Olympic Games: The Quarrel about a Flag: Northern Swimmers' Decision: The Unemployed: A Surprising Circumstance.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

BELFAST, Thursday.

AN unpleasant situation has arisen in connection with the Irish arrangements for the forthcoming Olympic Games at Amsterdam. The Northern athletes refuse to compete under the Free State flag, which is the symbol chosen to represent all Ireland. Even in sport they will not march under the tricolour, and no doubt they have a grievance which, however, seems to have been unavoidable. The difficulty is that the Southern flag is the only official Irish national emblem, and the Northerners in such a case are like orphans left out in the cold. Their flag is the Union Jack, but they are not permitted to share the glory of its folds in international competitions because they are Irishmen, and Englishmen and Scotsmen will uphold its honour. The difference of opinion that exists is very serious, and it may be that the Ulster representatives will retire altogether from the contests. It was suggested some time ago that the ancient flag of Ireland should have been substituted for the tricolour, but nothing came of it. The subject was discussed at a meeting of the District Council of the I.A.S.A., in Belfast, at the beginning of the week, and it was proposed that the Ulster swimmers withdraw from the trials altogether if the flag question is not satisfactorily settled. It appeared in this connection that the Irish Olympic Council had been approached for information, but it was stated by the secretary that there had been significant silence in Dublin and he was not hopeful as to the result.

THE NORTH OFFENDED.

Umbrage has been taken also at a letter received from Dr. Beckett, of Dublin, one of the selectors. Relative to the selection of a water polo team to represent Ireland, he wrote suggesting that, with the agreement of the Ulster selectors, he should nominate, say, ten Leinster players; or, if that were too many, one goalkeeper and eight "out" players, to take part in the final trial at the Belfast Waterworks on Saturday afternoon next, while the Ulster selectors should nominate their own men for the other positions. That was bad enough, but as usual the real sting was in the tail. "In view of the marked superiority our men have always shown in open water," Dr. Beckett went on to say, "I do not think that this can be regarded as an unfair or unreasonable division," adding that they must have open water players for the Olympic matches, and that it was futile to select men on their form in the indoor baths. Dr. Beckett's plain speaking was strongly resented, and Mr. J. Goss, the vice-president, said that the whole position was very disappointing, and it seemed to him that the claims of the Ulster swimmers were being deliberately shelved. Personally, he looked upon that letter as an insult to the district. After some further discussion, in which Northern superiority over Southern rivals was asserted, it was decided to select seven polo players, and four swimmers for each of the racing events to represent Ulster, and to leave the Leinster section to make a similar selection. It was also understood that if the flag problem cannot be solved, the Northern representatives will be withdrawn. The trials at Belfast Waterworks on Saturday should be of more than usual interest.

PROSPERITY IN DIFFICULTIES.

It would appear, from a statement made at the last meeting of Belfast Corporation, that the tramways undertaking is by no means in the hopeless condition it was imagined to be, and that instead of being worked at a loss, it has been earning a substantial profit. There have been times of panic when even members of the Tramways Committee ran about saying that they were losing £500 per week, but it seems that when both lean and fat periods are considered, the overplus of credit is very considerable. Moreover, there is a certain element in Belfast which thinks that the Corporation can do no good and magnifies every fault. Councillor Malcolm, who drew attention to the matter, quoted from the financial report, and said that the trams still continued to pay their way very satisfactorily and to place a reasonable amount to the reserve account. During the past three years, he said, a profit of £60,800 had been earned, while the undertaking had paid over to the Electricity Department during the same period the huge sum of £186,556.

A proposal has been put forward to revise the fares, lengthen the stages, and improve the service, while special steps are being taken to cope with 'bus competition. A somewhat Gilbertian situation has developed in connection with Bellevue, the beautiful mountain garden at Cavehill. The Tramway Committee engages well-known cross-Channel and local bands to attract visitors during their performances on the plateau, so that the tramway service there may prosper and fill the municipal coffers; but the 'buses are "nipping" in and capturing a large share of the increased traffic encouraged by the enterprise of the Corporation. Measures are to be taken by the Council to combat this kind of competition, which, after all, must be galling to those who pay the piper. Much is expected from the new manager, Mr. William Chamberlain, and it is hoped that he will repeat in Belfast the remarkable success he achieved with the Leeds tramways undertaking.

ABUSE FOR INDEPENDENTS.

The unfortunate Independent Unionists are once more coming in for a share of that abuse which continued usage has made, as it were, their right. The County Tyrone Orangemen have not always been too friendly with the Government, but the Grand Master the other day spoke in condemnation of Independent Unionism as tending to promote a policy which would lead to the handing over of the Government of Northern Ireland to the Separatists. The season is favourable for this kind of talk, and when the fever of next week is passed everyone will be more charitable in his opinions. Even Mr. Rowley Elliott, M.P., one of the mildest-mannered of men, declared at the same meeting that an Independent was one in whom no dependence could be placed whatever. He evidently claims all the virtues for the official Unionists; for he advises everyone to vote for no candidate who is not officially appointed as a standard-bearer for the party in power. How is it that a man who has the courage to express an independent political opinion becomes anathema with those in high places? A noticeable feature is that no references are being made to the Ulster Liberal Party, which, of course, cannot be accused of disloyalty to the Empire or a desire to unite with the Free State; yet it is probably in this direction that much of the danger will lie.

SURPRISING CIRCUMSTANCE.

Since the beginning of the year the unemployment figures in Northern Ireland have increased by many thousands, and it, therefore, seems strange that various schemes already approved of by the Ministry of Labour have not yet been put into operation. This rather surprising circumstance came to light at the meeting of the Corporation this week, when a letter was read from the Ministry asking that the schemes referred to be expedited as much as possible with a view to relieving unemployment in the city. The Lord Mayor mentioned that he had been speaking to Mr. Andrews, the Minister of Labour, who had urged on him the importance of getting approved projects started without delay, but the official answer was that everything that was possible was being done in the circumstances, while several councillors obscured the issue by declaring that the Ministry of Labour should carry out these schemes, and not the Corporation. That is, in this particular case, only so much foolish talk. The essential point is that these schemes have been passed, and it is the duty of the Council to get them under way with the utmost despatch.

According to Mr. Andrews, work has been provided for men who are crying out for employment, but cannot get it. If the system of organisation requires to be strengthened, then let it be done. It seems almost incredible that bread should be within reach of workless men, but that through some reason or another they are not allowed to earn it, and Mr. Andrew's reminder was badly needed. Councillor Thomas Henderson, M.P., blamed the Government for putting such work on the shoulders of the Council, and said that the Ministry would never mend its method in that respect so long as the Board of Guardians could get men to work at Whitewell for four coupons a week—a system he has frequently condemned as "slavery." It would be more in keeping with sensible administration if he and his colleagues made the most of the opportunities at their disposal.

GREENOCK-BUILT TUG FOR BELFAST

It was intimated at the meeting of the Belfast Harbour Commissioners on Tuesday last that a tug which is being built for the Board by Messrs. George Brown and Co., of Greenock, to replace the steam tug Lagan, is now ready for launching. This statement has caused a good deal of comment, as the general public are ignorant of the reasons responsible for sending away an order when work was so urgently needed in Belfast. The great "Queen's Island" is only across the river from the Harbour offices, and one would have thought that an arrangement might have been made to have the tug built at home. On the other hand, the Commissioners have done all in their power to provide employment by putting relief schemes into operation, by the reclaiming of lands and by improvements generally along the quays perfecting their property, and providing the additional accommodation required for the ever-increasing traffic of the port. The new tug is to be named after Mrs. R. E. Herdman, wife of the Chairman of the Commissioners.

THE GLORY OF LANGUAGE.

The proceedings of Belfast Corporation are frequently enlivened by the picturesque speeches of Councillor Pierce, the Independent Unionist member for Mountpottinger. These incidents stand out in pleasant contrast to the acrimonious discussions which frequently resound throughout the council chamber, and they show that this councillor has a wonderful gift of eloquence and language. Speaking at the last meeting of the Council, he reduced his opponents to a state of helplessness by the following brilliant verbal shaft:—"If the volume of oratory from the melting pot of my psychological storehouse of knowledge has overcome and clouded the perceptions of the elementary minds of some in this house——" the remainder of the sentence was lost in a storm of hilarity. The coveted quality of imagination in Northern Ireland has by no means disappeared.

QUESTIONS IN THE DAIL.

LEGISLATION TO DEAL WITH TOWN TENANTS.

In Dail Eireann yesterday,

President COSGRAVE, answering Mr. A. Byrne (Independent, Dublin North), said that no decision had yet been reached as to the precise nature of the legislation which would be promoted by the Government to deal with town tenants. It was the definite intention of the Government to introduce legislation of the kind, but he could not at that stage indicate when the appropriate bill was likely to be ready.

Mr. BYRNE asked the President if anything could be done to prevent the landlords of small shops taking steps now to evict the tenants, so that they would not get the benefit of the proposed legislation as a result of the report of the Town Tenants' Commission.

President COSGRAVE said that if the deputy would communicate with him he would consider what could be done.

RAID IN MARLBOROUGH ROAD.

Mr. LEMASS (F.F., Dublin City) asked the Minister for Justice whether Mr. Peadar O'Donnell's office at 39 Marlborough road was raided and searched by members of the Civic Guard on the previous day; what was the object of the raid, and whether anything incriminating was found as a result of the search?

The MINISTER for JUSTICE said that the house, 39 Marlborough road, had been raided and searched on the previous day on a warrant, and the object was to search for treasonable documents, which were suspected to be on the premises.

Mr. DE VALERA said that it was obvious that this was a case of persecution. Surely a man searched 14 times for documents would not carry them around.

The MINISTER—There may not always be an opportunity of getting rid of documents.

RELIEF SCHEMES.

Answering Mr. A. J. Cassidy (Lab., Donegal),

President COSGRAVE said that it was not proposed to introduce a supplementary estimate for relief schemes prior to the adjournment of the Dail for the summer recess.

On the adjournment, Mr. CASSIDY raised the matter again.

The MINISTER FOR FINANCE said that it was impossible to deal with the problem of unemployment by relief schemes which were not productive. At the best they only touched the fringe, and were purely temporary palliatives. Additional taxation for relief would create further unemployment. Something better could be done by definite schemes of construction, such as expenditure on housing, drainage, roads, and other schemes. It would be better if they had more attention given by all deputies to the thinking-out of constructive schemes. He did not know if anything would come out of the Housing Conference, but in any case they would have a housing bill in the autumn, which would contemplate a longer programme than any of those yet introduced.

Mr. MORRISSEY (Lab., Tipperary) asked would it be possible to introduce the bill before the Recess, so that people might be making preparations.

Mr. BLYTHE did not think they could, because they had to consider the scale of subsidies. In order that the money might go further they wanted to go carefully into what was the least subsidy that would cause building operations to be continued.

DAME GRACE PONTIFEX'S WILL.

Dame Grace Pontifex, who died in London on January 30th last, widow of Sir Charles Pontifex, and daughter of Mr. James Cooper, of Cooper Hill, Clarina, County Limerick, left unsettled estate of the value of £35,531, with net personalty £35,177. She left £50 to the Distressed Irish Ladies' Fund.

DESTROYED CASTLE IN KERRY.

AWARD TO BE SPENT IN DUBLIN.

How a compensation award in respect of the destruction of a castle in County Kerry is to be utilised to build houses in Dublin, is outlined in a report which will be submitted by Dr. Dwyer, Dublin City Commissioner, to a meeting of the Commissioners to-morrow.

It is pointed out in the report that under the Damage to Property (Compensation) Act, 1923, an award of £24,958 10s. has been made in respect of the destruction of Derryquin Castle, County Kerry, subject to a partial reinstatement clause in pursuance of Section 10 of the Act.

"Colonel Warden, the owner of Derryquin Castle," says Dr. O'Dwyer in his report, "approached the Corporation of Dublin with a view to disposing of his interest in the award. With the object of applying it to the erection of houses on the Marino and Croydon Park Housing Area, I offered to purchase the award for the sum of £18,968 10s., and Colonel Warden has accepted this offer.

"An order has been obtained from the Circuit Court Judge in Tralee, authorising the amount of the award to be expended on the erection of not less than twenty-six residential houses on sites on Griffith avenue, Clontarf, or on other sites associated with the Marino and Croydon Park Housing Scheme."

It is added that the Minister for Local Government and Public Health has given his approval to the purchase of the award on the terms arranged.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Dublin Presbytery met on Tuesday evening in the Church House, the Moderator, the Rev. Dr. McKee, presiding.

Mr. Gordon Clements introduced the question of establishing a Choral Union, composed of the choirs of the churches in the city and suburbs. The idea was welcomed, and it was decided to call a conference of the organists and precentors to consider the matter and submit a report to the October meeting of the Presbytery.

The report of the Presbytery's City Mission was submitted by Mr. Morrow, in the absence of the convener, and showed that the work in both North Strand and Whitefriars street had been carried on with success.

THE CRIME OF PERJURY.

DENOUNCED BY DISTRICT JUSTICE.

At Drumkeeran (Co. Leitrim) District Court, the Guards made reports on cases which had been previously brought before the Court by them, and in which the defendants made certain excuses.

Justice Rice dealing with one case where a woman was involved said:—"Perjury of the grossest kind has been committed in connection with this case, so gross as to appal me in the contemplation of it. Because, evil as is this crime when committed by a man, it is equally evil, but far more loathsome when a woman is the criminal. Personally, I would prefer, much prefer a woman abandoned to the sad and unhappy fate of the streets to a woman who deliberately attempts to ruin her neighbour by wilful perjury in the witness box. The one sins in darkness and in secrecy; the other blazons forth her sin before the world, and calls upon God to witness it. The one is human and deserves commiseration and forgiveness; the other is satanic and deserves neither."

"My remarks," he concluded, "though strong, are not strong enough for the infamous crime to which I allude."

Ronald Calver, aged 16, of Saxmundham, was drowned while bathing at Sizewell (Suffolk) yesterday with his schoolmates, one of whom nearly lost his life in a rescue attempt.

BIG AMERICAN SCHEME.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

It was reported in financial circles to-day that the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Radio Corporation are contemplating a scheme to link up the important cities of the United States with the new system of wireless telephone and telegraph service of the beam type, and that the new service is expected to be in use within a year.

It is understood that the Radio Corporation has already placed orders for new equipment.

WEATHER FORECAST

General Inference.—A depression centred off North-West Scotland is moving slowly east-north-east, and becoming less deep. Winds will be westerly and weather showery, but with considerable bright intervals.

Ireland, North-West, North-East.—Winds south-west to west or north-west, fresh to strong at times; bright periods, but occasional local thundery showers; moderate temperature.

Ireland, South-East, South-West.—Wind south-west to west, mainly moderate to fresh; occasional rain, then bright and showery periods; moderate temperature.

Irish Sea, crossings from Holyhead, Heysham and Stranraer, Glasgow, Ardrossan and Liverpool; St. George's Channel, crossing from Fishguard.—Westerly winds, fresh locally; showery and bright intervals; visibility mainly moderate to good, but some local mist at first; sea slight to moderate.

NEW HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR PALESTINE.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL J. R. CHANCELLOR.

It is officially announced that the King has approved the appointment of Sir John Robert Chancellor, G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., D.S.O., to be His Majesty's High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief for Palestine, and High Commissioner for Trans-Jordan, in the place of Field-Marshal Lord Plumer, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., G.B.E., whose tenure of these offices shortly will cease.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir John Robert Chancellor has been Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Southern Rhodesia since 1923. He entered the Royal Engineers from the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, in 1890, and saw service in the Dongola expedition, 1896; the Tirah expedition, 1897 to 1898; was present at the captures of the Dargai Heights, of Sampagha Pass, and of Arhanga Pass, and took part in the operations in Bara Valley, 1897, being mentioned in despatches, and awarded the medal with three clasps and the D.S.O. In 1903 he was Staff Captain in the Intelligence Department of the War Office. He was appointed Assistant Military Secretary to the Committee of Imperial Defence in 1904, and Secretary to the Colonial Defence Committee in 1906, and he has been Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Mauritius, and of Trinidad and Tobago.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

The Bremen airmen leave Dublin this morning for Doorn, where they will dine with the ex-Kaiser.—(Page 9.)

Having sworn that the child was killed by her grandmother, who had the body hidden, and gave her £1 "not to tell," Hannah Lenihan, a young domestic servant, was acquitted in the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday, of the murder of her unnamed female child at Mintine, near Kanturk, Co. Cork, on the 18th January last.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Captain Alfred Loewenstein, the well-known financier, fell out of an aeroplane while flying from England to Belgium.—(Page 7.)

The Conservative candidate, Commander A. R. J. Southby, has been returned for Epsom by a large majority.—(Page 6.)

Two women and a man were killed in a remarkable motoring accident on the Oxford-Faringdon road at Blackwater, Berkshire, yesterday evening. Their car ran into a wire hawser stretched across the road, and all of them were killed instantly.—(Page 8.)

The Press Association's Lobby Correspondent states that the members of the Savidge Tribunal have failed to compose their differences on the more important issues, and consequently majority and minority reports will be presented.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING.

At Bellewstown yesterday Orby's Beau won the Crockafotha Plate, Southern Witch the Leggan Hall Plate, Striped Silk the King's Plate, Lisworney the Stewards' Plate, Brushlight the Corporation Plate, and Bathoi the Shallon Plate.—(Page 12.)

At Worcester Bemax won the Midsummer Plate.—(Page 12.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets were overshadowed yesterday by the collapse of the International Holdings group on the death of Captain Loewenstein. The final prices showed some recovery from the lowest.—(Page 10.)

Money was comfortable in Lombard street at 3 per cent., and discount rates were steady.—(Page 11.)

In Dublin Guinness Shares were sold down to 40⅛, but on buying from London there was a sharp rise to 41⅞, with 42½ paid after hours. Bank of Ireland Stock was strong, and Dublin Trams rallied slightly.—(Page 10.)

A Council of Industry.

With a single dissentient—Mr. A. J. Cook—the Conference on Industrial Reorganisation and Industrial Relations in Great Britain has approved the report of a joint sub-committee on the work that has been done during the last six months. This conference came into being last January, when, on the initiative of Sir Alfred Mond (who is now Lord Melchett), certain representatives of British employers met representatives of organised labour with a view to the discovery of a plan to promote peace in industry. Lord Melchett secured the co-operation of several of his fellow-employers, acting in purely individual capacities, and a series of ten meetings was held. The Committee's report proposes the establishment of a National Industrial Council. This body would consist of the General Council of the Trade Union Congress, representing Labour, and delegates from the Federation of British Industries and the National Confederation of Employers' Organisations, representing the employers. The report suggests that this joint Council shall establish machinery for the prevention of industrial disputes under the direction of a Joint Standing Committee. It suggests, furthermore, that the Council shall meet at regular intervals "for general consultation." The Committee desires no interference with existing machinery for the regulation of disputes. On the contrary, it declares, this machinery ought to be strengthened with a view to the lightening of the National Industrial Council's work.

The reception of these proposals will be awaited anxiously. Lord Melchett and his colleagues have been acting entirely on their own responsibility. They represent many millions of pounds of invested capital; but hitherto neither the National Confederation of Employers' Organisations nor the Federation of British Industries has given any official sanction to the proceedings of the conference. We have little doubt, however, that, now that masters and men have arrived at an agreement, the employers' organisations will not hesitate to give it their blessing. They have everything to gain and nothing to lose by the hastening of industrial peace. If a National Industrial Council, with a standing Joint Committee, can be formed, a very big step will have been taken towards this end. It is true that compulsory arbitration is impossible. If the members of any particular industry resolve to have a fight, they will have it, despite the Industrial Council, however strong it may be; but the value of such an organisation lies in the element of delay that it involves. If there had been a National Industrial Council in 1926, there never would have been a general strike, because the miners would not have been able to stampede their comrades of other industries. We do not suppose that the new Council, if it is formed, will abolish trade disputes; but it will reduce their number and will make them less dangerous.

The good sense of the British people probably will carry the new movement to a successful conclusion. In the meanwhile the Irish Free State has done very little to bring about a permanent understanding between masters and men. A National Industrial Council is needed badly in the Saorstát. At present the machinery for industrial conciliation is very inadequate, and it is high time that something should be done to improve and extend it. Fortunately, the Free State has suffered very slightly from strikes during the last few years. The relations between Capital and Labour are reasonably good, but there is no constructive platform on which both can stand together. Several attempts have been made to secure a round-table conference between employers and workers. Something, however, invariably seems to happen at the last moment to thwart the scheme, and, while there is no actual trouble, masters and men remain at arms' length. The example of Lord Melchett's conference in England ought to be followed in the Free State without delay. There may be few men of the Melchett stamp in the Saorstát: indeed, we fear that Irish business men have not distinguished themselves by their imaginative powers. Nevertheless, most of them can see as far through a stone wall as anybody else, and there is no doubt at all that a conference between Capital and Labour is long overdue. We are sure that organised Labour would welcome such a scheme. At any rate, nothing can be lost by a trial, and the man who takes the initiative will do a splendid day's work for Ireland.

Prospects in China.

The Nanking Government is now the supreme authority in Chinese affairs, and Great Britain is pledged to discuss a revision of the foreign treaties with any Government that can speak for the whole country. We are sure that Sir Austen Chamberlain would keep his word gladly, but he may prefer to wait upon the developments of the next few weeks in Northern China. The situation there, as described by the Peking Correspondent of The Times, appears to be not less difficult than interesting. Three war lords carried the Southern banners triumphantly through the Northern provinces, and now they are engaged, after the Chinese fashion, in a division of the spoils. Yen Shi-shan, the well-esteemed dictator of the Shansi Province, is in actual occupation of Peking. He is a Northerner and has no sympathies with Communism. Feng Yu-hsiang, the jealous and masterful "Christian General," has trafficked with Moscow for his own ends, but he also is a Northerner and no Communist. Chiang Kai-shek, whom the other two summoned to their aid against the late Chang Tso-lin, commands forces that, being wholly Southern, coalesce badly with their Northern allies. Yen Shi-shan and Feng Yu-hsiang are rivals for the possession of Peking. Nominally, that city has ceased to be the capital of China, but it has great traditions and great wealth, and it holds the Legations of all the foreign Powers. Dublin would retain political importance even if the seat of national government should be transferred to Cork or Limerick. So the Governor of Chihli, established at Peking and controlling the port of Tientsin, must be an outstanding figure in the new China. "Who is to have Peking?" asks the Correspondent of The Times—"Yen or Feng? And when one has it, what is the other to get?" Furthermore, will the master of Peking be content to remain the nominee of Nanking and a faithful supporter of the Nationalist Government? It is said that, by agreement between the two leaders, Yen Shi-shan was to take Peking (which he now occupies), and that Feng Yu-hsiang was to have four rich provinces, including Shantung. The Japanese, however, are in Shantung, and, by way of compensation, Feng now covets Tientsin, the almost indispensable port of Peking. Here is ample material for a new quarrel between men who, two years ago, were engaged in fierce conflict. Even if we assume that all the military leaders will come to terms, and that the Nanking Government will be able to satisfy the British definition of a united China, the revision of the treaties will present serious difficulties. In the first place, Nanking will demand largely increased tariffs on foreign trade, but certainly will be unable to furnish any guarantees for the abolition of irregular taxation within the provinces. In the next place, Britain will be expected to acquiesce in the removal of extra-territorial privileges, although protection of the persons and property of foreigners remains beyond the power of any Chinese authority. The Correspondent of The Times concludes his review with the statement that Japan is the dominant factor in the Chinese situation, and that the whole question of the treaties and the degree in which they may be revised depends upon her attitude.

Roger Bacon.

The thirteenth century Franciscan friar, Roger Bacon, is best remembered as the contriver of the magnifying glass. He was also, in some measure, a pioneer of modern empiric science. Mr. A. G. Little, delivering this year's "Master Mind Lecture" at a meeting of the British Academy on Wednesday, said that it was Bacon's estimation of the sciences, according to their utility in human life, that led to the revaluation of mediæval knowledge. Bacon held that all science was contained in the Holy Scriptures, and accordingly he insisted on the importance of an accurate test. He enunciated the principles of textual criticism, and demanded the appointment of an authoritative Papal Commission to establish the text of the Bible. After more than five hundred years the Vatican Commission on the Vulgate is carrying out his plan. He expected the early manifestation of Anti-Christ in human form, and proposed that Anti-Christ should be resisted by means of contrivances of burning glasses, flying machines, submarines, tanks and gunpowder—for he knew how an explosive substance could be compounded of sulphur, saltpetre and charcoal. His genius was whimsical. To-day he would be called "a crank." For all his ingenuity in the natural sciences and his sagacity in textual criticism, he cherished extravagant superstitions. He believed in the "Philosopher's Stone" that could transmute all metals into gold. He was so convinced of the truth of astrology that he condemned the practice of being bled on Saturday—the eve of the day of rest. Saturday, he argued, came under the malign influence of Saturn, and, therefore, was an unfitting day for dangerous operations. It is not remarkable, therefore, that Bacon fell foul of his ecclesiastical superiors. For some years his extravagances brought him into prison. Nevertheless, it was from these very extravagances, as from wild guessing, that he advanced the bounds of thought. His astrological fantasies, for example, caused him to assert the curative value of selected rays of light. His career shows how the brilliant intuition of a mediæval mind could make discoveries in Nature's book. Aptly was he called the doctor mirabilis.

The Cuckoo.

How does the cuckoo's egg find its way to strangers' nests? The mystery, declares Mr. Oliver G. Pike, who writes on the subject in the Daily Telegraph, has been solved finally by the spying eye of the cinematograph. Formerly it was supposed that the cuckoo laid her egg upon the ground, picked it up with her beak, and flew with it to the selected nest. Some time ago Mr. Edgar Chance published a book, "The Cuckoo's Secret," in which he affirmed that he had found by ocular observation that cuckoos laid their eggs direct into the nests. This reversal of traditional belief was resisted strongly. Opponents of Mr. Chance's theory asked how the cuckoo could lay eggs in so fragile a nest as the reed warbler's, or in the domed nests of the wren and the chiff-chaff. Now Mr. Pike, working in conjunction with Mr. Chance, has proved Mr. Chance's case. "Together we produced a cinema film, which proved beyond every shadow of doubt that the cuckoos that we filmed laid their eggs into the nests after stealing one of the original eggs. A wonderful slow motion film was obtained, which showed every detail of the cuckoo arriving, stealing the egg, and laying her egg in its place, afterwards flying off with the stolen egg, which she retained in her beak while laying." The cuckoo has been observed laying in the nests of the tree pipit, the rock pipit, the meadow pipit, the yellow hammer, the pied wagtail and the reed warbler. Moreover, Mr. Pike cites circumstantial evidence to prove a case of laying by the cuckoo in the nest of a hedge-sparrow. As for the stolen eggs, the cuckoo shows herself an economical bird; for she devours them.

GERMAN CONSUL-GENERAL'S GARDEN PARTY.

The German Consul-General to the Free State, Dr. Georg von Dehn, gave a garden party at his residence, 58 Northumberland road, Dublin, in honour of the men of the Bremen. The weather was excellent, and there was a large attendance. Dr. von Dehn received the guests, who were presented to Baron von Huenefeld and his two companions.

Among those present were:—The President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State, the Minister for External Affairs, the Minister for Defence, the Minister for Fisheries and Mrs. Lynch, Miss Lynch, the Parliamentary Secretary to the President and Mrs. Duggan, Mrs. Blythe, Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, Mrs. Fitzmaurice, the Marquis and the Marchioness MacSwiney, Sir Philip and Lady Hanson, Lieutenant-General and Mrs. McMahon, Lieutenant-General and Mrs. Hogan, Major-General and Mrs. MacNeill, Major-General and Mrs. Cronin, Major-General and Mrs. MacEoin, Major-General and Mrs. Sweeney, the Provost of Trinity College and Mrs. Gwynn, the President of the University College and Mrs. Coffey, Commissioner-General O'Duffy, Deputy Commissioner and Mrs. Murphy, Senator Barniville, Mrs. James Douglas, Commissioner and Mrs. S. THE LANE PICTURES AND THE NEW GALLERY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—As time goes on how freshly evident every day makes the truth of Mr. Birrell's dictum that "the question of the Lane pictures was solely one of ethics and gentlemanly feeling." It is constantly cropping up in all sorts of connections. We pass over the mystery of Lane's name not being even mentioned at the ceremonial of the opening of the New Tate Galleries, though Mr. Courtauld was warmly thanked for less conspicuous gifts. In The Studio, some months ago, the frontispiece is Vuillard's delightful Nature Morte (one of the 39 Lane pictures). It is described as "a recent acquisition to the Tate Gallery." Of course it had been exhibited there for many years back, and has been twelve years in their possession—not a word of recognition for Sir Hugh.

Mr. Bodkin told us, in his interesting address at the Theatre Royal, of the sensation made by the exhibition, in 1917, of Renoir's "Parapluies," another of the 39. Some hundred English artists and amateurs seized the opportunity of sending that master a testimony of their admiration—but no word of acknowledgment for the man to whom they were indebted for being able to study the picture. How can it be otherwise? He would, indeed, be a hardened cynic who expressed gratitude for a gift that was not intended for him, and of which he only got possession by an unfortunate inadvertence. And so our poor Lane, "sunk though he be beneath the watery floor" by the enemies of England, must ever remain without the meed of one memorial word of gratitude from that country. Now for our side of the matter.

At the inquiry about the new gallery I was surprised that all the evidence turned on the advantage and utility it would be to the city and country at large to have our fine collection suitably housed, or, on the other side, whether we could afford to treat ourselves to such a luxury—but our duty and obligation to Lane was entirely lost sight of.

We have done nothing to show our gratitude to him for his magnificent generosity to us. We have not even paid him the cheap compliment of calling a street after him. He raised among us an enthusiasm and enlightenment about art which has not yet entirely subsided. He more than doubled the endowment of the National Gallery, so that more than half of its additions each year we owe to him, as well as giving it fifty of its most valuable pictures—in fact, he gave us everything he had. Here is now our opportunity to show some recognition of this. It was asked at the inquiry whether, when Lane presented the collection to the municipality, any promise in writing was given that a proper place to house it would be built. I do not know, as I had no concern with the Gallery up to that date; but no one can deny that there was a tacit understanding between the two parties to that effect. So unless we wish to put ourselves on a level with the English "in pushing our legal rights beyond the moral sanction," the question is not relevant.

A great deal was said about poor men's houses; one wonders whether one more or less would be built if the Gallery is turned down. We all remember those who murmured, "Why was not this ointment sold for 300 pence and given to the poor?" but we do not remember that the idea was well received.

The English cannot thank Lane, though they enjoy his so valuable French collection. We, who know his intention regarding them and his noble good-will to us, are the people who should show gratitude, and building the gallery is the form chosen by himself.—Yours, etc.,

S. H. PURSER.

Mespil House, Dublin,
July 5th, 1928.

The Prince of Wales and the King of Spain were among the guests at a dinner given by the Spanish Ambassador last night in honour of King Alfonso.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

The Prince of Wales will be present at the garden party which Sir Philip Sassoon will give to-day at Trent Park, his residence in Hertfordshire. Last night His Royal Highness was the guest of the Spanish Ambassador and the Marquesa de Merry del Val at their dinner party in honour of the King of Spain at the Spanish Embassy.

The Duchess of York will visit Richmond Hill next Tuesday, and will perform the opening ceremony at the annual exhibition of the work executed by the patients and convalescents at the Star and Garter Home.

Yesterday afternoon Princess Beatrice received the delegates attending the National Health and Child Welfare Conference at the entertainment given for them by the League of Remembrance at 1 Marlborough Gate, London. Her Royal Highness will open the garden fête in aid of the voluntary hospitals in the Royal Botanic Gardens next Thursday. In the following week she will leave Kensington Palace for Carisbrooke Castle, Isle of Wight, where she will be in residence for about three months.

Major-General the Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of the Union of South Africa, will be the guest of honour at the annual luncheon of the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, which will be held next Wednesday in the Savoy Hotel.

The Marchioness of Londonderry has arrived at Mount Stewart, Co. Down, for a short stay, and will return to London next week. The Marchioness of Linlithgow will leave Hopetoun House to-day to visit Captain and Lady Victoria Wemyss in Fifeshire, and will open a garden fête to-morrow, in aid of the Women's Guild of Empire, in the grounds of Wemyss Castle. The Countess of Dunraven and Lady Olein Wyndham-Quin were among Lord and Lady Glanely's guests at Exning House for Newmarket Races.

The Earl of Rosebery, who is in residence at Dalmeny House, near Edinburgh, attended the wedding of one of his tenants at Dalmeny parish church on Wednesday. He still uses a wheel-chair, and has had a motor car specially constructed to accommodate it, and is thus able to fulfil a number of engagements without unnecessary fatigue.

Countess Fitzwilliam will return to London to-day from Newmarket, where she was the guest of Lord and Lady George Dundas at Hill Cottage for the races. The Earl and Countess of Midleton have returned to London from the country. Viscount and Viscountess Suirdale are expected in London to-day on their return from Czecho-Slovakia.

The marriage arranged between Herbert Vaughan, elder son of the late Mr. Herbert Wilson, K.C., and Mrs. Wilson, of Knockbawn Cottage, Greystones, and Rachel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Perry, 3 Sandford terrace, Clonskeagh, will take place on 7th August.

The marriage arranged between Michael Joseph Grant, New York, youngest son of Michael and Mrs. Grant, Black Park, Athy, and Catherine, second youngest daughter of John and Mrs. O'Brien, of Rathmines, will take place with a Nuptial Mass at the Church of Our Lady of Refuge, Rathmines, Dublin, on July 10, at 10 o'clock.

The engagement is announced between Richard Pattinson, only son of Sir Richard and Lady Winfrey, of Castor House, near Peterborough, and Margretta Nora, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Russell, of Priorlands, Dundalk, Co. Louth, Ireland.

The marriage arranged between Mr. John E. O'Brien and Miss Moira Brassey will take place at the Brompton Oratory on Friday, July 27th, at 2.30 p.m.

Miss Eileen Clibborn, of Silverspring, Clonmel, wore a very lovely gown of palest rose georgette embroidered diamanté at her wedding to Mr. R. J. C. Wilson, of Clonmel. The going away gown was of beige lace, with long sash ends of georgette. (Slyne and Co., Ltd.)

Everyone appears to be taking full advantage of the wonderful opportunities for economising provided by Switzers Summer Sale. In the Costume Gallery, among a host of enticing offers, special interest centres in the exceptional value to be had in Jumper Suits. LONDON LETTER.

CAPTAIN LOEWENSTEIN'S DEATH.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,

THURSDAY NIGHT.

The tragic death of Captain Alfred Loewenstein, whose many and great operations had made him one of the leading figures in the financial world, created a painful sensation in the City this morning. There was great excitement outside the Stock Exchange before business began, and brokers stood together in crowds discussing the possibilities of the situation. When the market opened dealers were not at all inclined to give even a nominal quotation for International Holdings and Hydro-Electric Security Shares, and no business was done in these for the first quarter of an hour. Later, after excited dealings for over an hour, common shares of International Holdings fell heavily from 215 dollars to 130 dollars, a total fall in the market value of the shares of something like thirty million pounds. In the afternoon there was a recovery. The City is not heavily involved, however, and, if there are any difficulties, it is thought that they will be confined mainly to small speculators, many of whom are in Belgium. The reassuring statement issued during the late afternoon by the directors of International Holdings was a great relief to many City men.

A Mysterious Affair.

Captain Loewenstein was a Belgian Jew, the son of a banker, and was born in Brussels forty-nine years ago. His life in many ways was mysterious; for ten years ago he was known simply as a very rich man who suddenly became much talked of as he proceeded to make much more money with great rapidity. In the City it is said that, as a financier, he was not of the front rank, being mainly a speculator whose interests were controlled by the markets and their manipulators. It will be remembered that he created a financial sensation some little time ago by a proposal to stabilise the Belgian franc on somewhat impossible terms. It may never be known whether his death was due to accident, mental failure or suicide; but it was recalled to-day that he had a bad accident while riding at Melton Mowbray only three weeks ago.

His Absent-Mindedness.

The financier had many warm friends in the City of London, and, while discussing his death with one of them to-day, I was assured that Captain Loewenstein was a man of great courage, and that throughout his life he had ever shown great pluck in fighting financial battles; for he would never acknowledge defeat, but always insisted on going forward. At the same time he was one of the most absent-minded men in the world, and would plan schemes while walking about, not recognising what he was doing or where he was going.

Rating Reform.

I learn that a number of members of Parliament have been receiving protests from local authorities and bodies whose powers will be taken away or transferred under the proposed rating reforms of the Government. It is likely that there will be a series of deputations and appeals to the Government and the Ministers most nearly concerned with the proposals before long. At present the full force of, and the changes entailed by, the scheme are not completely realised. At the same time it is recognised in many quarters that the ratepayers in some areas will derive considerable benefit from the scheme. Any such tremendous change as that outlined in the rating and valuation scheme was bound to upset certain vested interests in the country, but this will not interest the Government, whose intention it is to proceed with the measure in its entirety.

The Totalisator.

To-morrow should see whether the Totalisator Bill will survive the last of the many attacks made upon it by its opponents. A motion by Mr. Rhys Davies will ask for the recommittal of the bill to a select committee on a request to the Speaker as to whether the bill is the same as that previously passed by the House. Should the Speaker state that it is not the same bill, there will be a division, and, if the opposition is successful, the bill will be killed. Should the Speaker rule that the bill is in essence the same as it was before it went to committee, then the Government probably will adopt it and carry it through its final stage. It is expected that the division will be taken as early as 11.15—an unusually early hour, even for a Friday sitting.

R 100.

Some seventy members of the House of Commons, accompanied by some of the Dominion High Commissioners and a number of air experts, went down by special train from King's Cross this morning to Howden, Yorkshire, to make an unofficial inspection of the airship R 100, the largest airship in the world. The visitors were frankly amazed at the wonderful things they saw and experienced on this huge balloon. Meals were served on board after a walk through cabins and up wide staircases, covered with carpet, and the food was served at little tables either in the large and airy diningroom or on a promenade deck outside. State rooms for the passengers, a smoking lounge, a dance hall, electric kitchens, and wonderfully-fitted navigation rooms are other features. Accommodation is provided for one hundred passengers, with ten tons of mail or freight. It is anticipated that the R 100 will start her flights at the beginning of October, and with Captain Scott, who has flown the Atlantic each way by airship, in charge, it is calculated that she will make the journey from London to New York in forty-eight hours.

Peace in Industry.

In moderate trade union circles much satisfaction was expressed to-day over the results of the Peace in Industry Conference yesterday at Burlington House, particularly as the interim report submitted to the gathering was considered a triumph for sane trade unionism. One opinion is that the trade union movement must gain in importance by the recognition of its position as a real force in industry, while others are that the views of such an influential body of employers are bound to have an effect upon employers generally, and to assist in removing some of the prejudices against trade unionism still remaining.

Lord Byng of Vimy.

The appointment of Lord Byng of Vimy will be the subject of a full-dress debate in the House of Commons on Wednesday next, when members hope that the Home Secretary will make clear a number of points which hitherto have provoked comment. The Socialists intend to attack Sir William Joynson-Hicks for announcing the appointment before the Savidge Tribunal had made its report, and in this course they have the sympathy of some members of other parties, who are unable to understand why the resignation of Sir William Horwood should have been revealed at such a moment. Another point is that members are inclined to think that the appointment has been made for a reason not yet disclosed, and on this the Home Secretary is likely to be very clear and explicit. It is known that it is the view of the Home Office authorities that recent events have demonstrated the necessity for overhauling some of the police regulations, and this in the face of possible opposition. A strong hand may be necessary to see that the new regulations are adopted without trouble.

The Queen was presented yesterday with a badge specially designed for the Queen Mary's Committee of the Queen's Institute of District Nursing.

FINANCIER'S DEATH MYSTERY.

THE WRONG DOOR THEORY.

PILOT'S STORY OF DRAMATIC NOTE DURING FLIGHT OVER SEA.

STOCK EXCHANGE "SLUMP."

REASSURING STATEMENT BY TWO FELLOW-DIRECTORS.

THE London Stock Markets suffered a shock as severe as that which followed the death of Mr. James White, on the news of the death of Captain Alfred Loewenstein, the Belgian financier, who fell out of his private aeroplane while flying to Brussels on Wednesday night.

Captain Loewenstein's interests had mainly centred in International Holdings and Hydro-Electrical. These stocks, after a long period of almost uninterrupted movement, recently experienced sharp declines, varied with partial recoveries. The market awaited with deep anxiety an indication of movements in New York, but there, at its opening, the Stock Market was not disturbed by the news of Captain Loewenstein's death.

In London, however, there were considerable fluctuations, as will be seen by the following list:—

	Yesterday. Lowest.	Yesterday. Close.	Wednesday's Close.
International Holdings	100	145	215
Hydro-Electrics	23	40	51
Brazilian Traction Common	58	60½	60½
Barcelona Common	—	58½	61
Mexican Trams	—	32½	34½

After a day of dramatic surprises, the members of the Stock Exchange went home with a partial feeling of relief. New York unexpectedly came in as a buyer, and that, coupled with a reassuring statement from the officials of the International Holdings and Hydro-Electric Company, Ltd., led to a rally in the prices of the shares. Should a further statement of a similar nature be received from Messrs. Schroeder and Company, as expected, it is possible that a further upward movement may mature to-day, although the market is still very sensitive, more especially in view of the near approach of the settlement, which may reveal hitherto unsuspected sources of weakness.

For a time, although Captain Loewenstein was famous in all the financial centres of the world, he was virtually unknown to the general public. His name jumped into general prominence with his grandiose scheme for loaning £10,000,000 to the Belgian Government to assist the stabilisation of the currency. Then he offered the same amount to the French Government, but both Governments refused to have anything to do with it.

The greatest battle of his career was with Dr. Henry Dreyfus, Chairman of British Celanese, of which company he tried to obtain control. After a war between the two, lasting for nearly two years, Captain Loewenstein was defeated and sold his holdings in the company, leaving Dr. Dreyfus in control.

He was always trying to obtain control of one company or another, in order to further his ambitions for gigantic world combines. Sometimes he was successful, but his defeats were frequent. Again and again recently he had lost. Last week he tried to pull off a great operation, which was to give him control of the Bank of Brussels. The directors of the bank, however, were too powerful for him.

HOW THE ACCIDENT HAPPENED.

"THE WRONG DOOR" THEORY.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
BOULOGNE, Thursday.

It was only at 1.30 this morning that the aerodromes on the French coast learned of the tragic death of Captain Alfred Loewenstein, the famous Belgian financier. Captain Loewenstein had left Croydon Aerodrome at eight minutes past six last evening in his Fokker aeroplane for Brussels. The machine was piloted by the British airman, Captain Drew, and there were also on board the 'plane two of the financier's secretaries, Mr. Callum and Mr. Hodgson, both British; a valet, Mr. Baxter, and two women typists, one of whom—Miss Clarke—is British, and the other—Mlle. Badilan—French.

A DRAMATIC NOTE.

The first news that anything was wrong reached the pilot with dramatic suddenness when the 'plane was over the English Channel and nearing Dunkirk, on the French coast. A note was handed to him by Mr. Hodgson stating that Captain Loewenstein was missing. Captain Drew immediately planed down towards the water and flew around at a low altitude to see if anything could be seen.

Nothing was sighted, and a landing was made at Dunkirk, where the authorities were informed of Captain Loewenstein's disappearance and requested to send out search parties. In view of the distance from the French coast at which the accident had happened, there was not much chance of anything effective being accomplished, and the machine went on to St. Ingelvert Aerodrome, near Calais.

FELL FROM 4,000 FEET.

In an interview with Reuter's Correspondent Captain Drew said that at the moment when the accident must have taken place the machine was flying at a height of about 4,000 feet, and none of those on board the 'plane was quite sure as to the exact spot at which M. Loewenstein could have fallen out.

Captain Drew further declared that Captain Loewenstein had left his companions to visit the lavatory. After he had been away about ten minutes his secretary, fearing that something was amiss, went to look for him. The secretary found the lavatory empty, and at once realised that Captain Loewenstein must have made a mistake and opened the wrong door. He then immediately wrote the note to the pilot asking him to land, as the noise of the engine made all conversation impossible.

THE TWO DOORS.

In Captain Loewenstein's aeroplane passengers are accommodated in a central cabin in the fuselage, to which access is obtained through a door at the back. On the other side of this doorway is a small passage, with a door on the right, and another on the left. The left-hand door is a solid one, which opens into a small lavatory, while the right-hand one, which is provided with a small mica window, closes the main entrance to the fuselage.

It is through this door that Captain Lowenstein must have fallen to his death. It is necessary to exert considerable strength to open the door in question when the 'plane is in flight, owing to the pressure of the wind.

Coastguards and lighthouse keepers all along the coast between Mardyck and Bray dunes have been instructed by the police to search for the body of Captain Loewenstein, and fishing boats are dragging with nets in the Channel.

'PLANE TO BE SOLD.

Immediately on learning of the accident to her husband Mme. Loewenstein left Brussels for Calais, where she arrived this morning. She gave orders for the 'plane from which Captain Loewenstein was lost to return to London.

"Let it be sold," she said, "I do not ever wish to see it again."

The Fokker 'plane, piloted by Captain Drew, accordingly left St. Ingelvert this afternoon on its return to Croydon.

'PLANE EXAMINED.

After Captain Loewenstein's big blue and grey aeroplane had arrived at Croydon yesterday afternoon, Captain Donald Drew added further details to the interview given above.

"The last I saw of Captain Loewenstein was just after we had passed the Goodwins. Some time after that he went to the back of the 'plane, and was absent for about a quarter of an hour. His valet, Mr. Baxter, then began to wonder why he was so long, and, opening the door of the inside compartment, he saw that the room was empty and that the outer door in the side of the 'plane was open.

"The first I really knew of this was when I saw a piece of paper which Mr. Baxter pressed against the window behind me. On it was written: 'Captain Gone.'

"Of course, I was amazed. I realised the impossibility of searching for the captain's body, for we had come across at about 4,000 feet, and it would have been, I should think, terribly mutilated by a fall from so great a height.

"I can venture no theory at all as to how Captain Loewenstein fell out, or where; but I should think that it was not very far from the French coast. The captain seemed to be in quite a normal state of health."

Mr. R. F. Little, the assistant pilot and mechanic, said: "I think the women secretaries are to be admired for their calmness. None of them showed any sign of fear, and it must have been a very trying moment for them when they discovered that Captain Loewenstein had disappeared."

The aeroplane was examined last night by Croydon officials. No apparent clues as to the cause of Captain Loewenstein's fall were discovered inside the 'plane. The woodwork holding the lock of the outer door was found to be splintered, one piece of wood having almost broken away from the main upright, but the door opens outward, and the damage could not have been caused by forcing the door in that direction.

CHEERFUL DURING JOURNEY.

DUNKIRK, Thursday.

In an interview here to-day one of the typists said that the captain seemed very cheerful during the journey.

"NOTHING TO FEAR."

From Reuter's Correspondent.
BRUSSELS, Thursday.

M. Henri Wauters, the intimate friend of the late Captain Loewenstein, in an interview to-day with the Nation Belge, said that all the financier's affairs are being managed by competent administrators, in whom the deceased had had implicit trust, and who were conversant with his ideas and his methods.

There was, therefore, said M. Wauters, nothing to fear for the future.

SPANISH TENNIS CHAMPION ILL.

WOMEN'S FINAL POSTPONED UNTIL TO-MORROW.

Senorita de Alvarez, the Spanish lawn tennis champion, is ill with laryngitis, and a throat specialist has been called in.

She reported her illness to the Wimbledon Committee yesterday, sending them a medical certificate, and asking that her match to-day in the final of the Women's Singles Championship against Miss Helen Wills, the American holder, should be postponed.

The Wimbledon Committee stated last night that they had decided that the finals shall be played to-morrow, provided Senorita de Alvarez is then well enough to play.

INTERESTS OF £11,000,000.

STOCK EXCHANGE RE-ACTIONS.

SHARES NOT TO BE THROWN ON THE MARKET.

From a Financial Correspondent.

It is not unnatural that International Holdings and Hydro-Electric Securities should be the first to be affected by Captain Loewenstein's death, for they are the two largest companies over which M. Loewenstein presided whose shares are quoted on the London Stock Exchange. Other securities in companies connected with the Loewenstein interests, directly or indirectly, do not all have quotations in London, but Glanzstoff, Tomaszow and Barcelona Tractions, exceptions to the above, were affected by yesterday's events.

An urgent meeting of the Brussels Bourse Committee was held yesterday to consider the situation, and quotations shed several hundred francs in a few hours before noon. New York, after early weakness, came into the market, and was to an extent responsible for a partial recovery, aided largely by reassuring statements from official quarters.

Nevertheless, a number of foreign houses in London reported heavy and constant selling orders by their clients, and prices closed well below Wednesday's levels.

REASSURANCES.

There are two reasons which caused the public's apprehension. First, there is the fact that Captain Loewenstein was an energetic leader of his group, whose foresight and ability, it was thought, would be difficult to replace. Secondly, the fact is well known that his personal holdings in the various companies was very large, and it was wondered to what extent these holdings would be thrust upon the open market.

Reassurance on both these points came to hand during the course of yesterday in the nature of a statement by the Advisory Committee of the International Holdings Company quoted elsewhere, and an announcement that the banking house of J. Henry Schroeder is undertaking all responsibility for Captain Loewenstein's interests, which are valued at £11,000,000, and giving the public assurance that none of these securities will be thrown on the open market.

INTERNATIONAL HOLDINGS.

By reason of his own diversified interests, and of the widespread holdings and ramifications of the International Holdings and Investment Company, Ltd., of which he was President, Captain Loewenstein's death has affected a large number of securities.

The Holdings Company, which is now incorporated in Quebec, has an authorised capital of 5,000,000 shares of no par value, of which 4,369,500 are outstanding.

Yesterday's fall of 70 points per share thus represents a capital depreciation of some 305,865,000 dollars.

The company holds interests in the electrical and chemical industries, in public utility undertakings, and in the artificial silk industry. At market prices, or quotations on May 26 last, the investments in artificial silk companies' shares represent 41,664,000 dollars, in public utilities shares 13,826,000 dollars, in United States railroad shares 2,860,000 dollars, and in miscellaneous investments 6,320,000 dollars.

The company has no bond issue outstanding, but arrangements have been entered into with a group headed by the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York, for an issue of 25,000,000 dollars 5 per cent. bonds, which it is intended to make as soon as market conditions permit, and which is referred to in the official statement.

ARTIFICIAL SILK.

Among the artificial silk companies in which the Holdings Company have an interest are:—

Tubize (47 per cent. of voting power, 29 per cent. of capital).

Glanzstoff, J. P. Bemberg (10½ per cent. of capital).

Breda and Tomaszow (holding of 5,000,000 dollars).

The effect of yesterday's news upon these individually can be judged by reports from foreign markets, the only two quoted in London being Glanzstoff and Tomaszow. The former, after closing on Wednesday at 6 7/16, dropped to 6¼ at one time yesterday, to recover partially to 6 7/16, or ⅛ lower on the day. Tomaszow closed only fractionally down at 2 7/16.

Such, in brief, have been the consequences of the death of Captain Loewenstein, who was, without doubt, one of the most ingenious financiers of our days, operating the markets with masterly skill, and showing a brilliant imagination in his schemes of regrouping companies.

His limitations soon became evident, however, when he overstepped his appropriate domain and aimed at accomplishing acts of financial statesmanship.

"NO CAUSE FOR ANXIETY."

STATEMENT BY MEMBERS OF ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

In an official statement two members of the Advisory Committee, acting for the International Holdings and Investment Company and the Hydro-Electric Securities Corporation, state:—

"The financial position of both companies is sound, and the very large shareholdings of the late Captain Loewenstein in the two companies are, in the main, to the best of our knowledge, unencumbered.

"It is as yet too early to say what arrangements can be made to fill the place of Captain Loewenstein as President of the two companies, but due consideration is being given to the matter by the board in Canada, and an early announcement will be made.

"There is nothing in the situation, as we understand it to-day, which, in our opinion, need give rise to any anxiety. Our advice to the companies will be to continue and further develop the well-conceived policy agreed upon by us with Captain Loewenstein.

"The contemplated sale by the International Holding and Investment Co., Ltd., of the unissued shares in the company will be proceeded with forthwith.—F. A. Szarvasy, Albert Pam."

NO REACTIONS IN AMERICA.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Thursday.

The tragic death of Captain Loewenstein, though deeply regretted by those who had had an opportunity of making his acquaintance during his visit here this spring, is more a newspaper feature than a market feature as far as North and South America are concerned.

As far as is known, the dead financier did not have any holdings in any concern on this side of the Atlantic large enough for his death to have any marked effect on price movements.

According to popular report, Captain Loewenstein had considerable holdings in American artificial silk companies, but no confirmation of this is obtainable. Officials of the Tubize Artificial Silk Company, one of the largest in this country, declared that he had no connection with them. The South American markets, according to first-hand information, were also unaffected.

HAILSTONES LIKE HEN'S EGGS.

THUNDERSTORMS LAST 36 HOURS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
WIESBADEN, Thursday.

Thunderstorms have been raging for the past thirty-six hours in the valleys of the Moselle and the Saar. Scores of people have been slightly injured by the hailstones, which were the size of hens' eggs, and thousands of windows have been smashed.

Irreparable damage has been done in the famous vineyards of the Moselle Valley, hundreds of vines having been beaten flat.

Heavy losses have also been sustained in towns and villages, where the streets were turned into torrents.

MAN WHO THOUGHT IN MILLIONS.

HOW CAPTAIN LOEWENSTEIN MADE A FORTUNE.

Captain Alfred Loewenstein, says The Times, in the course of an obituary notice, was born in 1879, the son of Belgian parents, the family on the paternal side being of German origin. His father was a small banker in Brussels, whose moderate capital was lost before his death.

The son, therefore, entered upon his business career in comparatively modest circumstances. He became associated with the Brussels Stock Exchange, and was scarcely known by the general public until after the war.

The foundation of his fortunes as a financier were, however, laid in the early years of the present century, when he undertook the placing with the Belgian public of large lines of securities of hydro-electric companies, that were promoted by Mr. Percival Farquhar, and the late Dr. Pearson (who was drowned in the Lusitania). It was then that Loewenstein acquired his knowledge of the possibilities of hydro-electric enterprises.

DARING FINANCIAL EXPLOITS.

His daring speculative exploits, and the success that attended some of them, attracted a large financial following in Europe and America, and to a lesser extent in this country.

It is evident that before his death Captain Loewenstein must have witnessed a severe shrinkage of his fortune from the figure at which it stood (on paper) not many weeks ago, although it is declared by some of those associated with him that he was still at the time of his death an extremely wealthy man, and, according to an official statement issued yesterday, his holdings in his two investment companies were unencumbered.

It was inevitable that in his aggressive campaigns to wrest the control of established companies from their existing owners, Loewenstein should sometimes encounter opposition. In addition to his defeat by the Dreyfus group may be mentioned the effective hostility he encountered from those in control of the Dutch Enka Company.

HUNTING IN ENGLAND.

In private life Captain Loewenstein's habits were characteristic of a financier who thought in millions. He lived and travelled in lavish and ostentatious style. He owned expensive houses in Brussels and Biarritz, and one in England at Thorpe Satchville, near Melton Mowbray. This he used when hunting—he was a familiar figure with the Quorn—and it was there that he kept a large racing establishment, which included over 40 horses.

While not fond of flat racing, he had great fondness for steeplechasing. At the last Grand National Meeting he made a bid for victory with Easter Hero, for which he paid £7,000. Here he was unsuccessful, but a fortnight ago he obtained some compensation by winning the French Grand National with Maguelonne.

He was well known as an exhibitor at the principal Horse Shows, and often rode his own horses in the jumping competitions. His business ventures made him a much-travelled man, and, as evidence of his passion for display, it is reported that in the spring of this year, when he paid a visit to America, he even managed to astonish New York by his imposing retinue, which included four secretaries, two stenographers, a private detective, a masseur, and an air pilot, the total cost of whose passage was £4,000.

AN ATTRACTIVE PERSONALITY.

His army rank Captain Loewenstein obtained while serving during the war with the Belgian forces.

Later he assisted the Allied cause on this side, for which he was made a C.B. Captain Loewenstein had a very attractive personality, was loyal to his friends and associates, and enjoyed to an exceptional extent the affection of his subordinates. He leaves a widow and one son, aged 18.

WIDE FINANCIAL INTERESTS.

A BROKER IN BRUSSELS AT NINETEEN.

BRUSSELS, Thursday.

Writing of the financier's career, the Nation Belge says that he had first come into notice as a broker on the Brussels Stock Exchange when he was only nineteen years old. With the help of very active assistants he soon built up a business of some importance, but it was always, as he recently said, questions of electricity which attracted him most, and he soon was responsible for the creation of a Waterways Traction Company.

It was after he met Dr. Pearson, one of the pioneers in the development of the electrical industry, that Captain Loewenstein began to embark on international enterprises and became interested in the Canadian group, Rio de Janeiro Tramways, Light and Power, Mexico Light, Mexico Trams, San Paolo Tramways, and latterly Brazilian Traction.

It was with the support of Dr. Pearson that he created the Barcelona Traction, one of his greatest enterprises, which gave birth to the Sidro-International Hydro-Electric Power Company.

Artificial silk also captured his imagination and interest, and La Tubize was formed as the nucleus of a number of affairs of this nature.

By the creation of the International Holdings and Investment Company he was able to unite all these various enterprises in one great trust, which only recently was transferred to the Canadian régime.

The Hydro-Electric security controlled his electrical enterprises, and, with a view to giving these various undertakings a basis of operation in Belgium and France, he had only just established the Belgo-Canadian Society and the F.I.A.

ROUND THE WORLD IN 23 DAYS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PARIS, Thursday.

Two American world fliers, the millionaire, Mr. John Miers, and his pilot, Mr. Collier, who are attempting to circle the world in twenty-three days, arrived at Cherbourg this morning in the liner Aquitania from New York, bringing their 220 h.p. monoplane with them as luggage.

They lost no time in unpacking the aeroplane, in which they flew post-haste to Le Bourget, intending to take off from there at 6 o'clock this evening for Berlin, and continue their aerial "hustle" across Siberia to Tokio.

AIRMEN TO DINE WITH THE EX-KAISER.

FLYING TO DOORN AT DAWN.

LIMERICK SCENES.

The reason why Baron von Huenefeld and Captain H. Köhl are leaving Baldonnel Aerodrome on their return journey to Germany in the monoplane Europa, at dawn to-day, was made known to an Irish Times representative last night. They are to dine with the ex-Kaiser at his residence at Doorn, Holland, to-night.

They had kept their secret very well, for everyone has been under the impression that they were returning direct to Germany, and that the visit to the ex-Kaiser at Doorn had been abandoned. Major Fitzmaurice is going with his two German comrades, and when the Europa leaves Doorn the association of the three airmen which made history will be broken. For them it will be the end of their great adventure.

NINE HOURS' FLIGHT.

For three months, all but a few days, these men—two Germans and an Irish officer—have weathered the storms of one Ocean and two Continents together.

The journey to Doorn is something over 800 miles, and will take about nine hours.

Baron von Huenefeld and Major Fitzmaurice left Kingsbridge Station by special train for Limerick last night, accompanied by the Minister for Defence and Mrs. Fitzmaurice, General and Mrs. McKeown. Captain Carroll and Captain Heron, of the Air Force, also travelled down in the special train.

BACK AT 2.40 A.M.

A great crowd gathered at the Kingsbridge Station to give them a send-off, and a guard of honour, under Commandant Luke O'Hegarty, was present.

Captain Köhl did not make the journey, as he has to pilot the 'plane to Doorn to-day. He went to bed early, while the Baron and Major Fitzmaurice made the trip to Limerick, which they left for Dublin at 12.50 this morning, arriving back at 2.40 a.m., after a record run.

The engagements of the airmen began yesterday morning with a visit to the Archbishop of Dublin, the Most Rev. Dr. Byrne, at the Archbishop's House, Drumcondra. They arrived at 11.45 o'clock and stayed for about ten minutes, after they had been received in his study.

After that the fliers motored to the Viceregal Lodge, where they lunched with the Governor-General of the Free State. The party included:—

Baron von Huenefeld, Captain Hermann Köhl, Major and Mrs. Fitzmaurice, the American Minister and Mrs. Stirling, Mr. Fitzgerald (Minister for Defence), Mr. McGilligan (Minister for External Affairs), Lieutenant-General and Mrs. McMahon, Major-General and Mrs. MacEoin, Major-General and Mrs. W. R. E. Murphy, Herr von Dehn, German Consul-General; Herr Klose, Senator Barniville, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, Commissioner and Mrs. Murphy, Mr. Marshall Harriss, and the Rev. Michael Langford.

LIMERICK'S WELCOME.

FLIERS MOBBED BY GREAT CROWD.

LIMERICK, Thursday Night.

Limerick to-night did its best to beat the reception given in Dublin to the Baron von Huenefeld and Major Fitzmaurice. All Limerick turned out to greet the fliers, who arrived by a special train which left Dublin shortly after six o'clock and made a record non-stop run to Limerick Junction, where engines were changed. Limerick was reached twenty minutes later.

At the station they were met by the Mayor, Alderman J. G. O'Brien. Outside the station a crowd of many thousands gave a wild cheer as the military guard of honour presented arms, and the band then struck up the German National Anthem and "The Soldier's Song."

THE MAYORAL COACHES.

The procession then began. A military lorry was in front, followed by a long line of motor cars of the reception committee. The No. 2 Army Band came next, with three horse-drawn coaches bearing the fliers, Mrs. Fitzmaurice, the Mayor, Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, the Minister of Defence, and the mayoral party. The three mayoral coaches presented a striking spectacle, with liveried drivers and footmen at front and rear.

The Mayor, who was attended by the High Constable and the Mace-bearer, was wearing the gold chains of office.

BATONS DRAWN, BUT NOT USED.

The Limerick reception committee learned its lesson from Dublin, and decided that the procession should not be lost in the crowd, so they put the fliers near the end.

This worked perfectly; for when the fliers left the station square the crowd broke through the double cordon of Civic Guards and military guards that encircled the airmen's coach.

For several minutes the people milled around endeavouring to mob the fliers, cheering madly all the while.

The crush was so great that the Civic Guards had to draw their batons, but there was no occasion to use them, as the mere action had the desired effect.

It was another five minutes before the procession reformed. It then proceeded to the platform outside Cruise's Hotel, O'Connell street, by a circuitous route, which was lined by great crowds. As the procession moved on, the crowds fell in alongside and behind, so that is was almost brought to a standstill.

MANY FLAGS.

The streets were lined with German and Free State flags, and banners of welcome were stretched across the streets. Seven bands took part in the procession.

The sun shone through heavy clouds at the beginning, but by the time Baron Von Huenefeld and Major Fitzmaurice and the rest of the party ascended the platform rain was falling.

The police and military combined had great difficulty in controlling the crowd, which surged to and fro, cheering wildly.

The Mayor welcomed the fliers to the city, and said that Major Fitzmaurice was a Limerick County man, and they were more proud of him than words could express.

The gallant airmen had laid a trail to America by air for the first time, just as Saint Brendan made the first trail by sea to the Continent.

Mrs. Fitzmaurice was then introduced to the assembly.

Major Fitzmaurice, who was greeted with prolonged cheers, said that he desired to express the grateful thanks of the Baron and himself to the people of Limerick for the wonderful reception. He expressed Captain Koehl's sorrow at his non-attendance, but some one had to sleep, as they had to be off again in the morning.

Baron von Huenefeld also expressed his thanks for the wonderful reception.

THE BANQUET.

BARON VON HUENEFELD AND IRELAND.

From Our Special Correspondent.
LIMERICK, Friday, 1 a.m.

The banquet to the Atlantic fliers, held in the ballroom of Cruise's Hotel last night, was largely attended. The Mayor presided. The room was tastefully decorated with German and Free State colours.

The first toast, "Eire," was proposed by the Mayor.

Herr Bach, engineer of the Shannon scheme, said that in that scheme they had Germans and Irishmen working cordially in a great industrial enterprise, and, in due time, German engineers and Irish engineers, and German workmen and Irish workmen would harness the Shannon for the benefit of all Ireland. He believed that Limerick would yet become the heart of Ireland.

An address of welcome to the fliers was then read by the Mayor, who spoke of the wonderful achievement of the Bremen crew.

The toast of the Bremen's crew was proposed by Alderman Dr. W. Fogarty.

LATE NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

HEAVY DEATH ROLL IN UNITED STATES.

From "The Times" Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Thursday.

The celebration of Independence Day in the metropolitan district of New York yesterday was marred, as usual, by many casualties from fireworks, and by a number of drownings at the near-by ocean and lake resorts, to which hundreds of thousands were driven by the excessive heat in the city. A sudden storm in the late afternoon was responsible for most of the drownings, which altogether exceeded twenty.

The number of accidents from fireworks in New York was considerably less than the 1,400 reported last year, the sale of fireworks in the city having been prohibited. Nevertheless, the hospitals treated scores of persons for powder burns, and more serious injuries from "bootlegged" explosives, and firemen were called upon to extinguish a dozen fires started by fireworks. Including those drowned, thirty-seven persons were killed in and about the city, and several others died from heat prostration. Throughout the day the temperature was well over 80 degrees, and at 4 p.m., just before the storm broke, it reached 89 degrees.

There were 168 deaths elsewhere in the country attributable, in part at least, to accidents involving explosives, and to sudden storms. High temperatures everywhere brought a general exodus from the cities to the ocean beaches, and to the lakes and rivers, and storms found victims among inexperienced and over-venturesome swimmers. Drownings throughout the country numbered 106, and deaths from motor car accidents 54. Only 11 persons were actually killed by fireworks, but many thousands suffered burns or other injuries requiring medical attendance.

There were several so-called cloudbursts in different parts of the country. One at Rainbow Gardens, near McKeesport, Pennsylvania, was followed by a landslip, which caused the death of a boy and the destruction of 185 motor cars. Nine motor cars were washed over a dam near the same place. A second landslip, a short distance from McKeesport, wrecked 40 cars and injured a dozen persons.

BANKS MUST TELL.

NAMES TO BE GIVEN TO INCOME TAX COMMISSIONERS.

A decision of considerable importance was delivered by Mr. Justice Rowlatt in the King's Bench Division, London, yesterday, who gave judgment for the Crown in a special case stated for the consideration of the Court, which raised the point as to whether the National Provincial Bank were bound to prepare and deliver lists of names and addresses of their customers on whose behalf they received interest on War Stock registered in the name of the bank, but belonging, in fact, to their customers.

The bank had refused to deliver up such lists when asked to do so by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, on the ground that the Commissioners were not entitled to demand such lists.

The Judge held that, in obtaining the money, the bank were simply acting as mortgagees. He gave judgment for the Commissioners, with costs.

ATLANTIC FLOWN AGAIN.

ITALIAN AIRMEN REACH BRAZIL.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PERNAMBUCO, Thursday.

The Italian airmen, Ferrarin and Del Prete, who left Monte Celio Aerodrome at 7.51 on Tuesday evening, landed at the beach at Port Natal (Brazil) to-night at 7.50 in their 550 horse-power Savoia, with which they won the world's endurance record of 58 hours 37 minutes some time ago.

They flew over Port Natal, Brazil, at 6.10 this evening, and dropped a message of greeting to Brazil.

They passed over Pernambuco, having flown the Atlantic, at 11.5 this morning, having covered 5,000 miles, thus beating the Atlantic record set up by Mr. Chamberlin and Mr. Levine.

SAVIDGE TRIBUNAL.

MAJORITY AND MINORITY REPORTS.

From Press Association's Lobby Correspondent.

The members of the Savidge Tribunal have failed to compose their differences on the more important issues raised by the investigation, with the result that the presentation of a single report bearing the signatures of all three Commissioners has become impossible. In these circumstances it is proposed to present a majority report, signed by Sir John Eldon Bankes, the Chairman, and Mr. J. J. Withers, M.P., and a minority report by Mr. H. B. Lees-Smith, M.P.

Mr. Lees-Smith took an active part in questioning witnesses at the inquiry, and there were indications then of differences of views among the Commissioners.

The two reports are expected to be presented to the Home Secretary on Saturday, and they will be issued for publication a few days afterwards, but it is doubtful whether they will be available before the House of Commons, on Wednesday next, debates the circumstances of Lord Byng's appointment as Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police.

TOTALISATOR BILL IN THE COMMONS.

WHIPPING UP SUPPORTERS.

A keen fight is expected in the House of Commons to-day on the Totalisator Bill. It comes before the House as a private member's bill for report of the amendments made in Committee, and, as determined opposition awaits it, the promoters were last night taking special steps to ensure an adequate attendance of supporters throughout to-day's proceedings.

When the bill was last before the House on second reading it was supported by 149 members, of whom 145 were Conservatives, and opposed by 134 members, of whom 46 were Conservatives.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald will to-day ask the Speaker to give a ruling on the point, whether the bill as amended is the same bill to which the House gave a second reading last March.

Mr. Rhys Davies intends to move to recommit the bill to a Select Committee, and there are numerous amendments in the names of Labour members, and Sir Basil Peto, a Conservative, who has opposed the bill throughout.

The Government is pledged to provide further time for the discussion of the bill if the report and third reading stages are not concluded to-day.

IMPERIAL WIRELESS.

REPORT OF CONFERENCE.

Mr. Ammon, in the House of Commons yesterday, asked the Prime Minister when the report of the Committee of the Imperial Conference appointed to consider Imperial wireless and cable communications would be ready.

Mr. Baldwin—I understand that the Imperial Wireless and Cable Conference hope to be able to submit their report shortly.

YESTERDAY IN THE DAIL.

ANOTHER DEPUTY SUSPENDED.

BADLY STAGED.

NEW METHODS TO PROTECT THE SPEAKER.

From a Special Correspondent.

A week ago Mr. Frank Aiken, the Fianna Fail deputy for Louth, was suspended from the service of the Dail for calling the Speaker "a mean cad and a mean skunk." Yesterday his period of suspension expired and he resumed his seat. A few minutes afterwards his colleague, Mr. Hugo Flinn, who represents Cork City in the Fianna Fail interest, was similarly suspended.

It all happened very quickly. Mr. Cosgrave had quietly moved that the Committee on Procedure and Privileges should draw up a Standing Order "dealing specifically with deputies who bring the House into contempt by disorderly conduct towards the Chair."

When Mr. Cosgrave had explained that the existing Standing Orders did not adequately meet such attacks upon the Speaker, Mr. de Valera was at once on his feet protesting against the motion. "We have not had sufficient time to consider it," he said.

The Speaker, however, accepted the motion, "because," as he plainly put it, "the motion is one concerning the business of the House."

MR. FLINN INTERVENES.

Now Mr. Hugo Flinn seldom misses an opportunity of quarrelling with the decisions of the Chair. He jumped to his feet, and in his best debating society manner, raised a point of order. "If you accept this motion," he volleyed, "you are deliberately infringing the rights and liberties of the ordinary members of this House."

The Speaker has "a way with him" when dealing with recalcitrant deputies, and a particular "way" when dealing with Mr. Flinn. With the loquacious one he is as gentle as a lamb, suave but firm.

"That is not a point of order," said the Speaker sweetly. "It is a gross misstatement, and the deputy must withdraw it at once."

Mr. Flinn—The deputy will not withdraw.

Immediately Mr. Cosgrave rose and calmly moved "That Deputy Flinn be suspended from the service of the Dail," whereupon Mr. Flinn said, "and I have the greatest pleasure in seconding the motion."

BADLY STAGED.

He was anxious to be funny, but the effort was heavy and did not extract a laugh. A few minutes later the House divided on the suspension motion, which was carried. Mr. Flinn then left the House, and the Fianna Fail cheer which followed Mr. Corry's "Hip, hip, hooray," was a very thin effort, indeed. The onlooker felt that it was not at all satisfactory to Mr. Flinn, and that he would have preferred a more impressive and more dramatic exit.

LABOUR'S APPEAL.

A tedious discussion on the powers and rights of the Chair in its relation to the House followed, and in this the Speaker amply vindicated his position. The sanest contribution was that of Mr. T. J. O'Connell (Labour, S. Mayo). He thought that the Fianna Fail Party's suggestions of partiality on the part of the Chair were not deliberately wilful, but really the result of inexperience of parliamentary procedure. When their experience was riper, their regard for the decisions of the Chair would be more tolerant.

He quoted the experience of the Labour Party in the early days of the Dail, when Mr. Johnson had raised points of order against the Chair. Often the party felt that the decisions of the Chair should not have been given; but in their cooler moments they felt that the decisions could not have been otherwise.

A ripple of cheers followed Mr. O'Connell's remarks, and he added appealingly: "It is not creditable that these scenes should continue in the Dail. We should be jealous of the good name of the country's Parliament."

Mr. Blythe recalled that some years ago a certain Minister had demurred to the request of the Chair that he should withdraw a statement. The Minister concerned was informed that his suspension would be moved if he did not withdraw, and eventually he did. "I myself have had to withdraw on many occasions," added the Minister.

ADJOURNMENT SUGGESTED.

At this stage Mr. O'Connell (Labour) suggested that the debate on the motion should be postponed in view of "the present atmosphere of the House." To this Mr. Cosgrave agreed, but on conditions. "Deputies must regard the Speaker as the custodian of the rights of the Dail, and all parties must regard him as such.

"But, why," asked Captain Redmond (National League), "should it be necessary to ask for such an undertaking? It is a fundamental principle that deputies must abide by the ruling of the Chair."

There was further discussion, but the undertaking was not given, and consideration of the motion proceeded, Mr. de Valera declaring that it was both unwise and unnecessary. Messrs. Aiken, Gorey and Moore contributed short speeches, and were followed by Mr. Cosgrave, who declared that the Standing Order required in the motion would "add to the dignity, decorum and dispatch of business in the Dail"

MR. BOLAND SURPRISED.

Then Mr. G. Boland (F.F.) suggested that the President had a cut and dried scheme. This Mr. Cosgrave denied, and Mr. Boland retorted: "You know I am a member of the Committee myself."

"And a very useful member, too," rejoined Mr. Cosgrave; "very useful and competent. I wish all the members of his party could take such a detached view of things as the deputy."

This left Mr. Boland a little disconcerted. He could not be heard clearly, but he was understood to say, while the House roared with laughter: "How can I square myself with my own party now?"

SPEECHES AS BEFORE.

Finally, the motion was carried by 76 votes to 46. The Dail then took up the final debate on the Constitution (Amendment No. 6) Bill, which proposes that in future vacancies in the Senate shall be filled by the votes of the members of the Dail and the non-retiring members of the Senate.

Six Fianna Fail deputies made speeches in quick succession, but nothing more was said than was said during previous readings of the bill.

The seventh speaker—Mr. Sean Lemass—began by calling the Senate "a privileged clique" and "a privileged class." Growing tired of that, he began to twit the Government deputies, taking in turn Mr. Sheehy and Mr. Connolly. Finally he questioned the nationalist enthusiasm of the Minister for Agriculture, who retaliated with the question, "Don't you remember the good times we had at Ballykinlar?"

So Mr. Lemass went back to his original theme—the composition of the Senate, with its "dukes, earls, and British Army pensioners."

MR. COSGRAVE HITS BACK.

In a fighting speech Mr. Cosgrave defended the bill, and dubbed Mr. Lemass as "the deputy who had taken upon himself the mantle of every great orator of the past."

"One Senator, at least," he said, "was responsible for a very patriotic action as far back as 1917, although he was at that time serving in the British Army."

He pointed out that the Fianna Fail Party was not free from affiliations with the British Army, and appealed to the deputies opposite to broaden their minds and their outlook, and to realise that the best interests of the country were not served by the type of speeches that were being made by them.

That closed the debate, and the bill passed by 67 votes to 53.

"BARGAIN HUNTING."

The debate on the final stages of the Constitution (Amendment No. 13) Bill followed. The bill, together with the others in the same category, said Mr. de Valera, would bring about a clash between the two Houses—"the day would come when the Senate would be swept away."

Mr. Derrig (F.F.) followed with the allegation that the bill was "the outcome of a bargain"; and then Mr. Little (F.F.), who, referring to the small number of deputies present, aptly said that "the House was trembling on the verge of a quorum."

Mr. McDonagh (Government, Galway) took exception to the mentioning of his name by Mr. Little, and declared that he was "willing to meet the deputy anywhere." There was a note of seriousness in his voice. Mr. Little replied that he thought the best choice of venue would be the Dail itself.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the House divided on the bill, which was carried by 66 votes to 49.

The rest of the sitting was devoted to a dull, but useful, debate on the second stage of the Agricultural Credit Bill. This had not concluded when the adjournment was moved. On the motion for the adjournment Mr. Cassidy (Labour, Donegal), in an impassioned speech, charged the Government with neglect of the unemployed. The Minister for Finance replied, and the Dail adjourned till this morning.

STRANGE MOTOR ACCIDENT.

THREE PERSONS KILLED.

CAR RUNS INTO WIRE HAWSER.

Two women and a man were killed instantaneously yesterday evening in a motor car accident on the Oxford-Faringdon main road at Blackwater, near Tubney, Berkshire, when their car ran into a wire hawser which was stretched across the road.

The man, who was the driver of the car, had his neck broken, and the two women had their heads almost severed. One of them, Mrs. Gibbs, was the fifth daughter of the Ven. William Bruere Otter, Archdeacon of Lewes, and widow of Mr. Henry Martin Gibbs, who was the uncle of Lord Wroxall of Tyntesfield and of Major Evelyn Gibbs, who married Lady Helena Cambridge, a niece of the Queen. The other was Miss Alderson, Mrs. Gibbs's maid, who had been only recently engaged by her.

The chauffeur was a man named Gibson, and the car which he was driving was a large touring car.

HOW THE ACCIDENT OCCURRED.

The accident was a remarkable one. A tractor belonging to an Abingdon firm was hauling timber on to a waggon when the hawser between the two vehicles, which were on opposite sides of the road, caught the touring car as it was proceeding towards Kingston Bagpuze.

It struck the chaffeur and broke his neck, whipped Miss Alderson, who was sitting in the front seat, out on to the road, and then rebounding hit Mrs. H. M. Gibbs, of Barron Court, Flax-Bourton, Somerset, who was sitting behind her. The chauffeur was picked up dead, and both women were so dreadfully injured that they died almost immediately.

A doctor, who examined the car, found that it was in top gear.

"It must have been going at a good speed when it struck the hawser," he said. "The hawser must have been stretched across the road at a height of several feet. It apparently flattened out the wind screen, caught the chauffeur under the chin, and struck the heads of the two women."

BOMB EXPLOSION IN BROOKLYN.

SUPPOSED ACT OF REVENGE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Thursday.

A bomb, believed to have been placed by a disappointed suitor, exploded in the back of the Brooklyn home of a wealthy Italian contractor early this morning. A hole was torn in the wall and every window in the house was shattered. The man and his wife and children were hurled from their beds by the force of the explosion, and the Italian section of Brooklyn was thrown into a state of panic. No one was seriously hurt.

The police are looking for a man who, about a month ago, asked the contractor's daughter to elope with him. The woman, who was already married and the mother of four children, indignantly rejected the proposal and shot the man, wounding him in the arm.

Special Services were conducted in Trinity United Presbyterian Church, Cork, last Sunday, to inaugurate the union which has taken place between the two congregations of Trinity and Queen street. The special preacher on the occasion was the Very Rev. Dr. Hanna, of Dublin, and the church was filled. Dr. Hanna congratulated both parties on the good-will shown during the negotiations, and assured them that the whole Church would honour them for the Christian and public-spirited way in which they had formed a strong, united church.

YESTERDAY IN THE DAIL.

PROTECTING THE SPEAKER.

COMMITTEE TO REVISE THE STANDING ORDERS.

MINISTER'S TRIBUTE TO IRISH UNIONISTS.

A Fianna Fail deputy, Mr. H. Flinn, was suspended from the service of Dail Eireann yesterday, owing to his refusal to withdraw a remark directed against the Speaker.

The House adopted by 69 votes to 44 a motion by President Cosgrave: "That the Committee on Procedure and Privileges be instructed to draw up for consideration of the Dail a Standing Order, or Standing Orders, dealing specifically with deputies who bring the House into contempt by disorderly conduct towards the Chair."

Constitution Amending Bills Nos. 6 and 13 passed their fifth stage, and the second reading of the Agricultural Credits Bill was passed.

President COSGRAVE, at the conclusion of questions, moved: "That the Committee on Procedure and Privileges be instructed to draw up for the consideration of the Dail a Standing Order, or Standing Orders, dealing specifically with deputies who bring the House into contempt by disorderly conduct towards the chair."

He said that the existing Standing Orders made provision for dealing with disorderly conduct on the part of a deputy towards another, but not specifically against the Speaker. The necessity having arisen, it was necessary to have it now considered. The present disciplinary measures were entirely inadequate to meet disorderly conduct towards the chair. As to what the procedure should be, it was a matter for consideration by the committee, and then for the House when the recommendations came up. It had always been the view of the House that the chair must be protected from innuendo, insinuation, or direct personal abuse. The occupant of the chair must not be attacked for the way he discharges his functions, except by the method indicated in the Orders.

Mr. DE VALERA asked was such a motion in order. The first notice they got of it was on the previous day.

The SPEAKER said that the motion was one concerning the business of the House, and the chair had the option to accept it without four days' notice, and he decided to do so.

DEPUTY SUSPENDED.

Mr. DE VALERA—It is not an urgent matter, and could it not possibly remain over? For instance, we are of opinion that the whole question of the chair might be dealt with at the same time.

Mr. H. FLINN (Fianna Fail, Cork City) rose to a point of order. He said that in accepting this motion at a time when the House had no time to deal with it in an orderly or legal manner, according to Standing Orders, the Speaker was deliberately invading the liberties and rights of the ordinary members of the House——

The SPEAKER—That is not a point of order. It is a gross mistatement of the facts, and the deputy must withdraw it at once.

Mr. FLINN—The deputy will not withdraw.

The SPEAKER—Then all I can do is to leave the deputy's conduct to the House.

President COSGRAVE—I move that the deputy be suspended from the service of this House.

Mr. FLINN—I have great pleasure in seconding that. (Laughter, and "Hear, hear.")

On a division, Mr. Cosgrave's motion was carried by 69 votes to 44. Only the members of the Opposition voted against it.

The SPEAKER then requested Mr. Flinn to withdraw from the House.

Mr. FLINN rose, took up his attaché case, bowed to the Chair, and withdrew. He was loudly cheered by the Fianna Fail members.

When the House had quieted down,

Mr. LEMASS (Fianna Fail, Dublin South) asked if it was a matter of disorder to question the attitude of the Chair as to the Speaker's ruling in regard to the rights of private members.

The SPEAKER—The statement that the action of the Chair in accepting the motion of the President was a deliberate invasion of the rights and liberties of the members is a disorderly statement.

STATEMENT BY THE SPEAKER.

Mr. DE VALERA—Surely it ought to be in order to point out where the action of the Chair would invade the liberties of members.

Mr. O'CONNELL (Labour, Mayo South) said that when a deputy was asked to withdraw a statement, and refused to do so, it was well known that it was disorderly.

The SPEAKER—The deputy stated: "You are deliberately invading the rights of private members." That was not a point of order. He (Speaker) had not concluded his remarks on the point of order raised by Deputy de Valera. Mr. de Valera's point was perfectly clear, and they could get the decision of the House upon it now. The Speaker and Deputy Speaker were appointed by the Dail to perform certain functions laid down by Standing Orders. They had to exercise their own best judgment, and had frequently had to decide without any notice very difficult matters, and sometimes in very difficult circumstances. When these decisions were given they ought to be accepted. Clearly there was a possibility of error, and that possibility was not denied, nor was the probability of error denied, and no claim from the Chair was ever made as to infallibility. The position was that the decision of the Chair, once having been given, must be accepted. The Chair should not be subjected to accusations except on motion.

The Speaker added that he was not unprepared to make way at any time for a successor, and there was no claim for permanency. His sole desire was that the position of the Chair should not be made impossible. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. DE VALERA said that it seemed to him, in the case of Deputy Flinn, he was bringing before the Chair the aspect of the case that in accepting the motion without the usual notice, he (the Speaker) was, in his opinion, infringing the rights of members.

The SPEAKER—He said that, in accepting this motion, the Chair was deliberately invading the rights of members.. No member of this House can make that accusation except on a motion.

IMPARTIALITY OF THE CHAIR.

Mr. DE VALERA said that there had been, and still was, a feeling in his party that the rulings of the Chair had not been impartial.

The SPEAKER said that the occupant of the Chair was attached to no party.

Mr. DE VALERA said that he quite understood the difficulty of the Chair, and the only attitude they could expect was impartiality from the Chair.

Mr. O'CONNELL said that he was inclined to think that this feeling in the Fianna Fail Party's mind was due to inexperience of Parliamentary procedure, and when they were longer in the House that feeling would disappear.

They should always be jealous of the good name of the Parliament of this country. The nice little distinctions which existed in their minds as to what the Dail stood for were not understood outside the country.

INEXPERIENCED OPPOSITION.

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, mentioned that some time ago a Minister made a statement which the Chair asked him to withdraw. The Minister demurred, and the House was adjourned, and the Minister was informed that unless the statement objected to was withdrawn the President would have no option but to move his suspension. On the reassembly of the House that particular Minister withdrew the statement to which objection had been made. He mentioned this to show that what had happened in the case of Deputy Flinn would have followed in the case of a Minister. So far as he was concerned, he had been called upon to withdraw statements which he thought proper, but which the speaker objected to, and he had accepted the decision of the Chair. There was no bias in the matter. Deputies opposite had little experience of Parliamentary procedure, and had not given sufficient attention to the matter, or they would not feel aggrieved. If they wanted to do so they could put down a motion for the removal of the Speaker and have it debated.

Mr. O'CONNELL thought that discussion of the motion should be postponed for calmer consideration to-day, and suggested that all parties give an undertaking to respect the decisions of the Chair.

President COSGRAVE said that the Speaker was the custodian of the rights of the members, and his authority must be recognised and respected. He would be disposed to agree to the suggested postponement if members opposite would agree to respect the decisions of the Chair.

NOT DONE ELSEWHERE.

Captain REDMOND (Ind., Waterford) deprecated the suggestion that it should be necessary to give an undertaking to abide by the decisions of the chair. He regarded it as fundamental that deputies who came into that House should abide by the decision of the Chair. He had had experience of being dissatisfied with the decisions of chairmen in other assemblies. If the business of the House was to be carried on there was only one way of doing it—that was, by obedience to the Speaker. The suggestion that deputies at any time should have the right to question the decision of the Chair was one that would not be tolerated in any deliberative assembly in the world.

Mr. DE VALERA said that the present Standing Orders seemed to be sufficient for dealing with any disorder. It was foolish to give the Chair more powers than it had at present.

The SPEAKER pointed out that if there was objection to the ruling of the Chair it was possible for aggrieved members to put down a motion and have the matter discussed.

Mr. O'CONNELL did not agree that the object of the motion was to give the Speaker greater powers.

Mr. G. BOLAND (F.F., Roscommon) said that it would be far more honest if the President put the scheme arrived at before the House.

Mr. AIKEN said that the resolution did not ask the Committee directly to report on a measure to deal with Deputies who acted in a disorderly manner towards the Chair. Such a motion, he said, should not contain any argument, but should be in the simplest form, and he would like to know if it were in order.

The SPEAKER replied in the affirmative.

SPEAKER'S POLITICAL VIEWS.

Mr. AIKEN said that they would like it to be recognised more definitely that the occupant of the Chair should be governed by the Standing Orders and also by the Constitution. They did not hold that the Speaker could be an angel, above all parties and not a member of any political party. The Speaker was elected a member of the House because he had certain political views, and that should be recognised, and he should not be put in the impossible position of "make-believe" that he had no political views.

The SPEAKER—Nobody ever suggested that the Speaker has no political views.

Mr. AIKEN—I am glad to hear that. Or political party affiliations?

The SPEAKER—No. Political views are one thing and political party affiliations another.

Mr. AIKEN said he thought the best thing would be to have it recognised that whoever was in the Chair had political opinions, and was entitled to them. They believed that the proper way would be to ask the Committee on Procedure to draw up a scheme, which would empower whoever might be in the Chair to exercise his vote on all occasions. That would do away with the pretence that the occupant of the Chair had no political views or affiliations. All that they would ask was that he would give fair and impartial judgments. If that were done it would enable the Speaker to act in a much fairer and more impartial manner.

Mr. GOREY (Government, Carlow-Kilkenny) said that the Standing Orders when framed had never contemplated the conduct that they had witnessed last week. It was a different matter altogether to an attack on the Chair. "In my opinion," he went on, "there is no difference between the disorder of last week and that of Deputy Flinn to-day——

The SPEAKER—We are not discussing that.

A NON-PARTY QUESTION.

President COSGRAVE said that the House would make its own rules and regulations. The consideration of these would be for the Committee, who would deal with them in an orthodox manner and the Committee was representative of all sections in the House. He would strongly advise that the matter be considered apart from party or other considerations, so that they would have such regulations as would add to their dignity, decorum, and to despatch of business in the House.

Mr. G. BOLAND—Does the President suggest that they have not already a scheme to deal with it?

President COSGRAVE said that they not only had not a scheme, but no suggestions had been made. It was a matter for the Committee, and then the House.

Mr. BOLAND—I am a member of the Committee.

Mr. COSGRAVE—You are and a capable one. (Laughter.)

On a division the President's original motion was carried by 76 votes to 46.

CONSTITUTION (AMENDMENT NO. 6) BILL.

On the question that the Constitution (Amendment No. 6) Bill, 1928, be passed,

Dr. O'DOWD (F.F., Roscommon) said that before the House came to a final decision on this matter he would ask the Government Party to reconsider their decision. He said that they were entrenching imperialism firmly in this country.

Dr. RYAN (F.F., Wexford) said that the bill gave undue preference to a certain section of the people in this country who had a 50 per cent. representation in the Senate.

Mr. LEMASS said that the object of the bill was to give authority and real power in this State to the privileged class, which had been, and always would be, opposed to the Irish nation.

President COSGRAVE said that they had heard a good deal about landlordism, and the old order and a new form of nationalism was preached. He wondered did Deputies opposite who talked in that way ever read Thomas Davis or did they ever hear of Griffith. He contended that every expression of the kind he alluded to by Deputies opposite showed completely that they had no conception of the great national heroes that they had had in this country. He had seen a better conception of nationality develop in the last few years than any of the people before him had anticipated or hoped for. There were men in the Senate who, when the country required money, did all that men could possibly do to establish the credit of the country.

Within the past few weeks he had a visit from an American judge, with a letter of introduction from a friend of the party opposite, and he had told him (the President) that their proposals in connection with the Senate were sound, and that they should go ahead with them. The Deputies opposite concerned themselves first with opposition to the Government to get rid of the Government, but he would suggest that they get the Government out of their minds and consider what they themselves would do if faced with the same problem.

PATRIOTISM IN THE SENATE.

For something like fifty years a contest had gone on in connection with land. There were two parties to it, but it happened, as in many other contests in this country, that issues were introduced which divided the people. All that matter was over and done with, and the people in the Senate were of the people of this country, and they ought to be mobilised in connection with any national advancement. During the past few years measures had been introduced by the Minister for Agriculture, and they had been strengthened and improved in the Senate.

If they had had discussions of the same character on that measure in the Dail as they had in the Senate it would have been better for the Dail. They should not imagine for a moment that all the wisdom was in one party. This country required the help of all its citizens and servants, and it did not lie with any section to pour odium or contumely on another, and the fact that the people in the Senate had come in to give their aid in moulding legislation——

Mr. DE VALERA—To put themselves in a position of privilege?

President COSGRAVE—If we examine that particular statement in relation to the deputy's utterances in this House, and assuming that the senators have no right to vote, the deputy's party would be responsible for the election of eight senators, and if the members of the Senate at the present time were included the number would be six. So that the deputy loses two, and it is in respect of the loss of two senators we have had all this discussion here.

Outside that eight, he continued, there was one representative in the Senate who was responsible for a very patriotic action in the country so far back as 1917, although at that time he occupied a position in the British Army. The party opposite was not free from affiliations with the British Army, if his information was correct, and mere attachment to any particular party did not designate patriotism. He advised deputies to broaden their outlook, and to realise that the best interests of the country were not going to be served by the speeches they had had on the measure.

On a division, the fifth stage was carried by 67 votes to 53.

CONSTITUTION (AMENDMENT NO. 13) BILL.

President COSGRAVE moved the fifth stage of the Constitution (Amendment No. 13) Bill, which extends the period in which the Senate may hold up a bill to 18 months.

Mr. DE VALERA said that he would have more confidence in the protestations of the President on No. 6 Bill if the members of the Senate were not his friends. The people would soon see behind the veil of Davis which the President was trying to shroud himself in. There was no question on the Fianna Fail benches of not wishing to give every citizen equal rights, but they did not stand for privilege. In standing for these bills the Executive Council was being unfaithful to the people and the Dail, and they were pursuing a course that would result in a bigger clash than there need be. They were setting up a dam before a tide that would sweep it away.

Mr. DERRIG (F.F., Carlow-Kilkenny) asked was the Executive not prepared to leave the whole question of the future of the Senate to the open vote of the Irish people.

Mr. LITTLE (F.F., Waterford), opposing the bill, remarked that none of the Government deputies thought it worth their while to express their views. He would like to know Deputy McDonagh's reasons why he was going to vote for the bill.

Mr. McDONAGH (Government, Galway)—I hold as good a position in this country as does Mr. Little, and he has no right to refer to me. I am as useful a citizen as he is. We have too much of this, and the sooner it is stopped the better.

Mr. LITTLE—We would like to hear Mr. McDonagh's views.

Mr. McDONAGH (heatedly)—This sort of blackguardism ought to stop. It is wasting the time of the House. I am prepared to meet Deputy Little either inside or outside the House.

The DEPUTY SPEAKER intervened, and said that Deputy McDonagh could reply if he felt aggrieved.

Mr. FAHY (F.F., Galway) said that he agreed with the President that the members of the Senate, and those whom they represented, were Irishmen, and he would like to see them getting place and power, if they fell in with the national aspirations of the Irish nation. Did the Government believe that increasing the powers of the Senate was going to help towards the realisation of a Gaelic Ireland?

MR. HOGAN IN SCATHING MOOD.

Mr. HOGAN, Minister for Agriculture, said they had heard a great deal about national aspirations, but the people had been asked what were their aspirations three or four times, and on each occasion they stated quite clearly what they were. It was not for Deputy Fahy to talk about the Senate not falling in with national aspirations.

Mr. FAHY—Was it not the programme of the Cumann na nGaedheal that Ireland should be a Gaelic Ireland?

Mr. HOGAN said that was introducing a red herring. His understanding of nationality was different from the deputies opposite. "Realise once and for all," he said, "that we are independent in this country. It is because you do not know what independence is, and because you have no real independence in your blood, that this is going on. Surely any deputy on the other side who is honest must realise that there can be no interference in any matter, political, economic, or social, by the English in this country, and that the masters are here on these benches, such as they are."

Their business was to make every man in this country an Irishman, and it was positively disgusting to listen to sectarian and sectional attacks on certain people in the country. It was not Sinn Féin, and no one knew that better than the deputies on the other side, and it never was Sinn Féin.

TRIBUTE TO UNIONISTS.

"I am not afraid," continued Mr. Hogan, "to give what you call the Unionists fair play, full rights and representation, and I would go further and say this—that they have contributed brains, ability, energy, and enthusiasm, and money to this country. I remember what the people you call Southern Unionists have done for Acts like the Dairy Produce Acts, the Live Stock Breeding Act and the Land Act, and how they have remedied defects in the bills and carried out honestly and sincerely the functions of a Second Chamber; and then I hear them lightly referred to as anti-Irish and not understanding the national aspirations of the country. Supposing they were not Gaelic Leaguers—a lot of us are not——"

Mr. FAHY—I did not ask them to be.

Mr. HOGAN—Supposing their conception of a Gaelic State is not Deputy Fahy's. What do you think is going to change their minds? Showing that a Gaelic State can not only be Gaelic but efficient.

Continuing, the Minister said that he wanted to see a Gaelic State built up here, but they would never get anyone to realise what it might be until the plain Irish people made a success of it and stopped talking about politics and issues that were unreal. The one thing that would stand out from all this obstruction and debate was that there was an attack made on the conception of Irish nationalism that Wolfe Tone, Davis and Mitchell and others held.

THE SLAVE MIND.

President COSGRAVE said that Deputy de Valera had stated that the bill was to strengthen the Cumann na nGaedheal Party because it would benefit his (President's) friends, and also that the same alliance existed here as between Tories and the House of Lords. He made the deputy a present of these elaborate and illuminating arguments. They denoted the slave mind which Deputy de Valera and every member of his party had. It was an effort to bring the people back to the days when there was no political freedom, and the differences of thirty or forty years ago.

The bill was passed by 68 votes to 49.

AGRICULTURAL CREDITS BILL.

On the second reading of the Agricultural Credits Bill,

Mr. HOGAN, Minister for Agriculture, said that the bill provided that a mortgage in favour of the Agricultural Credit Corporation should take priority over equities. This was essential if farmers seeking small loans could get them without going to the expense—which would range from £5 to £30—of arranging equities. The work of the Corporation would be held up because a farmer seeking a small loan would not go to the expense or put up with the delay involved in having to go through this process.

Mr. MOORE (F.F., Wicklow) said that the bill did not apply to lands not vested in the Land Commission. There was a considerable amount of this land in the country, and he could not see why the small farmers should be excluded.

Mr. KENNEDY (F.F., Westmeath) said that his experience was that there was too much of the conservative spirit of banking in the work of the Agricultural Corporation.

Mr. O'REILLY (F.F., Westmeath) said that he expected that another bill to follow this would be necessary to complete it and bring about at least a certain amount of benefit to the farming community. The idea of the Credit Corporation was a good one, but he feared that the particular system adopted had been largely influenced by the banking profession in the country.

The restrictions imposed were too severe, and there were too many precautions taken to ensure the success of the Corporation.

Mr. JASPER WOLFE (Ind., West Cork) said that what had happened in connection with the Bill was that, when the original Bill was passed, the Agricultural Credit Corporation, owing to the peculiar system of land registry, was threatened with what was known as foot-and-mouth disease, and the Minister had brought forward this Bill as a tonic and a cure. It was a measure for which the country was calling.

Mr. AIRD (Govt., Leix-Offaly) said that the Bill was one which should have a speedy passage through the House. It was one which would be welcomed by every section of the community.

At 10.30 progress was reported.

CORK INFANTICIDE CHARGE.

GRANDMOTHER ACCUSED OF THE CRIME.

GIRL ACQUITTED.

A case of alleged infanticide, heard at the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday, took a remarkable turn. The child's body was found in a boghole at Mintina, near Kanturk, County Cork; the skull was fractured and the internal organs dissected, in order, it was suggested by counsel for the State, to make it difficult, if not impossible, to prove that the child had lived. The mother, a young domestic servant named Hannah Lenihan, was charged with the murder, and was found not guilty, having sworn that the child was born alive, and that it was killed by her grandmother, who had the body hidden and gave her £1 "not to tell."

The grandmother now will be charged, and the mother of the child will be called upon to give evidence against her.

The indictment against the girl charged her with the murder of her unnamed female child on the 18th January last. She was defended by Mr. Art O'Connor (instructed by Mr. Campbell); while Mr. W. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Dudley White, K.C. (instructed by the State Solicitor), appeared for the prosecution.

DISSECTED ORGANS.

Mr. Carrigan, in opening the case, said that the murder was carried out in a deliberate and shocking manner, and one would have imagined that there could not be human ghouls among them capable of perpetrating such a crime.

Superintendent Joseph Devine said that when he questioned the girl she at first made a denial, but afterwards she made a statement accusing her grandmother.

Mr. Justice Hanna—Do you know of the existence of any superstition in the neighbourhood?—No.

£1 "NOT TO TELL."

The case for the prosecution having closed,

The prisoner, examined by Mr. O'Connor, described being questioned by the Guards about the baby, and her denial and afterwards her admission.

What induced you to make that admission?—My grandmother told me.

The witness said that she gave birth to her baby on New Year's night, when her grandmother was with her, and she saw the baby dead on the floor.

Mr. Justice Hanna—Had you anything to do with taking it from the house and putting it in the bog hole?—No. My grandmother told me about it.

To Mr. Carrigan—What I have now told is the truth. The baby was born alive.

Mr. Justice Hanna—You know that your grandmother will be prosecuted for this, and that you will have to give evidence against her?—Yes.

ACQUITTED.

Mr. O'Connor then addressed the jury for the prisoner, urging that they could not possibly convict his client of this crime of murder on the evidence.

Mr. Carrigan did not reply on the part of the State.

Mr. Justice Hanna, in charging the jury, said that it was a matter of extreme pleasure to him in having assigned counsel in this most serious case that Mr. O'Connor had conducted the defence with such consummate ability and without putting forward one unnecessary word. He believed confidently that Mr. O'Connor had taken his place in the ranks of a profession to which he was certain to prove an ornament.

The jury, after a few minutes' consideration, returned with a verdict of "Not guilty."

Mr. Justice Hanna—I quite approve of that verdict.

The Court adjourned until next Tuesday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

BREMEN AIRMEN IN LIMERICK.

Major Fitzmaurice apologised to the Mayor, the Reception Committee and the citizens of Limerick for the fact that the airmen were not able to spend a longer time in Limerick. He was sorry that Captain Köhl was not able to be with them—sorry for Captain Köhl because of the wonderful reception he had missed. Having mentioned that although he was from Dublin himself his people came from Limerick, Major Fitzmaurice said they had their German-Irish combination, which was fraught with great good for the future of Ireland. It was for the future that they were all working, and he believed that they would yet see Ireland one of the happiest and best little countries in the world.

THE BARON'S TRIBUTE.

Baron Von Huenefeld, who also replied, said that he was very happy to be with them—happy because he knew that many, many countrymen of his own had found home and work in their city, and for that they were very grateful. The story of his country and the story of Ireland were very much the same. They were very wonderful stories. This, he said, was to be his farewell speech. They would never forget the interest and the welcome extended to them by the Irish National Army and the Irish people. He was very proud that the Irish Army had presented him with a sword, because he thought that every time that it was necessary and possible they would in future fight together for the best ideals in the world. To-morrow he would go back to his own country, but he would never forget the Green Isle and the Irish people, and that one of its soldiers was his kamerad, James Fitzmaurice.

The train left for Dublin at 12.30 this morning.

PRODUCE FIRM'S LOSS.

In the King's Bench Division, Belfast, judgment was delivered in the case stated by the Recorder of Belfast, in which the Commissioners of Inland Revenue were the appellants, and the respondents Messrs. Hugh T. Barrie, Ltd., produce merchants, Belfast.

The matter came before the Court on appeal by way of a case stated by the Recorder over-ruling a determination of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue as to the amount of the deficiency for excess profits duty sustained by the respondent company during the accounting period ending 30th June, 1921.

The case arose out of the rescission of a contract for bags by Messrs. Barrie at a loss to them, and the Lord Chief Justice, in giving his judgment, said that he gave his reasons with a certain amount of diffidence. The case was a border line one, and he had the misfortune to differ from his colleague, Mr. Justice Brown, whose knowledge of the intricacies of book-keeping was so much greater than his own. The question for them was whether the loss under the agreement of the 4th August could be referred back to the accounting period prior to June 30th, not for any legal or commercial purpose, but for that of attracting an exemption under the Revenue Statutes. In his opinion and in that sense this loss did not fall within the accounting period. He could not hold that the determination of the contract was on the same footing as payment on delivery of goods under it, and was of opinion that the loss was incurred under the new and substituted agreement, therefore the loss could not be brought as a deduction into the accounting period.

Mr. Justice Brown said that the Recorder stated that the sole question propounded for him was—at what date, whether before or after June 30th, 1921, a loss arising out of a certain contract should be considered to have been sustained by the respondent company. He was of opinion that the loss was made or incurred by a trading transaction, and that the Recorder was right in holding that it must be included in the accounting period. As he differed, however, with the Lord Chief Justice, and being the junior judge, he formally withdrew his judgment.

The question of costs was left over for consideration by Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., who appeared for the respondents. The Attorney-General, K.C., and Mr. G. Dougherty represented the Inland Revenue Commissioners.

STOCKS STRONG AT THE CLOSE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)
NEW YORK, Thursday.

Stocks opened strong, and the easier monetary conditions stimulated an advance, in which nearly a score of issues reached new "highs." The sudden death of the Belgian financier, M. Alfred Loewenstein, had no visible effect on prices on the Stock Exchange. In the final trading, despite some realising, in which Case Threshing Machine reacted sharply from its early high level, further considerable advances occurred.

Money on call closed easy at 5 per cent. bid and 5¼ per cent. asked. Business done during the day ranged from 5 to 6 per cent., with 6 per cent. the ruling rate. The last loan was made at 5 per cent. Prime Mercantile Paper was quoted at 4¾ to 5 per cent. Sterling exchange steady. Silver ⅛c. lower at 59⅛.

WAGES DISPUTE IN BAKERY TRADE.

CONFERENCE IN DUBLIN TO-DAY.

For some time past efforts have been made on the part of the Dublin Master Bakers to obtain a reduction of wages both in respect of bread-van drivers and indoor workers, but without success. Now notices have been issued that a "cut" will be put in operation this week-end. The men announce that they will resist the "cut."

It appears that as far back as September, 1926, the master bakers asked the workers to agree to a reduction in wages, but in view of the fact that three different unions were concerned, it was impossible to negotiate. The Free State Ministry of Industry and Commerce intervened in January, 1927; but its efforts were unavailing, apparently, for the same reason.

It is understood that the Ministry is again taking action, and that the parties concerned have been invited to a conference to be held to-day.

The proposed "cut" in respect of the bread-van drivers, who receive 81s. per week and upwards, is 5s. on the first pay day in July; 3s. in September, and 3s. in December. Indoor workers' wages are to be reduced pro rata, except the bakers, who are not involved, inasmuch as they already have, by agreement, accepted a "cut" of 9s. per week.

WINNIPEG GRAINS.

WHEAT opened steady, ⅝c. to ⅜c. up. Good export sales, estimated at a million and a half bushels, a part of which was credited as being for Russia, together with higher Manitoba offers to Europe, stimulated early advances. Then the market reacted under the influence of a bearish Government report concerning the crops in the three provinces. The close was easy, with prices ⅞c. to 1¼c. down. Opening options—July, 139; Oct., 139½; Dec., 137⅞. Closing options—July, 137½; Oct., 138; Dec., 136¼. Rye easy, 1½c. to 1⅛c. lower. Closing options—July, 114¼; Oct., 111⅞. NEW YORK COTTON.

COTTON opened steady, 15 to 20 points higher on better cable advices, but soon eased under realising. The advance was resumed later, a bullish interpretation being given to the weekly weather report as showing conditions favourable for weevil infestation. New Orleans buying met profit-taking, but subsequently buying by Wall street houses rallied the market, which closed firm at 40 to 50 points rise. Spot quiet and 40 points up.

Messrs. Proctor and Gamble estimate the area planted at 45,120,000 acres, and the increase at 7.5 per cent.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Thursday.

WHEAT opened easy, ⅞c. down to ⅛c. up. A bearish estimate of 180,000,000 bushels for the Kansas yield, together with heavy carlot receipts in the South-West and advices indicating that the harvesting returns in sections of Illinois were much better than expected, created an easy tendency, and at the close values were 2½c. to 1⅞c. lower. Where
a Crime

The Norwegians regard dirt as a crime—and eight out of every ten families throughout Norway use Sunlight Soap.

In the great seaport of Bergen you will actually find it in nine homes out of ten.

But it was the women of Britain who first recognised, 40 years ago, the supreme purity and quality of Sunlight Soap. And where British women led, the whole world is following to-day. Everywhere the sales of Sunlight are increasing year by year—not only because it lathers so easily, washes so thoroughly, leaves the clothes and the house so sweet and fresh, but because Sunlight Soap is—to-day as it has ever been—the best and purest soap that money can buy.

TERCENTENARY OF BUNYAN.

A committee, representing the various Churches of the Reformation, with the Archbishop of Dublin as chairman, has made preliminary arrangements for a great public celebration of the tercentenary of Bunyan, whose writings have done so much for the Christian religion and taken so high a place in English literature. The Rev. Dr. John A. Hutton, editor of the British Weekly, and previously Minister in succession of Belhaven Church, Glasgow, and Westminster Chapel, London, has been secured to give an address on Bunyan. The celebration in Dublin will be held in the Round Room of the Mansion House, on Thursday, 22nd November, next.

THE DONEGAL FEIS.

At a meeting of the Donegal Executive Feis Committee at Letterkenny dissatisfaction was expressed at the train arrangements on the part of the Lough Swilly Railway Company on the second day of the feis. It was unanimously agreed that the feis next year would have to be a three-days' fixture. It was suggested that the Cardinal O'Donnell Memorial should take the form of a Feis Hall.

The Loan is issued to provide funds for the establishment and construction of the Water Supply and Sewerage Service.

The Loan is secured upon the corporate rates and revenues of the City, from whatever source arising.

An annual Cumulative Sinking Fund of 1 per cent. per annum will be paid to the Trustees of the City Debts Redemption Fund, and applied to the purchase of this Loan at or below par, and accrued interest, but if not obtainable at that price the money will be used in the purchase of other Australian Securities on the London Market.

Brisbane, the capital of Queensland, has an estimated population of 260,000.

The City is an amalgamation of two cities, six towns, ten shires, and parts of two other shires, the amalgamation dating from 1st October, 1925. In addition to control of other municipal enterprises, the Council owns all the Tramways in the metropolitan area and also the Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Board, which was taken over by the Council as from 2nd April, 1928.

Rates are levied on the unimproved capital value, and there is no limit of rating. The rate levied this year is 10½d. in the £ on general lands and 7½d. in the £ on rural lands. The annual rate is £966,562.

Existing Loans amount to £15,551,311, of which £4,480,911 is due to the Queensland Government.

The above Loans include £2,000,000 borrowed in connection with the taking over of the Brisbane Tramways and extensions and additions to same.

The revenue of the City for year 1927 was £2,782,252 and the expenditure £2,924,364, including Sinking Fund payments.

The Stock will be registered at the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, 36-41 New Broad street, London, E.C.2, and will be transferable in any amount not involving fractions of £1 by deed, free of stamp duty.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES.

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN FLUCTUATING.

GUINNESS AGAIN EXCITED.

The Stock Markets opened depressed on further sale pressure, aided by the accidental death of a noted International financial magnate, but buying orders were well balanced, and after absorbing all shares offered at "slumping" levels, further strong support was offered, and in some notable cases prices recovered even more quickly than they declined. The Guinness Market opened apparently all sellers, but the supply was all taken mainly for the London market, and a scramble for shares set in. The opening price was ⅛ lower at 40½, and the price was pressed back to 40, ¼, ⅛, ¼, 5/16, ¼. Fresh buyers did not fare so well, as 40⅜, ½ followed; and at the later session the quotation jumped, without intermediate price, to 41⅛, and after hours 42 and 42¼ was paid, or an actual recovery of 1s. 6d. a share on the day. Marconis opened weak at a further decline, but later on substantial support was given, and the price more than recovered the lost ground. Several of the leaders in the Manufacturing Group, like Imperial Tobaccos and Courtaulds, also opened at declines, but buyers later turned the market upwards. Better prices were current for the Funds, both British and Local, and Dublin Corporation 5 p.c. further rose sharply. Bank of Ireland Stock established a fresh rise on persistent "cash" support. British and Irish Steam Pref. closed firm. Support for Home Rails turned up, and, as usual, sellers became shy. Great Southern Ord. and Debs. advanced, but the Guaranteed Stock was again lower. Dublin United Tram Ord. rallied a little. Big dealing took place in Imperial Tobaccos at lower prices, but an initial fall in "Bats" was made good. Coats and Cotton Ord. were less firm. Television Shares were again bid for, with Internationals up to 10s. 6d. Photomaton Shares fell back further.

LONDON HEAVY.

INTERNATIONAL HOLDINGS GROUP SLUMP.

Confusion reigned in the London Stock Markets in the early hours yesterday following the announcement of the death of Captain Alfred Loewenstein, the Belgian financier, and in some instances prices quoted were fully fifty per cent. below those ruling at the close on the previous day. Thus, Hydro Electric dropped abruptly from 51½ to 25, while International Holdings fell away to 115 at one time. There was, however, some recovery later in the day. With regard to the latter, it is interesting to recall that, less than a month ago, the quotation stood at 330. Apart from these two outstanding features, Industrials generally were inclined to sag. Quiet conditions prevailed in the Gilt-edged section, and the final levels were practically without exception the same as on Wednesday. There was also very little going on in Foreign Government Stocks, but here and there lower rates were returned, Peruvian Corps. easing further, while Chinese 4½ per cent. and German and Poland Sevens were all put lower. Home Rails remained a weak market, and further losses were marked throughout the list. Underground Ord., however, were held at their higher level. A further decline also took place among Colonial and Foreign Rails. Central Argentines went off sharply, as did the Buenos Ayres issues, while Mexican Rails and Entre Rios also finished below their overnight values.

Apart from those shares affected by the International Holdings collapse, there was little going on in Industrials, although, generally speaking, prices were easier. Gramophone descriptions sought lower levels, as did Textiles and Artsilks, while Commercial Motor Shares were easier on a little profit-taking. Tobaccos were another dull spot, while elsewhere Match issues, United Molasses and Dunlops were put lower. Oils also displayed a weaker tendency, and among Mines, Kaffirs were irregular, while Tins were lower where altered.

COURTAULD'S INTERIM DIVIDEND RAISED.

Courtauld's interim dividend was announced last night at 5 per cent. actual (1s. per share) on the new capital of £24,000,000. Last year the interim was 7½ per cent. (1s. 6d. per share) on £12,000,000; so that the dividend is increased by 2½ per cent. This year the interim dividend will absorb £1,200,000, as against £900,000 last year. The final dividend for 1927 was 3s. 6d. per share.

SCOTTISH AMALGAMATED SILKS, LTD.

The Glasgow Financial Trust, Ltd., announces that the list in connection with the issue of 3,700,000 Preferred Ordinary shares of 5s. each and 7,400,000 Deferred shares of 1s. each at par for Scottish Amalgamated Silks, Ltd., was closed at 3 p.m. yesterday (Thursday). Country and Continental applications, however, received first post to-day (Friday) will be considered. The prospectus appeared in the Irish Times on Tuesday.

A NEW INVENTION LINKING SIGHT AND SOUND.

The genius of British inventors has achieved something which the whole American film industry has vainly strived after for years. The coming of the phototone means that before long every village picture hall in the kingdom will be able to give its audiences exactly the same musical accompaniment and "effects" as the most expensive West End cinemas, with very little cost to the cinema proprietors. For those who have their own cinema projectors at home there is an inexpensive phototone, to serve the same purpose and made to work in conjunction with the existing household gramaphone.

BREWERY'S BUMPER RESULTS.

An increase of £125,000 in the profits, before charging Debenture interest, is shown in the report of Hoare and Co., Limited (The Red Lion Brewery), for the year to April 18 last. Last year's profit of £502,003, however, included only six and a half months' trading of the City of London Brewery properties, which were purchased late in August, 1926, whereas the present accounts include not only twelve months' trading of those properties, but also three months' trading of the properties of the Commercial Brewery Company, which were purchased during the past year. The report states that the results can be considered highly satisfactory. As was announced on June 29 last, the final dividend proposed is 12 per cent., making 19 per cent.

IMPERIAL CHEMICALS.

Shareholders entitled to subscribe for new shares in Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., on bonus terms, are reminded that this is the last day on which the forms of application may be lodged. After to-day the rights will lapse.

BANK OF ENGLAND RETURN.

DECREASE IN PUBLIC DEPOSITS.

Owing to an expansion of £910,000 in note circulation, the Bank of England reserve is only about £231,000 higher. End of the half-year borrowing by the market is not fully indicated by the increase of nearly £19,000,000 in the other securities owing to the repayments on the first three working days of this week. The Government securities are £2,000,000 lower, while there is a decrease of fully £4,000,000 in the public deposits. The private deposits are £21,236,000 higher for the week at nearly £127,000,000. Because of this movement mainly the proportion of reserve to liabilities has fallen fully 4½ to 38½ per cent.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

RALLY IN GUINNESS.

SENSATIONAL MOVEMENTS IN INTERNATIONAL HOLDINGS.

Some sensational movements were witnessed in the Industrial Market yesterday, following the announcement of Captain Loewenstein's death. International Holdings and Hydro-Electric were the two shares mostly affected, and at one time it was very difficult to deal, but on a reassuring statement being issued in the afternoon a steadier tendency developed, and prices closed well above the lowest. International Holdings dipped at one time to 100, and eventually finished with a net decline of 70 at 145, with Hydro-Electrics closing 11 points down on balance at 40, after being down to 23. Other Canadian-American issues moved in sympathy. Brazilian Traction Common gave way to 58 on one occasion, but recovered finally to 60½, with Barcelona Common marked down 2¼ to 58¼. Mexico Trams lost 2 at 32½, but Shawinigans closed firm at 99.

Talking Machine issues reflected the unsettled tendency noticeable at the opening, but prices steadied in the final dealings. Victors improved from 89½ to 91½, with Columbia Graphophones closing at 13½ after 13; Gramophones at 11⅛ after 10⅞, and Duophones 3⅜ after 3 5/16. Vocalions were only slightly easier on balance at 2¼; Edison Bell Ordinary at 1⅞; Vocalion (Foreign) at 1⅜; British Brunswicks at 14s.; Goodsons at 7s. 9d., and Dominion Gramophones at 5s. 6d.

Artificial Silks and Textiles also showed a certain amount of hesitation at first, but rallied later. British Celanese Ordinary opened at 3⅞, but closed buyers at 4, which left them 1/16 better on balance, the Preference closing at 43s. after 42s. Both American and Canadian Celanese Common finished unaltered. Courtaulds recovered to 4½ bid after being down to 4⅜. After business hours the company announced an interim dividend of 1s. per share, free of tax, on the increased capital. British Enkas gave way to 2 11/16; Snia Viscosa to 34s. 9d.; Nuera Ordinary to 1⅜, and the Deferred to 1 9/16; but British Acetate Ordinary hardened further to 10s. 6d., and the Deferred to 6s. 3d. Glanzstoff finished at 6 5/16 after being 6¼.

Of the Textiles, J. and P. Coats closed buyers at 67s. 3d., after 67s., Fine Spinners at 49s. 6d., Listers at 28s. 6d., and Wardles at 3⅜. In Stores, Catering and Food Supply shares, Margarine Unions reacted at first to 42s. 9d., but rallied before the close to 43s. 1½d.

Iron and Steel descriptions generally remained on the dull side. Mond Nickels slipped back to 8⅝, closing with a net loss of ¼ at 8⅝. Bengal Iron receded to 25s. 3d., Babcocks to 67s. 9d., and Cargo Fleets to 12s. 6d. Support, however, was given to Wm. Cory at 58s. and Hadfields at 18s. 3d.

Weakness was displayed by some of the Shipping issues, noticeably Royal Mails, which, on reported forced sales, were marked down 9 to 67½, the 5 per cent. Preference losing 2 at 75½. Furness Withy were offered around 38s. 6d., and British Oil Shipping at 22s. 6d. Insurance shares were inclined to be easier.

Breweries had an irregular appearance. Bass Ordinary came on offer at 71s. 9d., and Watney Deferred at 303½, but buyers came forward for Guinness, which rallied 10 to 420. Tobaccos generally were marked down. Both "Bats" at 116s. 6d. and "Imps" at 113s. 9d. lost 9d., with Carreras 1/16 down at 17 11/16.

Cable securities had a fairly steady appearance without much variation on balance. Of the Wireless issues, Marconis weakened further at first to 63s. 6d., but recovered smartly in the later dealings, being finally 2s. 9d. to the good on balance at 67s. 3d. The Debentures hardened to 157½, but the Preference closed on the dull side at 4⅜. Canadian Marconis shed 6d. at 25s. 6d.

Land and Investment shares drooped, Hudson's Bays closing at 5⅞, Sudans at 4 5/16. Electrical generally maintained a steady appearance, but Newspapers were again on offer, Associated Deferred at 8⅞, "Mirrors" at 36s. 3d., "Pictorials" at 4¾, and Allieds at 2¾.

In other directions, United Molasses gave way at first to 90s. 9d., but recovered later to 92s. Kreuger and Toll eased to 30⅞. Imperial Chemicals Ordinary receded to 36s. 9d. and Dunlops to 27s. 10½d.

OIL SHARES MARKED DOWN.

In common with most other departments of the Stock Exchange, the Oil share market had a heavy appearance at the commencement of business yesterday following the news of the death of Captain Loewenstein. Although this section of the "House" is not directly affected, fears existed that the heavy fall in the Loewenstein stocks might lead to selling here, and, therefore, prices generally were marked down, mainly as a precautionary measure. Among the recognised leaders Shells gave way at one time to 5⅛, but a moderate demand in the later dealings quickly restored the price to the overnight's level of 5 5/16. The Bearer shares were quoted ex the final dividend for the past year of 3s. per share, closing at 5 5/16 ex dividend. Royal Dutch, after having been offered at 33⅛, left off unchanged. Mexican Eagles at one period fell to 31s. 9d., but they hardened later to 32s. 3d., although this still left them 1s. 9d. down on the day; the 8 p.c. Participating Prefs. also declined 1s. 9d. to 31s. 9d. Anglo-Persians and Burmahs gave way 1/16 to 3 11/16 and 4 11/16 respectively. Venezuelan descriptions developed a dull tone. V.O.C. Holdings declined 1/16, the Ord. finishing at 4 and the Prefs. at 3 11/16. Creole Petroleums touched 2 11/16, and were finally 1/16 down at 2 11/16, while British Controlled Common and Preferred weakened to 5s. 10½d. and 7s. 10½d. respectively. In the Trinidad group Apex lost 1/16 at 1 5/16. Trinidad Leaseholds were down to a like extent at 3 11/16, and Centrals gave way 6d. to 4s. In other directions Lobitos declined 1/16 to 2 11/16. Anglo-Ecuadorians lost 1/16 at 1⅛, and Kern Rivers fell 3d. to 8s. 9d.

RUBBER SHARES IDLE.

There was still very little business passing in the Rubber Share market, while quotations were again marked lower in several directions. Sumatra Consolidateds were a heavy spot, a loss of 3s. 9d. being marked on the day, while United Sua Betong at 58s. 1½d. and F.M.S. Plantations at 25s. were each 1s. 3d. easier. Kuala Lumpur also finished 1s. 3d. down, as did Sapong, while Linggi dropped 1s. to 27s. 6d. In the commodity market spot and July fetched 9½d. to 9¾d. per pound, while October to December sold 9⅝d. to 9¾d. per pound.

DUBLIN CORPORATION STOCK. 1950-1970.

NEW 5 PER CENT. ISSUE AT 95 PER CENT.

To-morrow the Dublin City Commissioners will consider a notice of motion regarding the creation and issue of "Dublin Corporation Five per Cent. Sterling Stock, 1950/1970." It is pointed out that the Minister for Local Government and Public Health has sanctioned the borrowing by the Dublin City Commissioners of £100,000 for Small Dwellings Acquisition Acts purposes, £450,000 for housing purposes, and £200,000 for electricity supply purposes. The notice of motion continues: "We do hereby create stock, to be called Dublin Corporation Five per Cent. Sterling Stock, 1950/1970, to be issued to the nominal amount of £800,000, calculated at the sale price to produce a net sum not exceeding £750,000. That such stock shall be issued at not less than ninety-five per cent., and shall bear interest at the rate of five pounds per annum, payable half-yearly on January 1 and July 1. That such stock shall be redeemable at par on July 1, 1970, the Dublin Corporation having the option of redemption at par in whole or in part on or after July 1, 1950, on giving three months' notice, and shall be transferable in books and not by deed. That agreements be entered into with the Commissioners of Inland Revenue in England and the Revenue Commissioners in Saorstat Eireann for payment to them of a composition for stamp duty on transfers of stock to be issued under this resolution."

DUOPHONE AND UNBREAKABLE RECORD COMPANY, LIMITED.

NEW COMPANY FORMED TO DEAL WITH FOREIGN RIGHTS.

Last evening the directors of the Duophone and Unbreakable Record Company, Ltd., gave notice to its shareholders that a new company is now in course of formation under the name of Duophone (Foreign), Ltd., and that on or about the 17th July a public issue of shares of the new company is intended to be made. Upon such issue it is stated that preferential consideration in allotment will be given to applications received from both Preference and Ordinary shareholders of the Duophone and Unbreakable Record Co., Ltd., who are registered as such at the close of business on Monday week—July 16th. This most recent expansion of interests on the part of the Duophone Company marks another step forward in its somewhat remarkable development policy since it acquired the British Brunswick Company.

COMPANY MEETING.

THE PARENT TRUST AND FINANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.

SATISFACTORY POSITION.

DIVIDEND OF 20 PER CENT.

The thirty-first ordinary general meeting of shareholders in this company was held yesterday at the Hotel Cecil, Strand, London, W.C.—Sir Arthur Du Cros (Chairman of the company) presiding.

The Secretary (Mr. E. Morrissey) read the notice convening the meeting and also the report of the auditors.

The Chairman—Ladies and gentlemen, the figures of the balance sheet show but slight variations over those of last year, and do not call for much comment from me. The investments are higher by £237,000, this increase being balanced by additions on the other side to the items of forward commitments and loans to the company of some £163,000—the balance of the increase is accounted for by a decrease of the net liquid assets.

Although the profits shown were the highest recorded since 1900, the revenue accruing from investments was less by some £30,000 than was the case last year. This difference was more than made good by the trading business of the company. It was expected, as I have mentioned before, that the fixed return from investments would be diminished until such time as the benefits from our real estate interests began to figure in the accounts. So far, in respect of the large investments of this nature held by the company both at home and abroad, no credit has been taken in the profit and loss account for appreciation, and no revenue has been taken in other than interest on Debentures, Notes and loans.

We have followed our usual practice in regard to dividends. The Preference and Ordinary Shares have been paid in full for the year, and an interim dividend of 7½ per cent. on the Deferred Shares. The final dividend of 12½ per cent. which will be proposed on the Deferred Shares, making a total of 20 per cent. for the year, will leave a balance of over £100,000 to be carried forward, or £17,000 more than last year. The carry forward is now more than sufficient to cover a full year's dividend on the Preference and Ordinary Shares.

INVESTMENTS.

The item of investments is the figure in the balance sheet in which the shareholders will be most interested. The general investments and loans are considerably spread, and may be classified as follows:—Bonds, Debentures and loans, 42 per cent.; Preference and Preferred-Ordinary Shares, a further 33 per cent., and Ordinary and Deferred Shares account for the remaining 25 per cent. There remains the item of investments in allied companies; these are represented and covered by the tangible realisable assets of those companies.

The great majority of the freehold real estate investments of the company are situated in London. There are two exceptions, these being our holdings in the City of San Paulo Improvements and Freehold Land Company, Limited, and in Durban North Estates, Limited. Of the total figure of the investments appearing in the balance sheet at just £4,229,000, over £1,600,000, or nearly 40 per cent., is represented by securities based on freehold real estate.

Some particulars in regard to these holdings may be of interest. We hold a controlling interest in the Covent Garden Properties Company, Limited. The assets of that company formerly consisted of Covent Garden Market itself and a number of adjoining freehold properties, together with what is, I believe, the oldest patent medicine enterprise in the country—that of Beecham's Pills. It was an odd combination, and we considered it desirable to sell the patent medicine business and to concentrate exclusively on real estate. This has been done since we met last, with the result that the assets now consist of freehold properties in the Covent Garden area, the market, and the important properties recently owned by Lord Derby in Bootle, Liverpool, and district, which were purchased in part out of the proceeds of the patent medicine business. These properties consisted of ground rents bringing in some £83,000 per annum, freehold properties let on short leases, as well as some rack rents and freehold land still vacant for development. The ground rents are abundantly secured and absolutely safe, being covered by rack rentals for the most part from six to ten times, the whole property being valued at nearly two-and-a-quarter million pounds. Some idea of its magnitude may be gathered from the fact that it consisted of 22,000 houses, shops, works, and other properties.

The results of this operation have been entirely satisfactory, and we have further definite plans for the development of the Covent Garden Company, which already is one of the largest and strongest property companies in the Kingdom.

COVENT GARDEN ESTATE.

Your company, as I have said, possesses a controlling interest in the Covent Garden Properties Company, which is represented by 8 per cent. Preferred-Ordinary Shares and Deferred-Ordinary Shares.

On the valuations and revenue of the Covent Garden Properties and the Derby Estate our Preferred-Ordinary Shares are fully covered both as to capital and dividend, and it may repay shareholders to study for themselves the position of the Deferred-Ordinary Shares when the balance sheet of the Covent Garden Company appears in the course of the next couple of months.

CITY OF SAN PAULO IMPROVEMENTS.

Another real estate investment to which I made particular reference a couple of years ago is that in the City of San Paulo Improvements and Freehold Land Company, Limited, which has an issued capital of £1,700,000 in Ordinary Shares and £500,000 of Debentures. We are mainly interested in the Ordinary Shares, though we hold some of the Debentures as well, which are covered more than seven times, and are an exceptionally good security. When I last mentioned the matter here the £1 shares stood at about 6s., and I recommended shareholders to examine and appraise the then forthcoming balance sheet for themselves. We ourselves retained and added to our holding, and the shares are now quoted at 22s. 6d.—an important appreciation of value which has helped to strengthen our internal position.

I personally spent a fortnight in San Paulo at the beginning of the present year, and for the second time made a thorough examination of the company's affairs and prospects. I was more than satisfied with all I saw. Its management is well organised and efficient, and the properties, which may be described as city properties, are steadily appreciating in value. The Chairman of the San Paulo Company recently pointed out to his shareholders that, subject to trifling expenditure, quite £2,000,000 in value of land is now developed and is being steadily sold. A further and larger area of greater potential value remains for future development, and the company possesses other important assets in the form of cash and book debts. All the properties are well situated in different quarters of the city, and the San Paulo Company possesses the necessary resources for the finance of its business. When its balance sheet is issued in the course of a week or two, I again advise shareholders to examine it and satisfy themselves as to the sound position of the company's affairs and the intrinsic value of this investment.

THE FOUNDLING ESTATE.

Another, and the largest, of our property investments is that in the Foundling Estate. This is one of the most important estates in London, as you know. It is very centrally situated, within a network of railway, omnibus and tram services, and contains some 700 properties, the majority on short leases. I dealt in some detail with this investment last year, and need only add to-day that the appreciation of values and increase of revenue which the directors looked for have been steadily taking place. I see no reason to modify my statement of last year that the net rental, which in 1925 was about £44,600 per annum, should double itself by 1935, and after 1940 should exceed £115,000 per annum—not £107,000 as I said last year. It follows naturally that rentals are affected by sales, and in calculating revenue I am including the interest which will accrue upon the capital proceeds of sales.

These figures, however, do not include the revenue obtainable by converting properties into flats, maisonettes, and offices, and this profitable method of development will be adopted as opportunities occur. As shareholders are aware, the majority of the leases on the Foundling Estate fall in during the next two years, and every opportunity is being offered to existing tenants to enter into new leases at fair rentals.

None of the figures I have quoted take into account the revenue which will accrue from the vacant central site of nine acres, as to which there has been considerable comment in the Press and elsewhere during our ownership of the estate.

THE COMPANY'S POSITION.

The company's position on this matter can be stated in a few words. The site is a very valuable one, and we see our way quite clearly to develop it successfully by the erection of residential flats, as other owners have successfully done in other parts of London. Many people both in and out of the district prefer this form of development to any other, and its possibility was referred to by Mr. Spyer at a meeting of the shareholders of the Foundling Estates, Ltd., as far back as 1925. By this means we can realise the full value of the land, and obtain in addition a very satisfactory revenue upon our building expenditure. It is a sound and practicable form of business which is well understood, and we see no difficulty in carrying it through. We would have proceeded with our plans before now had it not been that a strong sentimental feeling exists that this site should be preserved for some purpose analogous to the main purpose of Thomas Coram, the founder of the Foundling charity. That, I should have thought, was a question more for the vendors of the property than for the purchasers, but, nevertheless, we have taken very sympathetically to this idea.

I mentioned to you last year and the year before that we had received no business proposal on these lines, and quite recently we were obliged to point out that we could not continue to hold the property idle on the chance of such plans maturing. This resulted in an offer being made, which in our view was below the vacant site value of the land and very far below its commercial value to this company. The offer has therefore been declined, but the negotiations are not closed, and we still have a genuine desire to meet the wishes of those who are interesting themselves in this public and benevolent object.

The publicity has brought me several communications from shareholders, and their views may be summed up in an extract from one letter which I will read. The writer, whom I do not know, remarks that "business is business, and charity is charity. I am quite able," he says, "to manage my own donations to charity. I think the Foundling site question is one of business pure and simple, and trust your board will deal with it on these lines." From a strictly business standpoint we can hardly quarrel with that view, but, nevertheless, I trust the shareholders will accord the directors a considerable amount of latitude in the special circumstances of this case. In no case, however, could we consent to the sale of this part of the Foundling Estate at a loss to our shareholders.

SOUTH AFRICAN PROPERTIES.

We continue to receive satisfactory reports from the Durban Property Company, in which we have a predominant interest. The bridge over the Umgeni River, which separates the property from the City of Durban, has been completed, and was opened by the Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of South Africa. This bridge gives direct access to the estate, and brings it within twenty minutes' motor run of the centre of the City of Durban. The rights to the foreshore have been secured, and schemes are in hand for improving this most attractive portion of the estate. It will be remembered that the property consists of some 1,200 acres of land running down to the sea. Sales of land have been maintained at a steady rate, and the investment is working out satisfactorily according to plan.

There is only one other important investment in real estate which I need mention. This company holds a substantial investment in Second Debenture of Grand Buildings (Trafalgar Square), Limited, and a controlling interest in the Ordinary Shares of that company. The old Grand Hotel is now being converted into up-to-date business offices and shops. Its situation, as you all know, is one of the most commanding in London, and 90 years ago was described by Sir Robert Peel as "the finest site in Europe." The reconditioned property has been valued at over £1,000,000, and we have no doubt but that it will prove to be one of the most successful of the many undertakings of this class in London.

INDUSTRIAL INVESTMENTS.

In addition to these real estate investments we are large holders of many widely-spread industrial investments, such as—in Debenture Stock and Preference Shares—Denman Picture Houses, B.S.A. Debentures, Hall Lewis Notes; in Preference Shares—Drapery Trust, Associated Theatre Properties, Beecham's Pills, Dunlop Rubber "C," Gaumont Pictures.

In Ordinary Shares we have important holdings in—Corporation and General Securities, Associated Fire Clay Companies, Denman Street Trust, Hoffmann Manufacturing Company, International Tea Stores, Joseph Lucas, Ltd., H. C. Stephens, Ltd., and others.

The company experiences the ups and downs with its investments which are usual in a business of this kind. During the last year we have had our reverses as well as our successes. Only one of these reverses was of any moment—an investment made several years since which turned out unsatisfactorily, and has been finally disposed of, and will trouble us no more.

ANTHRACITE COLLIERIES.

Again, our investment in anthracite colliery undertakings has yielded no return beyond Debenture interest. The coal industry of the country has been passing through the painful ordeal of reorganisation. That process became inevitable as a result of the recent upheaval in the industry. The war and the strike combined have reduced the number of men on the coalfields generally by some hundreds of thousands, many collieries having to shut down on economic grounds. There has been greater delay than was anticipated in the return to prosperity of the industry, but there are signs that the worst of the storm has been weathered and that conditions generally are improving. The anthracite section of the industry, in prior securities of which we are mainly interested, as well as in Ordinary Shares, has not been affected to quite the same extent as the soft coal trade; but its position has been bad enough. Our collieries—I say our collieries, although we are only part-owners—have recently been consolidated with those of two adjoining concerns. As a result of this amalgamation better working and other economies will be secured, and the full value of the amalgamation will be realised as time goes on. When the amalgamation was carried through a considerable amount of working capital was contributed by ourselves and other shareholders for the purpose of completing all necessary capital expenditure, and the collieries are now thoroughly well equipped and in a position to compete for their full share of this valuable trade. Physically they are among the finest in the anthracite district, and produce only two classes of coal—namely, first grade anthracite and red vein. While this company's holding has not been diminished by realisation the directors have considered it prudent to write down the investment by a substantial amount, and the portion of the company's internal reserve has been applied for this purpose.

YEAR'S RESULTS SATISFACTORY.

Taking one thing with another, however, the directors have every reason to be satisfied with the year's results, and, as stated in their report, with the general strengthening of the position of the company which has taken place. While this improvement has been substantial, shareholders will understand that the profits shown would have been still better had we not felt called upon to make special provision out of the year's profits in respect of some past transactions which resulted unfavourably.

Shareholders will also have gathered from the report that the directors have been engaged upon a steady consolidation programme with a view to the separation of the business into that of an investment trust company, on the one hand, which will be free from the risks of a trading business, its investments being published from year to year in the usual way, and a finance company, on the other hand, which will carry on its trading business as a separate concern. We have not yet completed the necessary re-arrangement of our investments. The conversion of the Covent Garden Company from patent medicine business in part to real estate exclusively is one example of the nature of the re-arrangements upon which we are engaged. Such a process must necessarily take time to complete. In principle, however, the complete separation of the investment and finance businesses is aimed at, although the details of the scheme have not yet been finally decided. They will be put forward for discussion at an extraordinary meeting which will be called for this purpose in due course. I have much pleasure in moving the adoption of the report and accounts.

Mr. J. H. Guy, A.C.A., Managing Director, seconded the motion, which was agreed to unanimously.

The dividends as recommended in the report were then declared.

The retiring directors and auditors were re-elected, and the proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors.

OIL OUTPUTS.

TRINIDAD LEASEHOLDS, LIMITED.—Oil produced during June, 38,750 tons. Oil purchased during June from other companies, 25,500 tons.

CREOLE SYNDICATE.—Production for the month of June was 861,605 barrels, Creole's share was 406,213 barrels.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN CATTLE, North Circular road, Thursday.—A small reduction in supplies of both bovine and ovine stock, as compared with previous gathering, scarcely brought entrants down to normal seasonable register. The show in point of quality generally was of ordinary merit, and only a small percentage could be classed as strictly prime. About 10 per cent. of the cattle offered only were of real top or choice finished character, and sellers found no difficulty in cashing those fully par to, perhaps, occasionally the turn firmer on previous extreme currencies. About 25 per cent. of exhibits were just suitably meated to fit best average home and shipping interests, and these also got fairly satisfactorily negotiated inside former values; but coming to deal with remainder, 65 per cent. of plainer and coarse grades of bullocks and heifers, market was decidedly wobbly and less certain, in which buyers mostly secured concessions of a good 1s. per cwt., or maybe more towards wind-up, a clearance being hard to effect. Lambs of equal to prime class commanded a steady trade throughout, but no money was tenable. Inferior lambs irregular. The sheep market opened rather encouragingly for nice quality wethers and hoggets of handy weights in well-fed condition at prices tight up to last week's value, but after a couple of hours early terms became harder and harder to repeat, and generally dropped 2s. to 3s. per head. On the whole, a rather healthier tone dominated business; the shipping off-take particularly gave one the impression that much more was doing in that direction, and this impression was to some extent confirmed by the apparently fewer animals remaining to be dealt with at an advanced hour of the day. It might be stated with some reserve in the speculative sense that on the horizon of things there is a possibility of cattle in the near future being appreciatively affected in value if the attitude and report of a certain big chilled meat syndicate means anything, their dividend being reserved to combat with the sharp advance and dearer trend of prices for Argentine cattle, and United States markets, too, are getting dearer for ripe beef cattle. Sheep dipping certificates here will require more attention to avoid loss and great inconvenience.

Sheep and Lambs	9,734	*239	10,302	8,320

* Decrease.

A fresh feature in the trade for cattle was reflected in the improved inquiry for big, well-finished bullocks for export; suitable Scotch super-grade meated and half-meated beasts, preferably blacks, also looked for. Top blacks realised 55s. to 57s. 6d., and one draft 60s. per cwt. Tip-top quality shorthorn cattle realised 52s. 6d. to 53s. and 54s.; best average run, 46s. to 50s.; plainer grades, 40s. to 45s.; choice young beef cows, 37s. 6d. to 40s.; fancy, 42s. 6d. to 44s.; useful flesher lots of heavy cows, 32s. to 36s.; others difficult to quote for.

For prime sheep market opened fully par in value with last Thursday, but energy and stability of trade soon became exhausted after the pick of wethers and hoggets by leading buyers. Two hours after opening values collapsed 2s. to 3s. per head. Hoggets bid for up to 70s. and 75s. in the commencent afterwards could not be cashed 3s. per head less. Ewes particularly were hard, but those bid for around 60s. early could not be subsequently cashed down to 55s. per head. Choice mutton 10½d. to 11½d. per lb., medium sorts 9d. to 10d., inferior 6d. to 8½d. per lb. Lambs averaged 44s. to 50s. and 54s. for top lots on a steady market; medium sorts 32s. to 42s., others 20s. up. Useful quality lambs in demand; stores not wanted.

DUBLIN DAIRY CATTLE.—Market offered 351 head milch beasts. Trade generally improved and good promising fresh stockers more freely bid for. Northern and Cheshire shippers wanted prime heavy capacity cows and good type heifer milchers. Choice heavy cows £26 to £28 each, best average dairy stockers £19 to £25 and £26, others £12 to £17 and £18, heifers in milk £14 to £24, and prime of outstanding merit £25 to £26 and £27 each.

DUBLIN PIG.—Market continues of limited dimensions. This week's gathering totalled but 492 head. There was a keen demand for prime bacon hogs 10st. to 14st. weight at 82/- to 85/- or 86/- per cwt., over heavy 72/- to 77/6 per cwt., light stamp of porkers very cheaply and discouragingly bid for; prices most uncertain and up and down.

YORK.—Quite a large offer of Irish store cattle for time of year. With a good many well finished cattle trade was very fair. Hardly any English on offer. Rather more dairy cattle, with full attendance of buyers. Trade fairly brisk, and late prices maintained. Small show of sheep, and quiet trade at late rates.

BRISTOL.—Moderate supply. Beef, best, 105/- to 108/- per cwt. Mutton 14d. to 15d. per pound. Lamb 15d. to 16d. 400 store cattle, and values easier. Milch cows up to £33 for extra.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—Supplies limited, and a fairly active demand reported. Bacon pigs 16/- to 16/6, cutters 14/6 to 15/6, sows 10/-, all per score, dead weight.

GRAIN.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES.—BALTIC.—WHEAT—A firm tone governed the floating and forward cargo section, following firm American advices and higher first-hand offers, Canadian descriptions being held for 6d. and Plates 3d. per quarter advance. White Pacific July quoted 52/9, August-September 51/3, No. 3 Northern Manitoba Atlantic shipment, last half July, 50/6, No. 2 hard winter Pacific shipment July-August, also August-September, 50/-, Rosafe 63lbs. July 50/9, Barusso ditto 50/3, Australian afloat 52/6, July 52/9, choice white Karachi afloat 52/6. LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—American markets were closed yesterday owing to Independence Day holiday, but the unexpected advance in Winnipeg caused forward delivery of wheat here to show a decided improvement during early trading, but in the absence of a demand for actual wheat prices afterwards receded and fluctuated moderately, though afternoon cables were discouraging, and final rates marked only a moderate gain on previous night. C.i.f. parcels of red Karachi July sold at 51/4½ per quarter. C.i.f. parcels of maize River Plate June-July sold at 37/3 to 37/4½, July-August 36/3 to 36/4½, No. 6 yellow African (Liverpool contract) 16th July 38/-, July 37/4½ per quarter. Wheat on the spot steadily held. MAIZE spot parcels scarce, and River Plate quoted 9/6 per cental. FLOUR firm and officially unchanged. Graded wheat futures improved 1¼d. to 1½d. per cental during early trading, then gave way and fluctuated moderately, the market closing quiet at the worst point, or unchanged, to only ½d. over Wednesday night.

BRADFORD WOOL.—Business is quiet, and there is no sign of any buying movement on the eve of the London sales. Quotations are unchanged on the basis of 54d. for sixty-fours and 25½d. for forties prepared. Topmakers are not pressing for business until they see how London goes. Yarns remain quiet, and in buyers' favour.

LONDON METALS MARKET.

TIN LOWER.

At first change TIN was in better demand, but tendency easier on liberal offerings and lower Eastern advices, while dealings were attended by slight irregularity, particularly forward positions. On balance cash ruled 12/6 and forward 20/- per ton lower. Standard cash quoted £206 to £206 2/6, three months £203 12/6 to £203 15/-; settlement price £206. 500 tons changed hands, cash at £206, three months £204, £203 10/-, £204 5/- and £203 15/-; English quoted £204 to £205. Sales in the East amounted to 350 tons at £207 5/- c.i.f. terms. COPPER—Market barely steady with moderate dealings, offerings being in excess of requirements, cash being 2/6 and forward 1/3 per ton lower on balance. Standard cash quoted £63 to £63 1/3, three months £63 2/6 to £63 3/9; settlement price £63. 550 tons sold, cash at £63, three months £63 3/9 to £63 2/6; electros quoted £68 10/- to £69, wire bars £69. LEAD quiet and occasionally the turn easier. 300 tons sold, good soft foreign pig July at £20 11/3 to £20 10/-, October £20 17/6; settlement price £20 10/-. English quoted £22. SPELTER steady but inactive and no business recorded; July sellers £25 10/-, buyers £25 8/9, October sellers £25 6/3, with £25 5/- bid; settlement prices £25 10/- per ton. QUICKSILVER steady; spot £21 7/6 to £21 10/- per bottle. Second Session—Value of tin remained steady; 65 tons sold, cash at £206 5/-, three months £203 15/- per ton. Copper, lead and spelter idle.

GLASGOW IRON AND STEEL.—The first six months this year has been exceptionally dull conditions in the markets, and there is no early prospect of improvement. Uncontrolled prices remain fairly constant, but generally the tendency is easier, especially for export trade. Makers of sheets, however, are better placed than the heavy industries, with fair export inquiries.

LONDON MINING MARKET WEAK.

TIN SHARES AGAIN MARKED DOWN.

The Mining Market shared in the general weakness prevailing yesterday, more especially as Paris was perturbed by the slump in several international counters; while Kaffirs were not helped by the publication of the monthly returns, most of which were of a satisfactory character. Of the finance descriptions, Central Mining and Goldfields were distinctly dull, and Anglo-French lost the turn. Geduld, Brakpan and several other Far Easterns were on the down-grade; but Sub-Nigel, which were at first rather severely depressed, rallied on buying, encouraged by the announcement that nothing is known officially of any adverse developments in the mine. In the Rhodesian department, Chartered, after initial weakness, rallied, and finished without alteration. Tanks and Zams, however, were weak spots, realisations from Brussels coinciding with some offering here. Tank Goldfields slumped on some persistent offering on an unwilling market. Curiously enough, Diamonds were inclined to harden, the change in the position being due to a growing belief that the industry is now well in hand. De Beers Deferred, it is true, receded on Paris sales, but the Pref. and Consolidated African Selection moved up, and there was some nibbling at Consolidated Diamonds. The price of tin dropped back 12s. 6d. to £206 1s. 3d. per ton, and the share market wore a somewhat dreary appearance. There was, however, still very little real selling of good class shares, but prices were marked down in a number of cases. In the Copper section, Rio Tinto suffered severely from sales on both home and Paris account, and all the changes recorded in the miscellaneous department were against holders, San Francisco, Minerals Separation, Burma, Camp Bird and several others closing lower. Closing prices:—

DUBLIN BUSINESS DONE.

IMPERIAL TOBACCOS WEAK. DUBLIN TRAMS BETTER. COATS AND COURTAULDS EASIER. BANK STOCK STRONG.

Government National 5 p.c. Sterling Loan rose ¼ to 99¼, ditto by Deed ⅜ to 99¼, and the Second 5 p.c. Loan ¼ to 97¾, while Land Bonds 4½ p.c. repeated 95½.

In British Funds, Consols opened 1/16 higher at 56, and then fell back to 55¾. War Loan 4½ p.c. rose 1/16 to 97 9/16, and ditto 5 p.c. 1/16 to 101 11/16.

Dublin Corporation 5 p.c. Stock closed 3 points higher at 97 to 98 nominally.

In Banks, Bank Stock rose 1 to 298, but Munster and Leinsters fell ⅛ to 8¾ for an odd lot, while Hibernians repeated 9⅝.

In Breweries, etc., Guinness monopolised attention. The opening price, 40½, was ⅝ under the closing level the previous day, and then followed 40¼, ½. From this point the market turned, and 40¼, 1/16, ¼, ⅜, ½ followed, while at the later market the price bounded up 1¼ to 41¾, and after hours 42½ was paid.

Distillers (Scotch) eased 3d. to 73s. 6d.

In Steam, British and Irish Pref. repeated 15s. 3d.

Marconis opened flat, and then quickly recovered, with business done at 64s. 3d., 4s. 1½d., 3s. 10½d., 4s. 4½d., 4s. 6d., 5s., the latter an actual rise of 3d. on the day. Radio Corporation of America quoted 36¾, and the Pref. 11 1/16.

Rail support was more apparent. Great Southern Ord. rose ½ to 16, and the Debs. ½ to 56½ x.d., but the Guaranteed fell ½ to 48¼. The Pref. was bid up ¾ unofficially to 38 without getting any stock as sellers looked for 39 or more.

Dublin United Tram Ord. rallied 1s. 6d. to 62s. 6d., and the Pref. repeated 6¾.

In Drapery Shares, McBirneys repeated 5s. 7½d., and Todd Burns Ord. 9s. 6d.

Among Manufacturing Shares, British-American Tobaccos opened 3d. lower at 116s. 6d., and then recovered to 116s. 9d. Imperials fell away to 113s. 9d. at one time, but closed at 114s. 3d., with dealing also at 114s. 4½d. and 114s. A. Armstrong Ord. repeated 2s. 10½d. Coats fell 4½d. to 67s. 6d., and Cottons 1½d. to 53s. 6d. Courtaulds opened flat and 2s. lower at 88s. 9d., but rallied later to 89s., 89s. 6d. Imperial Chemicals repeated 37s. and the Def. 12s. 10½d., with the new Ord. and Def. down to 1s. 9d. prem. Lever Bros 7 p.c. Pref. rose 1½d. to 22s. 10½d., but Margarines eased 1½d. to 43s. 3d. and Vickers 1½d. to 11s. 10½d. Dunlop Rubber Ord. were on sale, but did not quote. Bairds International Television "A" 5s. shares, issued at 6s. a few days ago, rose 1s. 3d. to 10s. 6d. Radiation Ord. quoted 43s. 6d. Photomaton Parent Corporation fell back to 13s. 10½d., but Branston Art Silk rose 1½d. to 23s. 3d.

In Miscellaneous Securities, Lafayette Pref. fell 1s. to 54s.

DISTRICT JUSTICE AND SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

Fining James McPartlin, of Bobymaguire, 20s. at Drumkeeran (Co. Leitrim) District Court, for not sending his child to school, Justice Rice said that he would see that the children were educated, whether their parents liked it or not. In future if people endeavoured to perjure themselves in making excuses, he would treat them in the proper manner.

THE MONEY MARKET.

DISCOUNT RATES EASY.

The Money market was able to repay loans falling due at the Bank of England yesterday, credit still being in plentiful supply. As was the case on Wednesday, accommodation over the night was obtainable at 3 p.c. down to 2 p.c. In the Discount market rates were again easy in sympathy with the monetary conditions, fine two-months' commercial bills being quoted at 3⅝ p.c., three months' at 3 11/16, four months' at 3¾ and six months' at 3⅞ p.c. The new Treasuries were 2 11/16 p.c.

No bullion operations on foreign account were reported at the Bank of England yesterday. Owing to further selling from China silver declined further by 1/16d. to 27¼d. for spot and 27¼d. per oz. for forward delivery. Business was not active, and the tone was described as steady. Gold was unchanged at 84s. 10½d. per fine oz.

Fresh weakness developed in the sterling dollar rate, the New York exchange closing 1/16 down at 4.87¼. Montreal fell fully 1/16 to 4.88⅜. The French exchange, after having been very steady for some days past, advanced at one time to nearly 124.30, and finished moderately higher for the day at 124.24½. Spanish pesetas lost part of the previous day's appreciation, and Italian lire were a little cheaper. Some improvement was shown in the currencies of Belgium, Switzerland, Germany (the Berlin rate falling considerably) Austria, Sweden and Holland. The Amsterdam rate moved rather sharply against us to 12.09¼; Roumania lei were a little better. China exchanges were easier. The Hong Kong rate fell ⅛d. to 2s. 0½d., and Shanghai was quoted ½d. lower at 2s. 7¾d.; rupees and the yen were steady.

LAW REPORTS.

PAINTER'S SLANDER ACTION.

DAMAGES AGAINST UNION OFFICIALS.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN AND A JURY.)

The hearing was concluded of the action, in which James McMullan, painter, of 23 Lower Gardiner street, Dublin, sought to recover damages for alleged slander and conspiracy against Patrick Mulhall and Joseph Farrell, trade union officials, 13 Mercer street and 31 Addison road, Dublin. The plaintiff is a member of the United House and Ship Painters and Decorators' Union of Ireland. Joseph Farrell is an official of the National Amalgamated Society of Operative House and Ship Painters and Decorators; and Patrick Mulhall is an official of the Irish National Painters and Decorators' Trade Union.

In January last the plaintiff was employed by Mr. T. E. Gibson upon a painting contract undertaken by Mr. Gibson at the residence of Prince Ranjitshinghi at Ballynahinch, and it was alleged that defendants said to Mr. Gibson, "McMullan is not a member of any society, and you must sack him to-day. You cannot employ him." It February the plaintiff was summarily dismissed by Mr. Gibson. He alleged that he was injured in character and credit, and lost his earnings from Mr. Gibson.

After an absence of over an hour the jury found that the defendant, Farrell, spoke and published the words, "McMullan is not a member of any union, and you must dismiss him." They further found that the words were spoken by way of the plaintiff's trade, and meant that the plaintiff was not duly qualified, and an improper person to employ, and the words were defamatory; that the defendants were actuated by express malice, and that the words were spoken by the defendant Farrell by agreement with the defendant Mulhall. They assessed damages at £5. On the second part of the action the jury found that the defendants agreed to induce Mr. Gibson to dismiss the plaintiff, that they agreed for the purpose of injuring him, and that such inducement caused the plaintiff loss, for which they assessed damages at £10.

Mr. Black asked for a stay of execution, as the defendants wished to appeal.

Mr. Justice Sullivan gave a stay for one week.

Judgment was delivered in favour of the plaintiffs in the case of Sheridan and others v. the Hibernian Bank, Ltd., allowing their appeal from an order of Mr. Justice O'Byrne dismissing the action and entering judgment for the defendants at the trial. The action had been brought for a declaration that the plaintiffs, Thomas Sheridan and Francis Sheridan, farmers, residing near Navan, Co. Meath, as executor of Julia Sheridan deceased, were entitled to a deposit receipt, dated 8th July, 1925, for £2,800 and interest thereon; and, alternatively, for £3,000 damages for negligence and breach of duty.

It was alleged that the £2,800 had been deposited with the defendants in the joint names of Julia Sheridan, deceased, and the plaintiff, Miss Bridget McKeever, her sister; and that on 17th December, 1925, the defendants negligently, wrongfully and in breach of duty as bankers paid the proceeds of the moneys thus deposited to Timothy C. Crinion, formerly a solicitor practising in Navan, on presentation by him of a note of authority from Miss McKeever, which was a forgery, as alleged.

The defendants traversed the cause of acton, denying that the written authority given them was forged, and stating that the plaintiff, Bridget McKeever, verbally authorised and instructed them to pay the amount of the deposit receipt to Timothy C. Crinion.

The trial judge, in dismissing the action, stated that he was of opinion, in the circumstances, that when Miss McKeever handed over the deposit receipt to Mr. Crinion, and enabled him to enter the bank and demand the money, she thereby induced the bank to believe that she had duly authorised Mr Crinion to receive the moneys, and she was estopped from saying that she did not so authorise him.

The Court, in their unanimous judgment, delivered by Mr. Justice Murnaghan, allowed the appeal, with costs, declaring the plaintiff, Miss McKeever, entitled to judgment for the £2,800, with interest and costs.

Mr. Denning, K.C.; Mr. Wood, K.C., and Mr. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. John Clark and Co.) appeared for the appellants; and Mr. Jellett, K.C.; Mr. Leonard, K.C., and Mr. Finlay (instructed by Messrs. D. and T. Fitzgerald) for the respondents.

WORKMAN DROWNED.

SUGAR COMPANY'S APPEAL.

Reserved judgment was delivered in the Supreme Court in favour of the appellants in the appeal brought by the defendants in the case of Flynn v. Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company, unanimously allowing the appeal, with costs.

The appeal was from a judgment of Mr. Justice Hanna in favour of the plaintiff at the trial of the action, with a jury, in the High Court. The appellants sought to have the judgment set aside, with costs, and judgment entered for them, or, in the alternative, to have a new trial ordered, on the grounds that the verdict of the jury on the several findings mentioned was against evidence and the weight of evidence; that the trial was unsatisfactory, and that the judge should have entered judgment for the defendants.

The action had been brought by Margaret Flynn against the defendant company under Lord Campbell's Act, claiming £15,000 compensation on behalf of herself and four young children for the loss of her husband, Michael Flynn, a labourer in the employment of the company at their sugar factory in Carlow. Flynn was accidentally drowned in the course of his employment while crossing the River Barrow on a raft provided by the defendants for that purpose. It was alleged that his death was caused by the negligence, wrongful act or default of the defendants.

The unanimous judgment of the Court, in which the facts of the case were fully reviewed, was delivered by Mr. Justice FitzGibbon. According to the evidence, the raft, it was stated, was in a defective condition, and there were not men enough on it to control the rope properly. Their lordships, allowing the appeal, held that there was ample evidence to justify the finding of the jury that the deceased knew and appreciated the risk that he was running in crossing the River Barrow on the raft that morning under the circumstances, and that he accepted the risk.

All the evidence, they held, went to show that the raft was defective and dangerous to the knowledge of everybody there, including the deceased. It could not, therefore, be contended that the finding, that the deceased knew and accepted the risk, was against the weight of evidence.

The appeal was allowed, with costs.

Mr. Battersby, K.C., Mr. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. Sainsbury (instructed by Mr. John Good) appeared for the appellants and defendants; and Mr. M. Maguire, K.C., Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., and Mr. T. F. Bacon (instructed by Messrs. Fullerton and Doyle) for the respondent and plaintiff.

MOYLOUGH GLEBE.

QUESTION OF SOLICITORS' COSTS.

The hearing concluded in the Supreme Court of the appeal by Messrs. Henry Concannon and M. J. V. Comerford, solicitors, two of the defendants in the case of Gannon and another v. Representative Church Body and others, from so much of the judgment of Mr. Justice Johnston in the High Court, dismissing the action, which related to the sale of Moylough Glebe House and lands in the Parish and Diocese of Tuam, Co. Galway, as directed that they should abide their own costs. The Representative Church Body had been allowed their costs of the action.

Mr. Concannon, who was a member of the Diocesan Committee, and Mr. Comerford, it appeared, had not been acting professionally in connection with the sale of the glebe, but were supposed to be using their influence in a friendly way to get the property for the plaintiffs.

The arguments having concluded,

The Court dismissed the appeal, with costs, holding unanimously that the Judge was justified in exercising his discretion in the matter, and that there was no appeal under the provisions of the Constitution and the Courts of Justice Act.

Mr. Price, K.C., and Mr. Walker (instructed by Mr. Plunkett Kenney) for the appellants; and Mr. Michael Comyn, K.C., and Mr. J. Connolly (instructed by Messrs. Ruttledge and Corr) for the respondents.

GOLDEN ORACLE'S FUTURE.

A HIGH-PRICED PLATER.

EMPIRE BUILDER FAILS.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWMARKET, Thursday.

A reference was made here last week to the notable way in which the Irish two-year-old form of last season is working out. That was after Mail Fist had won at Newcastle and Swift Marten had won at Sandown. We had another and more notable example of it this afternoon, when Golden Oracle won the July Cup in a common canter.

This particularly good-looking colt, who is a splendid advertisement for the Ratoath stallion Arch Gift, has not been very long in the stable of Captain Boyd-Rochfort, to which Captain Harry Whitworth sent him from Mr. Ussher's place. He made a big impression when he came into the paddock, and a still greater one in the race; for he was never off the bit and won as he pleased by three lengths from Four in Hand.

Now, the latter is thought to be particularly smart when the going suits him, but he could not live against Golden Oracle. It would be in no way surprising if before the end of the season Golden Oracle prove himself to be the best three-year-old sprinter in training in this country. Tetrill, who was last of all, had been only beaten a head by Doch an Doris in the Fernhill at Ascot, and had won her two previous races; so the form was all right.

ST. PRISCA'S RUNAWAY.

We had, on the whole, a very interesting day's racing. The first event was a selling race for two-year-olds, and the Egerton House stable took it with Lord Lascelles's Friar Marcus filly, St. Prisca, who, with an unknown boy, Jex, up, won running away by eight lengths from Chicory. The Royal stable does not affect selling events, and so no effort was made to retain her. Everyone seemed to want her afterwards, and the bidding went sky-high. Finally, Mr. Murray, a patron of Mr. Cottrill's stable, had her knocked down to him for 1,950 guineas, which is, I think, the biggest price given for a winning plater since Corporal made 2,650 guineas at Newmarket in 1920. That, however, was a purchase without regard to the intrinsic value of the horse.

The Exeter Stakes was the most important two-year-old event of the day, and here Sir Richard Garton's Irish-bred colt by The Boss out of Ayn Hali completely reversed with Empire Builder the form in the Chesham Stakes at Ascot, where each had finished behind Costaki Pasha. The Ayn Hali colt was meeting the other on a few pounds better terms, and there was not much between them on the book, but Empire Builder had been none too lucky at Ascot, and there being a doubt about the other getting the six furlongs, Major McCalmont's colt was the better favourite.

FAILURE OF EMPIRE BUILDER.

It was a very good race, in which Childs pulled back the Ayn Hali colt, and Catch Crop made the running. Empire Builder had gone to the front a furlong and a half from home, and then Childs brought the other and beat the favourite cleverly by a length and a half, there being no excuse to offer for Empire Builder.

The winner is a very good-looking bay colt, who was bred by Mrs. Hilliard, and goes back to Lallah Rookh and others of Mr. James Daly's family, Horus, a three-parts brother to Flamingo, who cost Sir Laurence Phillips 6,100 guineas as a yearling, ran unplaced here

The bookmakers had their first real innings of the meeting when Tourist won the Princess of Wales's Stakes for Sir Abe Bailey. The colt was not backed for a shilling by his owner or anyone else connected with him, and they were utterly astonished when this moderate maiden, strongly ridden by Dines, and favoured by his light weight, got up to beat Caporal by half a length, with Lodore third. He had never shown any sort of form, and last week was beaten in the North Derby by the moderate Consul.

Lord Derby's Sans Changer, who was claiming the geldings' allowance as well as the maiden allowance, was favourite from Lodore, and he was just in the lead from Potocki a quarter of a mile from home. Lodore, who had been hampered and had been switched into various positions, then came on the inside and headed both these. As he got his head in front Caporal and Tourist appeared on his outside, and they gave him none too much room.

TOURIST'S SUCCESS.

Caporal appeared to be having the best of it, but, as usual, when tackled he had no great liking for the task in hand, and the other beat him. Tourist may be about the worst horse that has ever won this race. Lodore, who stays well, did not have the best of luck here. Fred Darling intends to run him in the St. Leger and rather fancies his chance.

After an open selling race, which Wykeham won easily from Jupiter, the last race of the day, the Girton Handicap, was won easily by Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen's penalised filly, Syntony, an improving daughter of Planet, who won easily from Lord Lascelles' filly, Star of Galicia, and Helvetic.

The yearling sales concluded this evening, and everyone seems well satisfied with the results, which in many cases have exceeded expectation. The bidding for the National Stud yearlings last night was wonderful, and the total realised £30,980, an average of £1,936 5s. for the sixteen lots—a splendid one. Judging by this week's results, bloodstock breeding still seems to be on the crest of the wave of prosperity.

The racing here to-morrow will be only mildly interesting. The Fulbourne Stakes is an old two-year-old event, in which NIJINSKY may beat Neguac. There will be only a few runners for the Ellesmere Stakes, which PHARAMOND may win. In the Waterbeach Handicap STRANATHRO and Capture Him seem to have the best chances, and I choose the former.

BELLEWSTOWN.

ORBY'S BEAU WINS AGAIN.

STRIPED SILK BEATS CARLOVIA.

With a great improvement in the weather as compared to the first day, the racing at Bellewstown yesterday was thoroughly enjoyable, and it was pleasing to see a crowd very much in excess of Wednesday's, which, by the way, was better than that of the previous day last year. For most of the afternoon the course was bathed in sunshine; there was a clear view of the surrounding country, stretching away to the Mourne Mountains, and seldom can we remember a more favourable day for enjoying sport on this old and very popular course.

It was a pity that the runners for the King's Plate only numbered two, but a better match could not have been asked for than that provided by Striped Silk and Carlovia. The wagering between the pair was very close, and in a fine race Mr. R. Power's game mare, ridden in capable style by J. Moylan, just prevailed by a length. Riding with a view to proving the superior stamina of Striped Silk Moylan had to make his own running, but did it judiciously, and to his handling of the mare was the victory largely due. Still when one considers that Carlovia had run for and won a steeplechase the previous day her performance was creditable.

Orby's Beau, another winner of a steeplechase on Wednesday, turned out fresh and well to win the Crockafotha Hurdle Race in good style, the penalty of 9lb. making not the slightest difference. He has already this season won two steeplechases and a hurdle race, and in him Mr. T. O'Roarke possesses a very useful horse. Spare Time, also a penalised horse, was preferred to him in the wagering, but never flattered, and it was Buster of the others who put up the best showing.

Sir George Abercromby's colours are not so often nowadays seen on Irish racecourses as used to be the case, but he is one of those English sportsmen who has always been a great supporter of Irish racing, and when his Southern Witch carried off the Leggan Hall Plate the victory was very popular. True, the class of the opposition was not gaudy, but she beat them all in hollow style. She had run in a mile flat race the previous day without meeting with success, but it is evident that steeplechasing is more to her liking. Mr. H. M. Hartigan, who trains Southern Witch, is the new owner of Lloydie, and the horse was not purchased for an English owner.

Odd Cat had run so well in Carlovia's race on Wednesday up to the time he fell that he was an automatic favourite for the Stewards' Steeplechase. He did not gallop with the same freedom at any stage of the race, being in the rear for most of the way. He improved his position in the last half mile, without, however, holding out any hope of tackling Lisworney, whose win was easily achieved.

Brushlight, a filly, who, when trained in England, did not win a race, and was usually slow in getting away from the starting gate, behaved in exemplary fashion, both before and during the race for the Corporation Plate. Well placed in the first furlong she quickly took up the running, and made short work of the opposition. She is now the property of Mr. E. Bellaney, and is trained at the Brackenstown stable.

The Northern trained Bathoi proved the best of the four runners for the Shallon Plate, which race brought to a close one of the best meetings held on the famous hill of Crockafotha. Details:—

NEWMARKET BLOODSTOCK SALES.

SILVERN COLT FETCHES 4,000 GUINEAS.

The yearling sales were continued at Park Paddocks, Newmarket, yesterday morning, when 34 lots realised 18,755 guineas. The average of 551 guineas was decidedly satisfactory, bearing in mind that there were few youngsters of outstanding merit on offer.

A notable exception was the colt named Silver Gilt, by Silvern, out of the Cambridgeshire and Coronation Cup winner, Verdict. This handsome racing-like brown was the property of Lord Coventry's daughter, Lady Barbara Smith, and she was run up to 4,000 guineas before being secured by Mr. George Lambton.

The first sale of note was that of the chestnut colt by the Two Thousand Guineas winner, St. Louis, out of Policewoman, from the Lanehurst Stud, at 440 guineas. The purchaser was Mr. Frank Barbour, of steeplechasing fame.

The Brazilian sportsman and breeder, Colonel Lundgren, took three of Sir Charles Pulley's half-dozen yearlings. He gave 600 guineas for the grey colt by Puttenden—Jalousie, and 500 guineas for the brown filly by the same sire out of Exilee. Top price among Sir Charles Pulley's lots, however, was 680 guineas, given by Persse for the grey colt by Lemonora, out of Lady in Grey.

Sir John Buchanan Jardine invested 1,900 guineas in the purchase of Nothing Venture's half-brother, a chestnut colt by Golden Boss, sent up by Mr. J. F. Franklin.

The Co. Meath breeder, Captain H. J. Cullen, was fortunate in having three own brothers to good winners to offer. The bay colt by Meleager—Golosh made 720 guineas to Captain Kirk, and the bay by Achtoi—Loughsallagh 850 guineas to Mr. W. Murray. The pick of the trio, however, was the big racing chestnut colt by Marten—Soldier's Joy, and Mr. J. T. Coltman had to go to 1,100 guineas to get him.

Of the remaining lots, Lord St. Davids' grey colt by Haine—Blue Fairy was taken by Mr. Walter Griggs at 700 guineas. The chestnut colt by Buchan—Maraquita, in the same ownership, failed to reach his reserve, and was passed out at 1,200 guineas.

At the evening sales four of the five yearlings sent up by Mrs. E. A. Dodd, of Elsenham, found purchasers, Mr. H. L. Cottrill paying 620 guineas for a chestnut colt by Manilardo—Hattie. A bay filly by Braishfield—Corrie Invillie, the property of Lieutenant-Colonel C. T. Hannah, was led out unsold at 740 guineas.

Matters were very quiet until Gala, by Galloper Light—Biala was offered, and she was knocked down, after keen competition, to Mr. F. Leach, sen., for 560 guineas. None of the other lots call for any special comment. Details:—

1,950 Guineas for a "Plater."

Mr. W. Murray, who has horses in training with Cottrill at Lambourn, bought St. Prisca for 1,950 guineas after she had won the Two Years Old Selling Plate at Newmarket yesterday. She carried the colours of Lord Lascelles in the race, and the King and Princess Mary, standing by the side of the auctioneer, were keenly interested in the bidding. St. Prisca will be trained by Persse at Stockbridge.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Jockey Club and Betting Bill.

At the meeting of the Jockey Club, held at Newmarket on Wednesday night, the following resolution was passed :—"That the Club hopes that the Racecourse Betting Bill may become law in the form in which it has been returned to the House of Commons by the Committee to which it was referred; that the Club pledges itself to accept the trust imposed upon it by the bill in letter and in spirit, and to do its best to carry out that trust in a manner that will be fair and equitable to all the interests concerned."

Lloydie and Flying Arab Sold.

Mr. J. Laverty has sold to Mr. H. M. Hartigan the promising young 'chaser, Lloydie, a six-year-old gelding by Vedanta out of Lizzie Lane, who won his third race off the reel at Bellewstown on Wednesday. The three-year-old Flying Arab, by Tangiers out of Noble Lady, who has won three of his four races this year, has been sold out of Mr. Parkinson's stable.

Mr. P. Dennis to Train.

Amongst the visitors to the Bellewstown Meeting this week were Mr. Dyke Dennis and his son, Mr. P. Dennis. The latter, who intends starting training next winter, has purchased a couple of young jumpers from Mr. C. A. Rogers.

The King Watches Scuttle at Work.

The King, accompanied by Viscount Lascelles, the Earl of Sefton, Mr. Marshall Field, and Major Fetherstonhaugh, again watched the work of W. R. Jarvis's team at Newmarket yesterday morning, when the King's One Thousand Guineas winner, Scuttle, went a smart five furlongs along with Bowood. Taka San and St. Sylvestre were given a striding-pace gallop over a mile, while others of the team cantered.

CURRAGH TRAINING NOTES.

THE CURRAGH, Thursday.

A showery morning.

BEHAN'S Sable, Connor, Monla, St. Dromack, and the two-year-olds were restricted to healthy exercise. Both Sable and the two-year-old Tullycross are in excellent fettle for their Phœnix Park engagements on Saturday.

COOMBS'S Juva, Ask Her, Modern Girl, Ohio's Gift, and others took matters easy.

DOYLE'S May Orb, Battle Bridge, Homeward, Minnetonka, and others of the team exercised on the roads.

FETHERSTONHAUGH'S Moon Maiden galloped a mile; Mount Elliot went five furlongs.

GRUNDY'S Wavetop, Hanoverian, Prosperity, Silver Work, Silver Dawn, Wilt, Favour, Prince Meteor, and others were usefully employed. Prince Meteor is very well for the Breeders' Produce Stakes on Saturday.

HARTIGAN'S Diomedia, Wondrous, Carat, Southerner, Precious Gem, Grand Day, and the two-year-olds were allotted useful bouts of healthy exercise.

PERRY'S Knocklong Boy cantered five furlongs.

PARKINSON'S River Thames, Green Shutter, Double Spot, and the rest of the team had healthy exercise.

ROGERS'S Athford, Elton, She Might and the two-year-olds were usefully employed.

ATHLETICS.

RAILWAY CLEARING HOUSE SPORTS.

The eighth annual sports meeting of the Irish Railway Clearing House was brought off yesterday at the Railway and Steam Packet Union ground, Park avenue, in fine weather and before a good attendance. Being a confined meeting, there was nothing outstanding in the way of performances, but the competition all round was keen, and the programme a varied and enjoyable one, including, as it did, besides the usual athletic contests, a lawn tennis tournament and a clock golf competition, and winding up with a dance. The prizes were presented at the close by the president, Mr. W. E. Richardson, secretary, I.R.C.H. Details:—

100 Yards Handicap—First heat—J. Davy (5 yards) dead-heated with H. Watchorn (5 yards) for first place; T. C. Browner (3), 3. Also ran—M. C. Moore, J. J. Boucher, A. J. Patterson. Won by a yard. GREYHOUND RACING.

AT HAROLD'S CROSS PARK.

The fourth, fifth and sixth heats of the Midsummer Sweepstake formed the attraction at Harold's Cross Park last night. The Celbridge dog, Alert, who is much fancied to win the stake, gave backers a good start by winning the fourth heat. This son of Palmer was favourite, but it was only by three-parts of a length that he gained the verdict over Ruthless, who came with a rare rattle in the straight.

Bashful Bingo won the fifth heat after a great finish with Cavalier, the verdict being only a head. Brown Bottle was the winner of the sixth heat, in which Jim's Pet and Benbo dead-heated for second place. In the run-off Benbo got better away, and easily qualified for the semi-final stage.

The Northern dog, Carpio, gave an impressive display of jumping in winning the Metropolitan Hurdle, while Goodnight Kiss, the winner of the Midland Hurdle, also went round in faultless style. Details:—

INSURANCE AGENT'S DOWNFALL.

PENAL SERVITUDE SENTENCE.

In the Wicklow Circuit Court last Wednesday Mathew Graham, Ballinacarrig, Rathdrum, was indicted on thirteen charges, involving the registration of thirty-six fictitious deaths in the registry offices of Rathdrum, Avoca, Dunganstown and Aughrim; uttering twenty-eight forged medical certificates of the cause of death; obtaining forty-three false death certificates; forging various documents and obtaining from the Prudential Assurance Company £1,082; forging names in the registers; of obtaining by false pretences from holders of endowment policies in his district £187; forging documents in their cases; embezzling £72, the property of one policyholder; stealing £48 from another and a policy from a third.

Accused man pleaded guilty to all counts.

Mr. Cullen, State Solicitor, said that it was the most formidable indictment ever presented against a prisoner. An energetic agent, apparently honest and upright, it was only last April that suspicion fell on him.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore, Barrister-at-Law (instructed by Mr. McCarroll) defending, said that the State Solicitor had outlined what appeared to be a deliberate, calculated swindle for the purpose of enriching the prisoner; but when he stated that the prisoner was a person who spent practically nothing, did not drink, gamble, or even smoke, and lived almost penuriously, as would be deposed to by the superintendent and two clergymen of the Catholic faith, and that he was several hundreds of pounds worse off than in 1919, when he started his collection, the Judge would see that it was no ordinary case. It was a case of a man robbing Peter to pay Paul, where, through over leniency and a rather quixotic point of view, he was heavily involved, and had to resort to what he frankly described as a series of frauds in order to make up for his earlier foolishness.

Evidence of previous good character having been testified to, Mr. Frank Robertson, sub-manager for Ireland, said that the company would protect the policyholders' interests, and added that, if they had been aware of the conditions, they would have held over the premiums, as occurred in the coal strike of 1926, when they carried two million premiums.

JUDGE'S REMARK.

Delivering considered sentence, Judge Doyle said that the gravity of the case was clearly established. No Court could treat it leniently or give effect to previous good character. The attitude of the assurance company was very creditable. The sentence would take the form of five years' penal servitude on each of the false pretences counts, and seven on each of the remaining counts, the periods to run concurrently.

Peter and Kate Murphy, Ballinacarrig, Rathdrum, charged with conspiring with Graham and registering false names and uttering false death certificates in a number of the cases, pleaded guilty.

The Judge pronounced a sentence of two years with hard labour, execution to be suspended and the accused persons to give recognisances to come up for judgment. They were then discharged.

WIMBLEDON.

BRILLIANT VICTORY FOR AUSTRALIA.

WONDERFUL GAME BY J. B. HAWKES.

STA. DE ALVAREZ INDISPOSED.

Again there were sensations in the centre court at Wimbledon yesterday. They were caused by the superb play of an Australian, who, by the force of his own individual efforts, won the day against W. T. Tilden and F. T. Hunter, holders of the men's doubles championship, in the semi-final round.

J. B. Hawkes was the hero of the day. Men who had seen the doubles of the past, and knew how good E. Roper Barrett was at his best, declared that the display given by Hawkes was easily the best which has been seen since Roper Barrett was at his zenith. Hawkes was partnered by Gerald Patterson, the man with the demon service.

A 12,000 GALLERY.

At the start the spectators—there were at least 12,000—marvelled at the amazing shots of the left-handed Australian. They saw him cross-volley with astounding judgment; they saw him beat Tilden's mighty reach time after time, and they saw him adopt tactics which left the American opponents astonished.

Throughout a match which lasted three hours and required 70 games for its decision, Hawkes was the outstanding player. Tilden made mistakes, but not so many as Hunter. Patterson put in some crushing services and drives, but through it all Hawkes was the scoring and the defensive factor.

Tilden seemed tired, and there was general regret at the final overthrow of the American. He and Hunter were the holders, and they were beaten after one of the greatest struggles ever seen.

THE CRISIS.

At one time—it was in the fourth set—they were within a point of the match, but they failed to get it, and the Australians caught them. Even so, the Americans seemed to be on top most of the time, and then in the last game they were crushed by Patterson.

A Wimbledon centre court crowd knows how to cheer, but not for many years has there been such a terrific wave of enthusiasm as swept over those crowded stands when the Australians won their match.

THE WOMEN'S SINGLES.

As a result of the indisposition of Senorita de Alvarez, who is ill with laryngitis, the final of the ladies' singles championship, which was to have been played at Wimbledon today, has been postponed until to-morrow. There is no time limit to the championship meeting, and the match could be further postponed. In place of the ladies' final, the men's final, between H. Cochet (holder) and Rene Lacoste, will be played to-day. Details:—

WOMEN'S DOUBLES.
Fourth Round (Concluded).

Miss Boyd and Miss Akhurst beat Miss L. Colyer and Miss Bouman—8-6, 6-3.

Mrs. Lycett and Miss Ryan beat Mrs. O'Hara Wood and Miss L. Bickerton—7-5, 9-7.

MEN'S DOUBLES.
Semi-Final Round.

J. B. Hawkes and G. L. Patterson beat W. T. Tilden and F. T. Hunter (holders)—7-9, 7-9, 6-4, 6-4, 10-8.

H. Cochet and J. Brugnon beat G. Lott and J. Hennessey—11-9, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5.

MIXED DOUBLES.
Third Round (Concluded).

G. R. O. Crole-Rees and Mrs. Watson beat J. Borotra and Mme. Bordes—6-4, 6-3.

Fourth Round.

P. D. B. Spence and Miss Ryan beat L. A. Godfree and Mrs. Covell—6-4, 6-3.

F. T. Hunter and Miss Wills beat C. F. Scroope and Mrs. Shepherd Barron—6-1, 6-3.

Owing to bad light, the match between H. Cochet and Miss E. Bennett and J. Crawford and Miss D. Akhurst had to be stopped after each side had won a set. The game will be continued to-day.

ARMY CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Yesterday at Portobello Barracks the Army championships reached the final stages. Details:—

SINGLES.

Semi-finals—Captain Gunn (5th Brigade) beat Lieutenant Shannon (6th Brigade)—6-4, 6-1; Commandant M. H. O'Connor (G.H.Q.) beat Lieutenant F. Power (6th Brigade)—6-0, 6-3.

DOUBLES.

Semi-finals—Captain Fitzpatrick and Lieutenant Power (6th Brigade) beat Captain Gunn and Captain Gallagher (5th Brigade)—6-2, 6-0; Commandant O'Connor and Captain King (G.H.Q.), a bye.

Final—Commandant O'Connor and Captain King (G.H.Q.) beat Captain Fitzpatrick and Lieutenant Power (6th Brigade)—4-6, 6-4, 6-0.

ENNISKILLEN TOURNAMENT.

Enniskillen Lawn Tennis Tournament was continued yesterday, the weather being more favourable. Many handicap matches were played, and, on the hard courts, the championship matches were played. Details:—

Women's Singles—Miss Hyde beat Miss Webb, 6-1, 6-1; Mrs. Greenop w.o., Mrs. Norris scr.

LANSDOWNE.—Members still in club tournament are requested to attend at clubhouse, under penalty of being scratched, in order to complete outstanding matches preparatory to the finals on Thursday next, when the annual "at home" will be held.

PERCY.—The annual "At Home" of the Percy L.T.C. will be held on their grounds at Belmont avenue to-morrow, when the finals of club tournaments will be played. The band of the Carriglea School will play during the afternoon, and a dance will be held in the pavilion in the evening.

ALL-IRELAND POLO CLUB.

EVERSDEN (5) V. THE REST (1).

Two clever combinations in Eversden and The Rest met in a four-chukkar match at the All-Ireland Polo Ground, Phœnix Park, yesterday, and Eversden had a rather easy victory by five goals to one.

The defeat of The Rest was due in no small measure to the weakness of the defence, and to the forceful hitting of the winners when in the region of the posts. It was the strong drives that really won the match, as the cut up condition of the ground offered considerable resistance to ground strokes.

Captain Bernard Daly, probably the oldest player in the game to-day—he is 44 years an active member of the A.I.P.C.—was in fine form, and scored twice, while Sir Lingard Goulding also hit two goals, and Mr. Slocock one for the winners. Mr. Malone scored The Rest's single point. Teams:—

Eversden—Captain B. Daly, O. Martin, E. S. Slocock, Sir L. Goulding.

The Rest—D. Malone, W. Magee, M. Arnott, F. J. Lillis.

Umpire—Mr. J. W. Shackleton.

TO-MORROW'S MATCH.

At Phœnix Park, to-morrow—General practice, 4.30; Hillbrook v. Beechpark, 5.30.

Hillbrook—E. S. Slocock, W. Magee, Maxwell Arnott, Sir L. Goulding.

Beechpark—F. J. Lillis, J. P. A. Larminie, J. Johnson, J. W. Shackleton.

SWIMMING.

THE FINAL TRIALS.

The following teams, selected to represent Leinster in the final trials at the Waterworks, Belfast, to-morrow, will travel by the 9.15 a.m. train from Amiens street. Members of the teams are requested to note time of travelling:—

Ladies—Miss M. Dockrell, Miss E. McElwee, Miss Morgan-Byrne, Miss Sherlock, Miss D. Taylor, Miss L. Quinn.

Men.—Swimming Events — J. H. Morton, S. Scully, A. B. Brooks, H. Styles, J. S. Brady, R. N. Case, W. Maguire. Diving—E. Heron, C. R. Batt, P. J. Kehoe, W. Carroll.

Reserves—T. J. Stafford, G. C. Higginbotham, O'S. Roche, J. Quinn, and A. F. Horlacher. The party will meet at the station at 9 a.m.

GUARDS' CHAMPIONSHIPS.

The progress made by the Garda Siochana Club was evident at the Clontarf Baths last evening, and must have been a source of satisfaction to Inspector Beggs, to whose energy and organising capacity the marked improvement in the standard of the swimming is almost entirely due. The events of yesterday included the 100 yards and 220 yards championships of An Garda, in each of which there was a fine entry, and a high general level of swimming ability was displayed. Both events were won by Guard P. O'Byrne, of Ballycroy, the 100 yards in 73 4-5 secs., and the 220 in 3 mins 14 1-5 secs.

100 Yards Championship—Guard P. O'Byrne, Ballycroy, 1; Guard M. J. Monks, Depot, 2; Guard P. McMorrow, Store street, 3. Eight competed. Won by three yards; two yards. Time—73 4-5 secs.

220 Yards Championship—Guard P. O'Byrne, Ballycroy, 1; Guard Manning, Store street, 2; Guard McMorrow, Store street, 3. Seven competed. Won easily. Time—3 mins. 14 1-5 secs.

100 Yards Novices' Handicap—Guard M. Horgan (scr.), 1; Guard R. Donaldson (5), 2; Guard J. Lane (15), 3. Ten competed. Won by a touch; same. Time—90 1-5 secs.

PEMBROKE S.C.—Men—100 yards handicap this evening at Victoria Baths, Kingstown, at 6.30. 100 yards handicap (under 19)—1, D. O'Connor and Wood (dead-heat); 3rd, Murphy. Eight competed. Ladies' Section—This evening, at 6 o'clock: 220 yards handicap (Mooney Cup), seniors; 50 yards handicap (Committee prize), juniors.

HIBERNIAN MARINE SCHOOL.—Life-saving competition, Clontarf Baths, 9.30 this morning.

At the Twelfth of July demonstration of the Belfast Orangemen, the speakers will include the County Grand Master (Sir Joseph Davison), the Rev. R. R. McMath, Quebec; Dr. Gebson, Toronto; the Right Hon. Herbert Dixon, D.L., M.P.; Mr. A. G. Richmond, Toronto; and Senator Joseph Cunningham.

ROWING.

HENLEY REGATTA.

AMERICA BEATEN IN THE "GRAND."

The weather for international day at Henley contrasted strongly with that of Wednesday. It was dull and cold. There were few of the gay scenes presented by the light frocks at the opening, and most of the occupants of the craft along the booms were wearing overcoats. It was a rowing crowd, and a big one, that watched some excellent racing.

The competitors had an uncomfortable time, because the course was choppy and a stiff wind blowing against them all the way made the times slow. All the overseas challengers made their appearance yesterday, but they only met with partial success, and of the visitors only Joseph Wright, the beaten finalist of last year, and his fellow-traveller from Canada, J. Guest, remain, both surviving their initial trials in the Diamond Sculls. These two Canadians will meet in the semi-final heat to-day for the right to oppose D. Guye, of London, or R. T. Lee, Oxford University (the holder), in the final.

The only foreign eight at Henley was defeated in their first outing, the Union B.C., of Boston, U.S.A., being beaten in the Grand by London R.C., after a magnificent race. Another very fine race was that in the Wyfold Cup (fours) between Dublin University B.C. and Westminster Bank, the latter only winning by two feet after a thrilling contest. Details:—

WATERFORD REGATTA.

WEXFORD FOUR RUN DOWN.

Waterford Boat Club annual regatta was held yesterday, and, being the golden jubilee of the club, a special effort was made to render it more successful than any of its predecessors. In this connection competitors appeared to be in sympathy with the Committee, as entries, particularly in the junior events, were much in advance of those of recent years.

Though the morning broke gloomily, fine weather favoured the meeting in the afternoon, and in consequence a large number of people patronised the regatta. All the vessels in port were gaily decorated, and the scene on the river was unusually gay and animated.

A regrettable incident was the running down of the Wexford Harbour boat, after winning their race in splendid fashion, by one of the launches on the river. The crew were picked up, but the boat was badly damaged. Details:—

Suir Challenge Cup (Senior Fours)—Lee R.C., 1; Waterford B.C., 2.

Lee got away from the start, and, leading throughout, won easily by two lengths. Shannon R.C., being late for the start, did not take part in the race.

Waterford B.C. Challenge Cup (Junior Fours)—Shandon B.C., 1; Waterford B.C., 2. Also competed—Waterford "B," New Ross, and Carlow.

Portlairge Challenge Cup (Maiden Fours)—First Heat: Waterford ("A" Crew), 1; New Ross B.C., 2; Lee R.C., 3. Also competed—Shandon B.C.

Second Heat—Cappoquin R.C., 1; Shannon R.C., 2. Also competed—Wexford Harbour B.C., Carlow R.C., and Waterford B.C. Won by two lengths.

Final—Cappoquin beat Waterford.

Harbour Commissioners' Challenge Cup (Junior Eights)—Wexford Harbour B.C., 1; Waterford B.C., 2. Also competed—New Ross B.C.

Waterford Challenge Cup (Senior Fours)—Waterford B.C. rowed over; Shannon R.C. and Cork Harbour R.C. scratched.

DUNDALK REGATTA CANCELLED.

Dundalk regatta, which had been fixed for the end of July, has been abandoned. The reasons given are want of interest among the rowing members of the club and lack of public support. It was expected that this year's regatta would have been a big event, as many promises had been received from other clubs of crews, and the announcement made yesterday caused regret.

BLACKROCK (CORK) REGATTA.

The Blackrock (Cork) People's Regatta, held on the Lee on Wednesday, was spoiled by incessant rain, one result of which was to delay the proceedings so much that it was nearly 11 o'clock when they came to a close. The principal results were:—

Junior Fours.—Cork beat Lee by four lengths.

Under-age Fours.—Cork beat Lee by three lengths.

Second Senior Fours—Shandon finished alone; Athlunkard swamped.

Maiden Fours.—Cork, 1; Cork Harbour, 2; Shandon, 0; Lee, 0.

Junior Eights.—Cork beat Lee by six lengths.

Senior Fours.—Cork Harbour, 1; Lee, 2; Shandon, 0. Won by a canvas.

Maiden Eights—Shandon, 1; Cork Harbour, 2; Lee, 0; Cork, 0.

Senior Eights.—Shandon, 1; Cork Harbour, 2; Athlunkard, 0. Won by two lengths.

YACHTING.

THE CLYDE FORTNIGHT.

LADY EDITH WINS.

The Regatta yesterday in the Clyde Fortnight was that of the Royal Gourock Yacht Club.

In the previous day's race for the large yachts at Hunter's quay protests were lodged by Cambria against Shamrock, and by Shamrock against Lulworth. Both protests have been sustained—Shamrock and Lulworth disqualified and second prize awarded to Cambria and third prize to White Heather.

Sixty yachts competed yesterday in eleven races, when the principal event was again for the yachts exceeding 21 metres. There were six starters and His Majesty's cutter Britannia, showing brilliant form on all points of sailing, won, as she had done the previous day, by a handsome margin. Second prize went to Shamrock and third to Cambria.

There was a splendid sailing breeze from the south-west, which hardened in the afternoon, and Sir Howard Franks's old 19-metre Norada, which competed against Mr. Robert McAlpine's schooner Susanne, carried away the top of her pole mast in a squall in beating down Channel, on the second round, and was taken in tow.

Other results were:—Handicap, between 15 and 50 tons—Lady Edith, winner; Lafone, second.

Eight Metres—Coila, winner; Coryl, second.

Six Metres ("A" Section)—Naushabah, winner; Saga, second; Sunshine, third; Fintra, fourth.

Six Metre ("B" Section)—Selene, winner; Windward (ex-Coila III.), second; Duet, third.

RAMSGATE TO OSTEND RACES POSTPONED.

The races for the handicap for yachts under 110 tons and those of the international 12-metre class, promoted by the Royal Yacht Club, to Ostend, were, owing to heavy seas and a hard south-westerly wind blowing at Ramsgate yesterday, postponed until to-day, when, if the conditions are more favourable, the competitors will be sent away on their 56-mile course at 11.30 a.m. A good entry of British boats had been received, and fine sport should result when they arrive at Ostend, as races are provided by the club up to Tuesday next.

LANCASHIRE V. WORCESTERSHIRE.

Rain having fallen continuously for twelve hours, the pitch at Old Trafford yesterday was virtually under water when the game between Lancashire and Worcestershire should have been continued. The conditions showed little improvement as the day advanced, and, after waiting until a quarter past two, all hope of cricket was abandoned. On Wednesday Lancashire completed an innings of 328, and Worcestershire in reply lost one wicket for 25 runs.

JUMPED INTO RIVER.

RETURNED AMERICAN DROWNED AT LIMERICK.

The body of the man who lost his life at Limerick on Monday evening, by jumping into the river off Mathew Bridge, has been identified as that of Martin Sheedy, aged 32, a native of Aughboy, Clonlara, Co. Clare.

At the inquest, Timothy Murphy, Francis street, Limerick, said that he saw a man standing on the bridge parapet. The man jumped into the river, rose to the surface, and, turning on his back, made an attempt to swim, and shouted three or four times. The witness called to men in the boathouse opposite, but the man disappeared.

Michael Sheedy, farmer, said that his son worked on the farm at Clonlara for some time after returning from America. He had become peculiar in manner since he came back.

Medical evidence having been given, the Coroner entered a verdict of "Death from asphyxia due to drowning, while temporarily insane."

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

The number of cattle at yesterday's sale was similar to last week. There was a good attendance of buyers, but as grass is not too plentiful they acted cautiously. All nice quality lots changed hands at practically recent rates, but trade for other classes was uneven, with prices more or less in favour of buyers. Quotations:—Aberdeen Angus and Hereford crosses made from £18 10/- to £12 15/-, or from 48/- to 43/- per cwt.; horned bullocks and heifers from £17 to £12 10/-, or from 45/- to 37/6 per cwt.

MESSRS. R. AND J. WILKINSON.

There was not so good an entry in either numbers or quality for this week's sale. On the whole, trade was fully up to recent weeks, taking into consideration the type of animals on offer. The better class of cattle attracted good competition, and top lots of three-year-old bullocks went at £23, £22 15/-, £21 10/-, £20 5/-, £20, or 44/- to 41/- per cwt.; A.A. crosses made £22 5/- (50/6), £22 (50/-), £21 (46/-), £20 (46/6), with younger lots at £18 10/- (44/-), £17 10/- (43/6), £17 5/- (46/6), £16 15/- (44/-), etc. Some fair lots of heifers made £18, £16 7/6, £15 10/-, £15 7/6, being in or about 41/- to 43/- per cwt. Plainer lots of cattle sold at prices ranging from 37/- to 40/- per cwt.

MESSRS. GANLY, SONS AND CO.

Though the numbers were much on a par with last week, they did not represent quite as good a show of cattle from the point of view of condition and quality, and prices hardly touched as high a level. Bullocks sold at £25 5/-, £22 10/-, £22, £21 10/-, £21 5/-, £21, £20 15/-, £20 5/-, £20, £19 10/-, £19 5/-, £19, £18 10/-, £18 5/-, £18, £17 15/-, £17 5/-, £17, £16 10/-, etc., or from 43/- to 46/- per cwt. Heifers £22 10/- to £16 5/-, or 45/- to 48/- per cwt. Twelve very choice Aberdeen-Angus bullocks from the Straffan Stud made 51/- per cwt. Ten Aberdeen-Angus heifers, the property of C. G. Grimes, were 50/6 per cwt., and a consignment of Aberdeen-Angus heifers from J. Connelly made 50/6 per cwt.

Red Light II., who bolted while on the way to the post for the Stanton Plate at Worcester yesterday, cut himself so badly that he had to be destroyed. He did not come under the starter's orders, nor did Onward, who also bolted while being taken to the post for the Gheluvelt Plate. This horse escaped injury.

THE JOHN LUMSDEN MEMORIAL CUP.

THE SEMI-FINALISTS.

Yesterday at Hermitage S. Clarke (Milltown), Captain Cecil West (Greystones) J. Gibney (Hermitage), and J. F. Hanlon (Hermitage) qualified for the semi-final round for the John Lumsden Memorial Cup.

The conditions were pleasanter than on Wednesday, and taking it all round the golf in the four matches was about the best of the week.

The defeat of A. J. Kilduff was unexpected, even allowing for the circumstances that Clarke was in receipt of five strokes. But so well did the latter play that he needed only three of his allowance, the match ending at the 15th. He played very steadily, giving away no chances, and when they turned for home Kilduff was 3 down. Kilduff reduced the arrears at the 10th, but when his opponent took the 12th in 3 and the 14th in 4—it was his third win in 4 at that hole—the match was virtually over.

There was a tame ending to the match between Captain West and J. "Elgin," one of the hopes of the Hermitage Club, the latter off his second shot, which hugged the wood too close, losing his ball, which really meant the loss of the hole, and the match. The golf for the first nine was somewhat scrappy, but it was a well-contested struggle all the way. West got on to his game from the turn, and was level fours for the second half. The turning point came at the 15th, which West won in a good 3; but "Elgin" at once squared again, and they were in the same position driving to the home green, where as stated, and with West stymied by the trees off his second, "Elgin" lost his ball.

J. Gibney holed the first nine in his match with P. J. Murphy in 38, and although his opponent was only two strokes worse he was then 3 down. Murphy made it interesting by taking the 12th and 13th, but Gibney had a 3 at the 15th, and Murphy, requiring 3 putts at the next hole, extinguished his chance, for Gibney was down in 5 at the 17th for the match.

J. Hanlon always had the better of it in his match with B. Byrne. He turned two holes to the good, being out in 40, and wins at the 12th, 13th and 14th made success certain, for Byrne was not playing as well as on Wednesday.

FOURTH ROUND.

Seán Clarke (Milltown) (9) beat A. F. Kilduff (Milltown) (3)—5 and 3.

Captain West (Greystones) (1) beat J. Elgin (Hermitage) (7), 1 up.

J. Gibney (Hermitage) (9) beat P. J. Murphy (Hermitage) (8)—3 and 1.

J. F. Hanlon (Hermitage) (8) beat B. Byrne (Hermitage) (8)—4 and 3.

THE GENERAL O'DUFFY CUP

GUARD CARNEY WINS THE TROPHY.

Guard J. Carney, a 19 handicap player, from Greenore, won the General O'Duffy Cup for the 36 holes stroke competition, held in connection with Garda Week, at the Castle course, Rathfarnham, yesterday. The winner, who took up golf eighteen months ago, had a nett aggregate of 141 (69 and 72).

Twenty-four players took out cards, but, with the exception of the leading four, the returns disclosed a very moderate standard of golf. The winner showed promise of becoming quite a useful player, and but for a couple of bad holes in the afternoon his aggregate would, of course, have been less.

The next best return was ten strokes behind the leader, Guard Bracken (10 handicap) had a round of 82 gross in the morning, but he was unable to remain over to complete the next round. Superintendent Noone (holder of the trophy) was unable, through illness, to defend.

Guard J. Carney (Greenore) (19)—69, 72=141;
Sergeant Taylor (Letterkenny) (18)—72, 79=151;
Guard McKenna (Macroom) (10)—76, 76=152;
Superintendent Woods (Buncrana) (20)—78, 76=154.

An 18 holes stroke competition for the captain's prize, presented by Deputy-Commissioner Coogan, will be played over the same course to-day.

COMPSTON AND BOOMER IN FORM.

Archie Compston and Aubrey Boomer defeated Johnny Farrell, the American Open Champion, and Gene Sarazen, by one hole in an exhibition match at Fresh Meadow Country Club, New York, on Wednesday.

SADDLER'S ODD FIND.

WREN AND BROOD OF SIX IN HORSE'S COLLAR.

Ripping open a horse's collar left for repairs, William Ferguson, saddler, Fermanagh street, Clones, was confronted with a wren and six young ones that had their nest in the inside of the collar. A few hours before a farmer brought the collar to his place, carrying it in a meal sack a distance of two miles. The collar had not been in use for some time, and was kept in a place to which the wren had access.

Seeing a small hole in the lining of the collar, the wren went inside, and formed a cosy nest from the hair padding of the collar, in which she brought up her brood of six, all of which were ready for flight when the collar was ripped open.

APPLE TREES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

That the rain washing has done incalculable good is evident now in clean, fresh foliage, with some natural thinning among the freely fruiting crop, which in some cases might have gone further to advantage. Anyway, we can now be pretty certain that the crop we see is safe, will remain, barring, of course, some hand thinning, which is certainly advisable where young trees yet to make their way in the world are unduly overladen. However, what we particularly ask for at the moment is the shortening back of the lush young growth, thinning out entirely the weaker shoots, cutting the stronger ones back to about four strong, healthy leaves.

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

SEASONABLE HINTS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

What an animated scene a large poultry farm presents at this time of the year! This is about the most crowded period of the whole year. The early birds are approaching maturity; the later broods are still on the rearing ground, whilst the adult laying stock, including the birds that were in the breeding pens, are not yet disposed of. Pullets, cockerels, hens, turkeys, geese and ducks are all at their greatest number, and, perhaps, up to the present not much has been done in the way of reducing them; so that often there is very little more accommodation than there was before hatching commenced. Where this state of things exists culling should commence at once, and so prevent overcrowding. "Weed out, weed out; separate the sheep from the goats as quickly as possible," is the advice of an eminent poultry expert. Disease, vermin and stunted growth are the results of overcrowding, while your profits are swallowed up by keeping unwanted birds.
